He said "suspicions of an ordered system are again roused by the petroglyphs," which are two small figures chiselled into the rocks along the pathways. One of these is an isosceles triangle whose apex angle is 72 degrees and whose base angles are each 54 degrees—that is, all multiples of 18 degrees.

"The leaping figure is a composition of angles, every one of them a multiple of 18 degrees," Mr. Tyrska said. "Indeed, the figure contains all multiples from 1x18 to 18x18."

Mr. Tyrska said he "tinkered" with blueprints of the whole rock structure and found that the architects had deliberately used geometric progressions, such as multiples of 18-degree angles, to lay out the entire structure.

Mr. Tyrska's "tinkering" involved the use of a small pecked bowl-shape depression in a rock at the centre of the structure as a datum point and then he drew lines at 18-degree intervals out from the centre.

He said he found that the 18-degree arcs coincided with several focal points on the structure — "the serpent's tail, the serpent's neck, the serpent's nose, the alignment of the curved stairs' lowest flight, a bowl shaped depression at the straight stairs' foot and the top of the upper stair."

Indeed, he said, every major point of the structure coincided with the arcs or with triangles and circles geometrically produced by the arcs.

"I suppose that we are all surprised to encounter allegations of geometry in the prehistoric Canadian Shield," he said. "I suppose many of us are inclined to suspect that the mathematics here are the projections of a 20th-century mind. . . However, I think reflection will confirm the logical necessity that deliberate geometrical thought preceded structure at this site."

Now's the Time to Prune Fruit Trees, Hedges

There may be snow on the ground, but it's still April.

And gardeners are already beginning their summer's work.

First chore for ornamental and fruit gardeners alike is pruning.

It's the best time of year to prune because there are no leaves — you can easily remove shoots.

Currants and gooseberries benefit from pruning and they'll produce larger fruit. In addition, air circulation is better in pruned bushes and they get fewer diseases.

Black currants produce the best fruit on year-old wood so be sure half of the 10 to 12 shoots left on each mature bush are one year old. These shoots are unbranched. The remaining shoots should be two years old. These have single branches. Cut out all wood older than two years.

Most fruit on red and white currant bushes and gooseberry bushes is produced on two- and three-year-old wood. Keep four shoots of each of the three-, two- and one-year-old wood on each bush. One-year-old shoots are unbranched, two-year-old shoots have single branches and three-year-old shoots have side branches on single branches.

Remove all shoots older than three years.

This is also the time to prune apple and pear trees. It's an annual job and keeps branches well-spaced, stops them from shading each other and allows better air circulation and sun-ripening.

Short spurs are the fruiting branches on apple and pear trees and they should not be removed.

Remove branches that lay over top of others but do not make too many small cuts. A few major cuts are much more effective. They should be clean and as close to the remaining branches as possible so that stubs are not left.

After branches of a large diameter have been removed, place a tree dressing over the fresh cuts. These help prevent disease and spring out.

Even ornamental shrubs need annual pruning.

Deciduous flowering shrubs can be preserved best by pruning to keep them the desired shape and size and to encourage prolific flower and foliage production.

Don't use hedge shears to round deciduous shrubs and don't remove low branches that arch toward the ground for they hide unsightly bases.

Summer- and fall-flowering shrubs, like hydrangea, bloom at the ends of branches grown during the current year. Last year's growth should be pruned back to two or four buds from the base; weak growths should be removed entirely.

Forsythia and other spring shrubs should really be pruned immediately after flowering since they produce bloom on growth made in previous years. If your shrubs are large and overgrown, however, now is a good time to remove old wood.

The girls and women will spend a week at "Our Cabana", a Girl Guide World Centre near Cuernevaca, where they will participate in a program of crafts, sports, discussions and sightseeing trips with Guides from other nations.

More than 600 Bellevillians enjoyed the repertoire of sacred music performed by the Oshawa Kingsway College Band at Centennial Auditorium. Through the free-will offering, $464 was donated to the work of the Canadian Bible Society which has a newly-established office here in the city and whose district director is Rev. T. Rex Newman. # Today's Child

by Helen Allen

JESS AND BOB

These brothers with the delightful smiles are looking for a mother and father and a home where they can grow up together. Bob, left, has just turned 12. Big brother Jess is 13.

Cree Indians, they speak both English and Cree. The boys are proud of their Indian heritage and take pleasure in interpreting it to white friends and classmates. Naturally they need parents who will share that pride.

These healthy, active youngsters are popular at school with teachers and classmates. Their foster parents say both are easy, co-operative members of the household.

Jess and Bob are rather quiet boys but each has a sense of humor and they like to tease. Neither talks much about his feelings but once over an initial shyness they join in conversations about school and games and things that interest them.

Jess is especially keen on sports. He plays football, soccer and hockey with enthusiasm. Bob's favorite activity is skating, at which he spends many red-cheeked, happy hours. Jess is a very responsible child who takes life seriously. His teachers even wonder if he works too hard and think he should relax more.

Bob tends to be a day dreamer and is not as reliable as his brother about doing homework or chores but he does his share.

The boys are behind in school and are having remedial work. Jess is in Grade five, Bob in Grade three. Both like school and are eager to learn. It is felt they have average potential and will catch- up with special assistance, chiefly in reading and spelling.

Any one looking at their picture is bound to realize that Jess and Bob are pleasant, friendly boys. Some family will realize something more — that fine sons have come to them.

To inquire about adopting Bob and Jess, please write or Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2.

Damage by Rodents Needs Attention

To the winter-weary, almost any sign of spring is welcome. However, the sight of winter damage caused by rabbits and rodents to trees and shrubs is the exception.

"The damage mice cause when they chew the trunks and lower limbs restricts the flow of sap," says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist, R. F. Gomme. "Their main targets are fruit trees, lilacs, privet and ash. And — if one tree is damaged, others nearby have likely been attacked."

Inspect each tree and shrub near ground level to detect damage to the layer just underneath the bark. If one-quarter or less of the trunk circumference has been girdled, a light covering of tree dressing will likely be sufficient to permit healing. This is available from most garden centres.

However, if damage is more extensive, or the whole trunk circumference has been girdled, repair grafting is necessary. Delay grafting until early May when sap is flowing, but the main surge of growth has not begun, and drying out can be prevented. However, cover the damaged area with tree dressing immediately. Dormant scions are needed for repair grafting and must be collected earlier than May and stored. Free copies of the factsheet, "Repair Grafting," are available from the Information Branch, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Parliament Buildings, Toronto M7A 1A8.

Kitchen Tips

TASTY TOMATO BAKE

Cut a slice from tops of small tomatoes, rinse and dry and scoop out about half an inch of the tomato pulp to form slight indentations. Fill the indentations with minced sweet onion and dot with butter, then sprinkle with paprika. Bake in a moderate oven just until the tomatoes are hot through—20 minutes or so.

HEARTY INGREDIENTS

Add chopped walnuts and raisins to grated cheddar cheese with a little mayonnaise and use as a filling for sandwiches made from whole wheat bread.

Unlike most commodities, no two properties are exactly alike and differ in such things as location, age, structure and amenities just to mention a few. Nevertheless it is possible for a qualified appraiser to estimate the market value using one or all of the following methods.

1. Comparison. A comparison is made as to price, value, and location in relation to other properties in the same neighborhood.

2. Reproduction Cost. How much would it cost to reproduce the structure? Deduct for depreciation and add the value of the land.

3. Capitalization. This is used for income property. The value is established by consideration of the present and future income value of the property.

The accuracy of any of these methods will depend on the experience and skill of the appraiser utilizing the information and resources of a competent Realtor office.

Tackling the Alcohol Problem

Doris Clark

VANCOUVER (CP) — "I can't remember the court case in the last seven months that has not involved alcohol. That includes everyone from age 15 to 70."

The speaker is a native Indian courtworker with the Native Courtworkers and Counselling Association of British Columbia.

Laverne Edwards is 23 and has been with the two-year-old association for seven months.

When she joined the courtworkers, Ms. Edwards thought she would be explaining the law to the drunks of Indians who go through Vancouver courts.

Instead, she looks at the person in front of a judge and virtualizes the number of unfortunate people left at home. "Property, lack of housing, child neglect, because of drinking-all are all just as important as the legal problem," she said.

And the biggest problem in Vancouver is housing.

"A judge doesn't want to keep a person in jail for shoplifting but what can he do when there's no place for the person to stay?"

The administrative officer for the courtworkers, Wilbur Campbell, said only Indians are employed by the organization because Indians in court, confused with the legal process, feel more at ease with another Indian giving advice. There are 33 native workers with the association, which is administered by the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs and the B.C. Associates' of Non-Status Indians.

Mr. Campbell's prime concern now is not for more courtworkers in the province. His organization tries to eliminate court problems among Indians before they occur, which means dealing with the alcohol problem.

He has five alcohol and drug counsellors and it isn't enough.

Much of the funding of the native courtworkers is through the provincial government and Mr. Campbell is seeking money to hire 10 additional alcohol and drug counsellors.

Attorney-G RCMP, lawyers and others connected with law enforcement has found overwhelming connections between alcohol and crime, said Mr. Campbell.

"The criminal involvement comes after the consumption of alcohol. It is a release for aggression against the environment of unemployment, dependency and misunderstanding developed by prejudice and, in some cases, exploitation by society as a whole.

"The most tragic effect is in the neglect of children. Forty-six per cent of all children removed from parental custody are native Indian children."

And 3.5 per cent of all Indian children are removed from their homes, he said.

LaVerne Edwards is one of 33 workers of the Native Courtworkers and Counselling Association of B.C. She says advising native Indians on court problems has at times made her short-tempered and cynical. "Showing your anger at someone in showing your concern," she says. (CP Photo)

Down at the Heels? Stress Is Unnatural

WINNIPEG (CP) — The latest trend in footwear is catching people with their heels down and some doctors and consumer groups are concerned with the results.

The low-heeled, flat-soled shoe has enjoyed widespread popularity since introduction into the Canadian market a few months ago, but some foot specialists say it places an unnatural stress on various parts of the leg and foot and may aggravate calf muscles, disrupt the pelvic alignment and stretch the Achilles tendon.

"The principle is entirely wrong," said Dr. Robert Polack, a Winnipeg podiatrist. "It reverses the natural foot structure."

With a heel about one-half inch lower than the rest of the sole, the shoe has been advertised as a means of improving posture and circulation by promoting a more upright stance. But the uneven distribution of body weight almost exclusively on the heel can create an abnormal posture.

Dr. Jean Cobb, another podiatrist, questioned the underlying philosophy behind the shoe's structure.

"A flat heel is OK, or a minor elevation, but definitely not the other way.

"They throw you backward and place stress on the Achilles tendon and calf muscles. I don't think any self-respecting surgeon or podiatrist would recommend them."

Although Dr. Cobb said she has not received complaints about the shoe, about eight or nine persons a month have phoned to inquire about the advisability of purchasing it.

"And for someone to phone about a shoe is a big thing," Dr. Cobb said.

The original shoe was invented in 1957 by Anne Kalso, a Danish costume designer, after noticing that the heels-in-sand footprint leaves a deeper imprint than the rest of the foot. But it was not until 1970 that the shoe was introduced in the United States. Since that time, a flood of imitations based n the original concept have swept through the shoe market.

Although Dr. Pollock agreed with the basic premise of the shoe's structure, he suggested the practical application yields a disproportionate result.

"The best thing for feet would be to walk along a beach in Florida. But the shoe does not duplicate that. You're not walking on sand. You're walking on concrete."

He said shoes with elevated heels are the best possible type of foot-wear.

"The ideal shoe for a man would be a cowboy boot with heels about 1½ inches high. That's the way the foot was made to bear weight."

The shoe has also caught the attention of the corporate and consumer affairs office in Ottawa, says Dr. Vera Gelman of the products safety branch. Officials are examining with orthopedic surgeons to determine the effects the shoe has on various parts of the body, although it is not considered a danger.

Despite the possible problems the shoe can create, Dr. Peter Doctor, an orthopedic surgeon, sees at least one redeeming factor.

"The shoe is broad in the front and that's different from most shoes. The trend toward broader shoes has taken the pressure off the rest of the foot."

Dr. Monica Fernando, a podiatrist, said her experience with the shoe has been limited, but that some patients have reported the shoe promotes a great deal of comfort.

Can His Change of Heart Bring Back Wife's Desire?

Dear Doris: We have been married 25 years. My husband has always acted like an ignorant, greedy, selfish, spoiled brat. He has made my life a miserable living hell. He seems to think that other wives are serapes for their husbands and the wives jump every time the husband speaks.

There used to be an old saying that "man makes the world go round," but he seems to think it is him and not that runs the world.

In the past several months he has finally gotten used to treating me like a human instead of a robot.

Long ago I lost my desire for sex. In fact I don't seem to have much feeling for anything. I say it is because of the rotten treatment I have got from him all these years. He says he likes sex a lot.

Could his rotten treatment of me in the past cause me to lose my desire for sex? And is there anything I can do or a doctor can do to get my desire for sex back?

No Desire.

Dear No Desire: It would be a wonder to me if you did have any desire after the "rotten treatment" is as bad as it sounds. What could the treatment change in the last several months?

Many, many couples have been helped to find a new joy in marriage through marital counselling. This means going to a trained social worker, either in a social agency or in private practice, airing your story and finding out more about what lies behind the treatment which has practically buried your natural physical urges.

Recovery calls for—tenderness, mutual respect, consideration — and a lot of other things which need personal discussion, diagnosis and treatment. If your husband is ready to go with you to such a person, and if the two of you are ready to give yourselves a second chance, you might work the miracle. Try it.

Dear Doris: Could you possibly give me some information about starting a child day care center? I'm only 15 but have already considered it for my future occupation.

Is there any schooling necessary? Do I need some sort of permission from the government? Any advice or any other special requirements?

D.W.

Dear D.W.: Regulations for nursery schools and day care centres are set down by the various provincial governments. Write to the Ministry of Social Services (or similar name) Parliament Buildings, in your capital city.

Before you can teach or operate in such a centre you will probably have to take a course in early childhood education from one of our community colleges. You can talk about this with the Guidance Counsellor at your high school. He could tell you which colleges offer this course and the requirements for admission.

Dear Doris: Would you by any chance have the poem, "The Deck of Cards" in it. It is a soldier who had a deck of cards in church. He'd kept it for his prayer book and in the poem he tells what each card represented to him.

If you have it I would appreciate getting it.

Deck of Cards.

Dear Deck: I'd love to hear it myself. They tell me that it has been put into a country-and-western type of record, so try asking for it at a record store. The library doesn't have it as a poem, but if one does come in from a reader I'll send it along.

(Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Philosopher Advises Little Snitch
'Don't Judge Mom Too Harshly'

Dear Ann Landers: Your advice to Trapped was a bummer. Why didn't you pass right over the mother who was caught in the shower with another man! and write to the daughter who was using the information as a hammer over her mother's head? Here's a sample letter, in case you're short of time.

Dear Fledgling Blackmailer: So you caught your mother cheating on your father and now you are using the information.

Certainly you are old enough to know that people make mistakes. And have you ever considered the possibility that there might be a good reason for your mother's affair? Like maybe your dad is impotent, or unkind to her in ways you know nothing about?

Suppose your mother doesn't go along with your little game and you decide to rat on her. Are you aware that you might deliver a blow to your father from which he may never recover? Furthermore, where does this leave you?

If your blabbing causes a divorce, who would want custody of little snitch? Do you believe your father will thank you for destroying his world? Do you think your mother would want a rat like like you under her roof?

Don't judge your mother too harshly, Ann. You have no idea what life may have in store for you.—Seasoned Philosopher.

Dear Phil: Your letter raises some interesting questions. I print it without comment. I hope "the little snitch" sees it. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I was born and raised in Boston and now am living in the Middle West. It's gotten so I hate to open my mouth. Every time I say something people ask: "How long have you been here that you still talk like that?"

My problem might sound trivial but it is getting to me. What should I do about it?—Frozen Brahmin Ann Not Amused

Dear F.B.: Ignore the clods and make new friends. As a Midwesterner I love that Boston accent. It's got class. With a capital K.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about a problem I've had for many years. It has caused me embarrassment to this very day. Maybe you know of someone who can help me. It is over-perspiration.

I have tried every product on the commercial market, even those with money-back guarantees. I've gotten my money back twice but I'd much rather find a deodorant that works.

The last doctor I went to said, "Learn to live with it." He claims nothing can be done to help me. Surely in this age of technological miracles, something can be done to control the quarts of perspiration that run off me when I move rapidly, eat tense, or have to go where there are crowds.

I'm a male in my late 30s with normal activities and exciting habits. Please, Ann, check your experts. I'll be—Wet And Waiting In Hamilton, Ont.

Dear W and W: You have hyperhydrosis—a fancy name for excessive sweating. And so do millions of other people. Keep searching until you find a dermatologist who is persistent enough to work with you until he hits on the right formula. You'll be dry as the Sahara once you locate a doctor who cares enough to experiment with several combinations of drugs.

Share-wealth Game Starts After Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial energy conference starting Wednesday sets the stage for a gigantic share-the-wealth game, to be played out after producers and consumer interests publicly agree on higher petroleum prices.

At stake will be how much oilyer provinces are to benefit from the rise in oil and gas wealth of Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Legislation before Parliament provides that the federal government will include one-third of higher oil and gas prices in its calculations for equalization payments to poorer provinces.

The payments are made to seven provinces to bring their available revenue up to the national average. Only Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia—the so-called have provinces—do not receive equalization payments.

The bill introduced in Parliament last month is intended to end what the government calls the unfairness of higher oil and gas prices in its calculations for equalization payments to poorer provinces.

Plan Christian High School for Area

Ontario's eighth Christian High School may be built in the Quinte area by late 1974, says Henry Schaly, an executive member of the Belleville and District Christian High School Association.

Mr. Schaly, the 28-year-old principal of the Belleville Christian elementary School, said a 50-member committee is making tentative plans for the building of a new Christian High School in the Quinte area. No location has been discussed.

He said Monday the high school would probably be accredited by the ministry of education as the province's other seven high schools are. The closest Christian High School to the Quinte area is in Bowmanville.

Mr. Schaly, a native of the Netherlands, said the Christian High School committee has been evolved this year in an effort to stimulate interest in the project. The committee is about ten-year-old.

He said a steering committee now is taking a feasibility study on the project. The committee is expected to report to the association at a general meeting next September, a firm date has not been set.

These high schools, which come under the private schools act, are funded by the local Christian schools association as well as the tuition paid to the school by the parents.

Mr. Schaly said this new school would attract students in Grades 9 to 12 in the Bloomfield, Picton, Trenton and Belleville area.

He said "the purpose of an independent Christian school is based on a belief by the parents that the Lord needs a place of learning." These schools are non-denominational and they teach the scriptures with an emphasis on the teachings of Christ in its biblical context.

The Belleville Christian elementary school, not related to the high school concept, has about 45 student. Mr. Schaly said the size of the high school would depend on the demand from the community.

Parents Support Fired Principal

AMELIASBURG — A 45-year-old public school principal, dismissed by the Prince Edward County Board of Education April 1, took his appeal to the parents Monday night.

Eugene Bright, a principal of Kente Public School, met with about 200 parents here to discuss the charges leveled against him by the board and the subsequent firing and demotion to a teacher effective Aug. 31.

Mr. Bright, a principal at the school for two years, said he was told by director of education John McNeil there was a "low level of acceptance" for him in the community. He also said the board argued he lacked disciplinary techniques and management skills.

However, Mr. Bright told the temporary committee of concerned parents "much of the evidence was on hearsay and reflected the degree of rumors in a small community."

The charges were a collection, of little things based on very little information," he added.

In an emotional appeal, Roy Stevenson, a Belleville businessman and hims a parent, said "the board didn't have all the facts." He said the administration favored Mr. Bright's performance all year until mid-February when Mr. McNeil apparently had a change of heart. He produced letter documenting the. director's attitude change.

Mr. Stevenson, an organizer of the committee, said an unofficial telephone survey by the committee showed 175 parents supported Mr. Bright while only 12 said they wanted him to leave. Out of the 187 calls 161 said they were satisfied with the school.

Another supporter, Dan Brady, also a parent, said allegged teacher dissatisfaction a was unfounded. He said out of 30 staff teachers 16 said they supported Mr. Bright while four did not have an opinion. He said the board's decision was based on rumor.

Finally supporters at the meeting signed a petition which read "I support Mr. Bright unless the board can present specific facts which warrant his dismissal or demotion." A majority of those in attendance signed the petition. A delegation will present the petition to the board at its next meeting.

Potter Interprets Budget As Possible Election Prelude

Correctional Services minister Richard Potter, MPP Quinte, said the provincial budget released Monday night "could be interpreted as an election budget . . . one that gives rather than takes."

He made this comment Monday at the annual meeting of the Quinte Progressive Conservative Association meeting held in Sidney Township municipal offices.

Dr. Potter refused to comment in depth on the prediction of a spring election, saying that there is only one man in the province who knows when an election will be called and that is Bill Davis.

The Quinte member spent much of his time speaking on four highlights of the budget — relief program for first time home buyers, the seven per cent to five per cent reduction of sales tax, the reduction of succession duties and free prescription drugs to persons over 65 years old.

Dr. Potter reflected over his tenure of office which began in 1967 and pointed to the flood of Ontario Development Corporation loans that have come into riding industry.

Since 1967, the development corporation has provided in excess of $10.5 million to 22 Quinte businesses either for start up or expansion, said Dr. Potter.

Gerry Brennan, newly-elected president of the riding association said following the meeting, "it was a typical Dick Potter speech . . . nothing heavy . . . not a campaign speech.

"He was in town to touch bases with the people in the riding," said Mr. Brennan.

Other riding officers elected Monday were first vice-president Walt Tausendfreund, second vice-president Carole Flynn, third vice-president Russell Pyear, fourth vice-president Mrs. Avils Lawrence, secretary Doug Whaley and treasurer Donna Denton.

Expectant Fathers Receive Reassurance

Between 700 and 800 expectant fathers over a period of eight years in the Quinte area have received words of wisdom from Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health for the Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit.

And all of these nervous "daddies", including one newspaper reporter approaching fatherhood for the first time, took in some helpful advice during a health unit fathers' class Monday.

Dr. Lenk says the health unit holds six or seven classes per year "and on the average, we get something like 12 fathers per class."

For experienced fathers, the class can act both as a refresher course and as a forum for new information which might have developed since their last children were born.

However, for those of us first-timers facing the unknown with a great feeling of trepidation, it was a relaxer for nerves which began to shake each time we envision that final month.

Some of the advice is straight common sense which a prospective father might not realize until an untimely note has been spoken or a misdeed acted.

For example, guard against any hostility towards the fetus because pregnancy might have occurred at an inopportune time in the couple's life.

And also refrain from preference of sex. A husband exclaiming, "it must be a boy," will only cause his wife to worry she will let him down if it turns out to be a girl.

Of course, a woman, goes through psychological changes during pregnancy and the husband must anticipate, understand and be sympathetic.

Do not administer drugs which are not prescribed by the family physician. Even aspirin is taboo. Effects on the fetus by even the most common drugs cannot be determined.

And if possible, the woman should give up smoking it she indulges in that habit. Dr. Lenk says recent British studies have shown the baby is smaller if the mother smokes.

Board Will Hear Arguments

PICTON — The board of education here will listen to arguments of a committee of concerned parents opposed to the demoting of a public school principal, says Prince Edward County Board of Education chairman Douglas Caley.

About 200 parents met Monday night with Kente Public School Principal Eugene Bright to discuss his recent demotion from a principal to a teacher effective Aug. 31. The parents decided to petition the board in support of Mr. Bright. They have challenged the board to provide facts against the 45-year-old principal.

Mr. Caley, who was not at the meeting, recognized the committee and said the board would entertain them at the next meeting. The committee maintains Mr. Bright lost his job through rumors and innuendoes.

Mr. Caley refused to comment on the reasons he was demoted. He also refused to discuss the specifics related to the charges of poor management skills and a lack of disciplinary measures in the school.

Investment Described To Rotarians

An investment counsellor with an investment firm told city Rotarians Monday about investing in the ever changing world.

Howard Crans of Pitfield, MacKay, Ross and Company Ltd., told members during their regular luncheon at the Sun Valley that changes in the world's financial system is making investing today much different than in the past.

He said that in the changing times of the 20th century where each generation has increased violence, a desire to be acquisitive and the increase in inflation have contributed to changes in the investment field.

"We must realize that we have nothing we're nothing today." said Mr. Crans, pointing to the fact that progress and a better economic life for most people has been sacrificed for such things as fresh air, water and natural land.

"The major challenge in the future will be in maintaining our quality of life and condition," he said.

Mr. Crans said that with the wide choice of investment available, investment can result but he said there is strength in the flexibility of such a choice.

Mr. Crans pointed toward the role of government in the economic scene today. "There has been a persistant rise in the interest rate. In recent cases, interest rates have doubled in the past few years of the 1960s and 70s. We must see if the world can come up grips with inflation."

Mr. Crans mentioned ways a person can beat the trend the Quinte riding Progressive Conservative association.

The event will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Dennis Outlines Widening Gap Between Rich, Poor Nations

The ever-widening, intellectual gap between the peoples of developed and developing nations was the focus of discussion Monday night between a select group of Hastings County educators and Lloyd Dennis, executive of the Hall-Dennis Report.

Dr. Dennis, current director of education for the Leeds and Grenville Board of Education, was in the city to outline the now dated United Nations report on global education, the Faure Report.

The document, compiled in 1972 by a team of seven international figures, deals with the crisis of the international by rich getting richer and the poor getting poorer and further outlines possible ways of halting or diminishing the gap," said Dr. Dennis.

"The gap between the advantaged and the disadvantaged is perpetually widening . . . we must prepare the individual for future flexibility," said Dr. Dennis. "The gap is becoming critical and new thinking is needed."

Paraphrasing the UN report, Dr. Dennis said "to stem or diminish the widening gap, we must stop talking about romantic innovation and start talking about some very basic changes".

The area of change he listed include open admission to education, liberation of the learner, state control, curriculum, teacher power and diversity of approaches.

We don't need innovation we need fundamental change," he said.

He said these ideas are not designed for the underdeveloped nations but apply equally to North American educational formats — considered some of the most sophisticated in the world.

"North Americans have a tendency to think because we are richer we are better,"

Lloyd Dennis Lounges

said Dr. Dennis. "We overlook th culture-rich countries that are low on the economic scale."

Illustrating the crisis of world education as it now exists, Dr. Dennis provided statistics showing only 25 per cent of the world's children are in developed nations and that this 25 percent represents 50 percent of the world's educational enrolment.

The discussion Monday is a forerunner to an international conference to be held in Toronto's York University in May where the Faure report will be dealt with in terms of practical application.

Several European countries, and the United Sates will send delegates to the conference. Each Ontario county board of education including Hastings County — has been invited to send three delegates.

Eric Runacres, Hastings director of education, termed the Faure report "one of the most dynamic educational documents of the decade . . . and destined to have broad impact on learning approaches".

He said a number of seminars will be held in the county during the next month in preparation for the May conference.

Dead Miners Blamed Ventilation

By CP —Staff

OTTAWA — Testimony from two miners now dead has blamed poor ventilation in a uranium mine near Bancroft for contributing to their deaths from lung cancer.

The testimony was read by their widows to the Ontario Royal commission on mine safety here Monday.

The commission also heard testimony from the widow of a third miner who died of lung cancer after working in the Faraday mine, east of Bancroft.

The mine, closed in the early 1960s, is to re-open soon and export uranium to Italy.

The commission also heard mention of dust problems at mines or quarries at Marmora, Madoc and Havelock.

The testimony from the two widows came after the husbands died during a delay in the hearings.

Both miners had been scheduled to appear before the commission in February. One died Feb. 28, the other April 1 before sittings resumed.

Mrs. John Shushock and Mrs. Barclay Kelly, both reading their husbands' briefs, cited poor ventilation in the mine, which — although improved — the men believed contributed to their fatal illnesses.

In his brief, Mr. Kelly, who died April 1, also cited cases of three other miners whom he said, died of lung cancer after working in the mine.

The government-appointed commission, headed by Toronto University engineering professor James M. Hunt, has been studying health and safety conditions in Ontario mines.

Mr. Hany called the deaths of the three men "the ultimate tragedy".

In two days of hearings the commission also heard testimony from district locals of the United Steelworkers of America.

Problems with excessive dust were mentioned by union representatives from the Marmoreton open pit iron mine at Marmora; a marble quarry at Madoc and the Kaolin Canada Ltd. mine at Havelock.

Bruins and Hawks Series

Six of One, Half Dozen of Other

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks tangle tonight in a National Hockey League first round playoff series that will end a dismal season for one club and improve a poor season for the other.

"I don't think anyone is picking us to win," said Boston's Bobby Orr. "Not our fans, the press or maybe even some of our parents. They don't think we'll go much further than the first round, but when we get to the finals maybe we can talk about it."

Chicago coach Billy Reay said: "We didn't win a crucial game all year. We'll have a chance to prove differently in the playoffs."

The Bruins and Black Hawks meet in one of four best-of-three series. Other first-round pairings have New York Islanders playing host to their suburban rivals, New York Islanders; St. Louis Blues meeting the Penguins in Pittsburgh, and Toronto Maple Leafs playing the Kings in Los Angeles.

The Black Hawks, who finished a humiliating third in the Smythe Division behind a pair of expansion clubs which weren't around when Chicago won its last Stanley Cup in 1961, are looking to the playoffs to restore some lost pride.

"It has been a disappointing season for all of us," said Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, who will be facing shots from his brother Phil, the second-leading scorer in the NHL this year. "We didn't finish first and that's what hurts."

Boston, which finished 19 points behind the Adams Division champion Buffalo Sabres, also is trying to skate away from a disappointing regular season.

"We've got to hustle, play smarter," said Orr, who led the league in scoring with 135 points. "This series is two out of three, so you can't afford to make many mistakes or you're gone.

"The Rangers have been getting hun, then getting out of the playoffs each of the last eight years. They haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1940 and haven't been impressive this year.

"Pittsburgh has been running hot and cold all season on home ice and cold away from home. Also, the Penguins are scheduled to play two of the best-of-three games in Pittsburgh, they would seem to have an advantage.

The Kings skated to their best record ever this season, posting a 42-25-13 record of 43-17-21. Coach Bob Pulford admitted his team hasn't played well recently, recording just six victories in the team's last 14 games, but said: "I think we'll be a different team in the playoffs. Last year, when motivated, plays very well."

Major Junior A Selections

Maruk Outstanding Player, Didn't Make All-stars

John Tonelli of Toronto Marlboros won the berth as first centre with Doug Jarvis of Peterborough Petes and Tim Young of Ottawa 67's tied for second.

Tonelli is not playing for Marlboros in the playoffs as he has signed a conditional professional contract with Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association.

Mickey Napier, another Marlboro who has signed a pro contract with Toronto Toros of the WHA, is also a member of the all-star ballot. A right winger, Napier scored 42 out of a possible 56 points.

Carter Makes McNally Winner In First Start of '75 Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie catcher Gary Carter of Montreal Expos turned 21 today after making a party for himself Monday night at the expense of St. Louis Cardinals.

He smacked two singles and a three-run homer, driving in four runs as the Expos opened the National League baseball season with an 8-4 triumph over Bob Gibson and the Cards.

In other National League openers, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in 14 innings and Houston Astros trimmed Atlanta Braves 6-2.

The only American League game saw Nolan Ryan fire a three-hitter, striking out 15, while California Angels rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to edge Kansas City Royals 3-2.

With outfielders Bob Bailey and Rich Coggins sidelined, the Expos used rookie Tony Scott in left field and Carter, the No. 1 catcher in the minor leagues last year, in right, Scott's two-out, two-run double in the eighth inning off Bob Gibson gave the Expos a 5-4 lead and Carter, who batted fifth, added a run-scoring single in the first, wrapped it up in the ninth with his three-run homer off a high fast ball from Elias Sosa.

Enthusiasm and hustle are among Carter's trademarks. The strapping 6-foot-2, 205-pound Floridian runs full-speed to his position in the field and sprints to first base after drawing a walk.

"I'll tell you this was a heck of a birthday present," said Carter, who hit .077 in nine games at the end of last season, batted .231 in spring training and is hitting a cool .750 this year, with 161 games left.

Gibson, seeking his 249th lifetime victory, took a 4-3 lead into the eighth and notched his 18th strikeout by fanning Tim Mackanin for the second out. But Larry Parrish singled, as did pinch-hitter Larry Bittner and Scott drilled his two-run double down the left field line, scoring Parrish and pinch-runner Jerry White.

The Cards had taken a 4-3 lead with two runs in the fifth, the second on Reggie Smith's homer. It came off left-hander Dave McNally, a former American League star making his National League debut. McNally allowed nine hits and four runs in seven innings before leaving for a pinch-hitter and Scott's double made him the winning pitcher.

Cincinnati, which finished four games behind Los Angeles in the NL West last year, edged the Dodgers when Cesar Geronimo raced home from third base on pinch-hitter George Foster's infield single off knuckleballer Charlie Hough with two out in the bottom of the 14th.

A crowd of 52,238, largest ever for a regular-season game in Cincinnati, was on hand.

Houston's Jesus Cruz took advantage of an interference call against Atlanta catcher Vic Correll with a tie-breaking three-run homer, capping a five-run, fifth-inning rally against Phil Niekro that erased a 2-0 deficit.

Ryan struck out more than 10 batters for the 68th time in his career in the California win. He fanned designated hitter Herman Hillebrand four times. Lee Mayberry's sixth-inning homer had given Kansas City a 2-1 lead.

Blades Close With Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Blades wound up the Hockey Association season with an uncharacteristic victory in the season finale Monday night.

Elsewhere, clubs were getting set for the playoffs which open on one front tonight.

Baltimore, the sad sack club of the league, upset the defending champion Houston Aeros 4-2 in the last game of the schedule.

Gordie Howe scored his sixth goal of the season for Houston and finished the season with 80 points.

The Blades, known last year as the Angeles Sharks, moved to Detroit this season where they were the Michigan Stags briefly. They took Baltimore over and moved them to Baltimore.

No matter where it went, the Baltimore club couldn't improve its won-lost record and finished with a league record 21 wins, four fewer than it managed in Los Angeles last year. It also tied its record of 53 losses in a season, one fewer than it suffered.

The Aeros, meanwhile, finished with a record 106 points, five more than they had last year; a record 53 wins, also five more than last season, and tied their 1973-74 record of fewest losses—25.

The first of the best-of-seven quarter-final playoff encounters tonight with Phoenix Roadrunners visiting the Northlands at Quebec.

On Wednesday, the Toronto Toros-San Diego Mariners series opens at San Diego and Minnesota Fighting Saints-New England Whalers open at Hartford, Conn.

The Cleveland Crusaders vs. Houston Aeros series opens Thursday at Houston.

The second game is each series will be at the opening site hosted second to the other teams' arenas for the next two.

Pick Them and Duck

Astaire predictions are rampant these days.

Why should I depart from my rather questionable habit of following the trend and having a go at picking winners?

After all, readers of this column have been known to make a dollar or two by using a very simple formula.

Upon perusing my selections, those in the know promptly place their wagers on the clubs I've dismissed as unworthy.

And it works.

Be that as it may, here I go.

Kings over Leafs in two straight.

Everyone on the Toronto Club wants to carry the puck the length of the ice but too often are unable to cap their headlong, solo efforts with a goal.

And anyway, LAs goals against average was second only to Philadelphia Flyers' mark.

(Incidentally, Flyers will repeat as Cup Champions.)

Black Hawks will upset Bruins 2-1.

Not much to choose between the two clubs in the goals against department. Hawks were scored on 301 times and Bruins, 301.

The goals for record has me a little concerned. Total statistic showed Boston with 345 to 268 for Chicago.

But what the heck, Kathleen likes Bruins so I guess she does too.

St. Louis came on with a rush to close out the season but that Pittsburgh squad has got the stuff.

The battle of the New Yorkers!

Islanders over Rangers 5-1.

Emile Francis' Rangers had more wins (37-33) but Islanders had fewer losses (25-29).

Anything can happen in a short series.

To make predictions like those presented here man, you've got to believe that anything can happen.

I'll try to get in what will happen to the survivors, tomorrow.

Can you wait that long?

In Monday's second league game, John's Variety was blanked by Cosy Grill 3-0. Dave Langman took care of all the scoring in the game.

Sunday, Moira held Cosy Grill to a 4-4 draw.

Charlie Nesterovski clicked for three Cosy Grill goals to go with one by Brian Cheesley in that game. Cheesley is with two each for Moira are Dave Powell and Ross McLeod.

Second Rotin played action opens Monday night at Loyalist College with Olympics meeting John's in the 9 p.m. game and Moira hooking up with Cosy Grill at 10 p.m.

Novice Squads To Meet Again

Between the A championship and grand championship games in the Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament, Sunday, novice teams from Belleville and Kingston demonstrated their skills for the spectators.

The teams will hook up in another exhibition match in Kingston, Sunday.

Generals Outlast Stanley

Firepower is a commodity both teams in the gas House Hockey League final have in their arsenals.

London Team Trips Rollins

Pressed into service to give London's Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament entry an exhibition match, Sunday morning, Belleville's Rollins Makers came out on the short end of a 5-3 score.

Rollins' tab for the Rollins' squad, were Robbie Soule, Jamie Rosenberg and Charlie Doran. Joe Guthrie picked up a pair of assists and Doran had one helper.

And in the third game of the eight-point series at Memorial Arena, Monday night, the big guns were booming.

When it was all over, Belleville Generals had moved back into contention in the series, posting their first win over Stanley Stuckers. Final score was 9-4.

Stanley carries a 3-1 lead in games into the fourth match, Wednesday night.

Defenceman Gary Guyer, named the top performer in the league at that position, led the charge for Generals. He scored twice and helped arrange five other scoring plays.

Steve Trudeau was the big triple-threat man with four goals and an assist while Dave Skelton was good for two and two. Bill Van Soelen was the other scorer for Generals.

Wayne Storms and Bob Mairhill each connected for a pair of Stanley goals with singles for Rob Harrington, Ray Summers, Russ Harrington and Frank Wiles.

Novice Champs Decided

Series A championship honors in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association novice division went to Hanson Lumber, a 6-1 winner over Stephen Leacock.

In the B section, Local 1000 got by Uniroyal 6-1 to take the title.

Hughes Wins Mixed Title

The number 13 has always been attached with misfortune, but John and Jackie Hughes and Phil and Noel Gibbon would probably be willing to argue this point.

The foursome finished 13th in the Quinte Curling Club's Mixed League standings at the end of the season and of 13 rinks. The top 16 teams in league play then entered the QCC's Mixed League Championship Bonspiel which began Wednesday. When it was all over, Hughes rink was left standing with the Hyman trophy and the 1975 mixed curling championship.

Hughes rink beat out Vern Goodwin's foursome in the final Sunday. The runner-up rink finished 13th in regular season action. Goodwin's rink consisted of his wife, Gloria, and Jim and Lil Taylor.

Hughes was down 4-3 after five ends but, aside from a third and never looked back.

The mixed consolation championship went to Finlay McCorquodale's rink. Other members of the rink are his wife, Helen, and Ray and Lena Dearborn.

McCorquodale's rink finished third in the season standings and Jones came seventh.

BERNIE PARENT

Parent Becomes Only Successive Winner of Vezina

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers has become the first National Hockey League goaltender in 15 years to win the Vezina Trophy in two consecutive seasons.

Parent, a 30-year-old native of Montreal, shared the award last season with Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks in the first tie in the Vezina Trophy's history. The second half of this season, Parent played superbly to overtake the Los Angeles Kings duo of Rogatien Vachon and Gary Edwards, the mid-season leaders.

Parent, who led the league in shutouts with 13, completed the regular season with a 2.65 goals-against average on 127 goals against during 4,041 minutes. The Flyers team total was 181 goals against in 80 games and 13 shutouts—Wayne Stephenson, who played in 13 games got the other shutout.

Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens was the last goalie to win the Vezina two years in a row and hold the league record for having his name inscribed on the cup from 1955-56 to 1959-60.

Parent receives $1,500 as the Vezina Trophy winner plus $750 for being the second-half leader. Vachon and Edwards, who combined for a 2.81 average, receive $750 as year-all runners-up plus $250 as first-half GVA goal total was a record for a defenceman.

Phil Esposito, bidding for his fifth straight scoring championship, finished eight points behind Orr. Esposito led the league with 61 goals and had 66 assists. His points total was his lowest in five seasons.

Marcel Dionne, the second-half scoring leader with 66 points, was third in the year-all race with 47 goals and 79 assists for 121 points followed by Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens who had 53 goals and 68 assists for 119 points.

Peter Mahovlich finished fifth with 117 points on 35 goals and 82 assists, Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers was sixth with 27 goals and 88 assists for 115 points followed by Rene Robert of Buffalo Sabres with 100 points on 40 goals and 60 assists. It marked the first time in the NHL that seven players have scored 100 or more points.

Two other players besides Orr, Esposito and Lafleur reached the 80-goal plateau. Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres had 52, matching his total of last season and Danny Grant of Detroit Red Wings had 50.

For winning the scoring championship, Orr receives $2,500 plus $250 as runner-up to Esposito in the year-all race. Esposito collects $1,500 as over-all runner-up and $500 for leading in the first half. Dionne will get $500 as the second-half leader.

The Canadiens led the all teams by scoring 374 goals in their schedule while Washington Capitals had the weakest offence, scoring 181 goals. The Capitals allowed 446 goals as they finished with an 8-67-4 record, the worst in the NHL since New York Islanders were 13-60-6 in 1972-73.

The Flyers were the most-penalized team with a total of 1,780 minutes, an average of 34.4 minutes a game. Dave Schultz of the Flyers was the individual penalty leader with 472 minutes.

Montreal led with 91 power-play goals while Buffalo led with 17 short-handed goals.

Jones Rescues Nuggets

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Bobby Jones hit three of Denver's eight consecutive points in the final two minutes Monday night, lifting the Nuggets to a 126-120 American Basketball Association playoff victory over Utah.

The victory gives Denver a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Division. Games three and four will be played in Salt Lake City Wednesday and Friday.

In another playoff game Monday night, Indiana Pacers downed San Antonio Spurs to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven first-round playoff.

BOB McADOO

McAdoo Top Scorer

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the National Associations Most Valuable Player, added the 1974-75 league scoring title to his list of honors Monday by amassing the most points in a season since 1964.

McAdoo finished his highest scoring season ever with a total of 2,831 points for an average of 34.5 a game. He also led the league in minutes played with 3,539 and was among the best in field goal percentage, rebounding and shot shots.

The 6-foot-10 Braves star ran up the highest season point-total since Will Chamberlain collected 3,968 in 1963-64.

Rick Barry of Golden State Warriors was second with 30.8 points a game, followed by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee Bucks at 30.6, Nate Archibald of Kansas City-Omaha at 30.5 and Charlie Scott of Phoenix Suns at 30.3.

CBC Carries Oscar Instead

TORONTO (CP) — Although Toronto Maple Leafs may be involved in the second-last game of the year, the CBC has elected not to interrupt its regular television programming schedule to carry the game to home viewers.

The CBC has decided to televise the Academy Awards presentations from Hollywood—a program readily available in the Toronto area from the NBC station in Buffalo and through NBC network stations near the border.

Toronto fans who want to see tonight's game between the Leafs and Kings in Los Angeles can do so at Maple Leaf Gardens by buying a ticket and watching it on a closed-circuit pay-TV screen.

The CBC will pick up the best-of-three series here Thursday for the second game and, if a third game is necessary, will show it Friday starting at 10 p.m. EST.

Gordon Craig, head of sports for the network, said no opening-game coverage is planned for Sunday's start of the quarter-finals because of showing the elimination round this week.

IN MEMORIAM

BURDITT — In loving memory of a dear husband and Daddy, Thomas F. Burditt who passed away April 9 1972.
He suffered patiently and long,
How hope was strong, his faith was true,
The peace of Jesus filled his breast,
And in its calm he went to rest.
—From wife Laura and family and grandchildren.

BURKSHAW — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Wilfred Who passed away April 8, 1972.
Sadly missed by children, Sarah, Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow that breaks a heart.
Time, years may wipe our many tears,
But this they wipe out never.
The memory of those departed dears,
When we were all together.
—Wife Mary, Son Jim, Jim, daughter-in-law Ruth and grandchildren Pat, Kathy and families.

BURKSHAW — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Wilfred who passed away April 8, 1972.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain,
But though we are parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we shall see you,
Some day we know not when,
To clasp hands and talk together,
In that sweet home above.
—Sadly missed by daughter Vida and family.

HANNAHART — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Jacob M. Hanhart, who passed away April 8, 1971.
Your presence we missed, your memory we treasure,
Dear to us now as you were dear forever.
—Ever remembered by Florence, Robert, Walter and Jean and grandchildren.

BURKSHAW — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Wilfred who passed away April 8, 1972.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sad, tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear father,
We don't think of you.
—Sadly missed by daughter Hilda, son-in-law Ken and grandchildren.

HANNAHART — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Jacob M. Hanhart who passed away April 8, 1961.
Always a smile, never a frown,
Always a hand when one was down,
Always a heart to understand,
Wonderful memories left behind.
—Sadly missed by her husband John.

Not Too Specific

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday Finance Minister John Turner "will be specific, but not too specific" about Ottawa's still-evolving approach to inflation in talks Friday with provincial treasurers.

Mr. Trudeau told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield in the Commons that the government does "not want to announce the new direction that we want to follow until we are satisfied that the various sectors of the economy want to follow it."

The exchange followed a statement-maker in the day by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed that he does not understand Ottawa's consensus approach enough to know whether it is workable.

CBC Staff Large

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC staff covering Prime Minister Trudeau's trip to the West is described as larger than the prime minister's entourage, two CBC complained in the Commons on Monday.

Progressive Conservative (PC—Annapolis Valley) said 21 CBC reporters and technical staff will report the tour, which includes the meeting of Commonwealth leaders in Jamaica on April 30 to May 5. He suggested the corporation should assign its staff to cover the CBC's French and English networks.

'Feelings of Humanity'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau indicated Monday that "feelings of humanity" inspired a recent telegram expressing support for striking workers in Asbestos, Que.

Mr. Trudeau told the Commons that the telegram expressed "feelings of all Liberals toward people involved in difficult conflicts, particularly in a case like this where matters of health are involved."

Irrelevance hrs been mounting of asbestos miner health hazards.

Limit Soot

OTTAWA (CP) — Guides limiting emissions of soot from the air from asphalt-paving plants were announced Saturday by the environment department.

Chinatown Oscar Favorite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Nicholson, who played the puzzled detective in Chinatown, was favored to win the Oscar for best actor.

His rivals include Al Pacino for Godfather—II, Art Carney for Harry and Tonto, Albert Finney for Murder on the Orient Express, and Dustin Hoffman who played the title role in Lenny.

Faye Dunaway, the tragic heroine of Chinatown, was given a good chance to win as best actress if a sweep for the film develops.

Otherwise, that Oscar could be a toss-up between Gena Rowlands of A Woman Under the Influence and Ellen Burstyn for Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore.

Other nominees for best actress are Diahann Carroll for Claudine and Valerie Perrine for Lenny.

Many seemed in hope that old, faithful Fred Astaire would be chosen as best supporting actor for his role in Towering Inferno.

The favorite for supporting actress seemed to be Valentina Cortese for Day for Night, with Ingrid Bergman as sentimental choice for Orient Express.

Howard Koch, who is producing the Oscars show, promises a return to glamor. The whole show will have a crystal look, and the women will appear in glamorous gowns, all designed to match the sets."

The Motion Picture Academy is striving to repair its image after events that have tarnished the Oscar—so shows by important winners, refusals of the award by George C. Scott and Marlon Brando, a streaker on stage at last year's Oscars.

The ceremony, to be telecast by CBC at 9 p.m. EST, will hark back to Hollywood's one-time glamor with a parade of film clips of past winners.

The scientific awards will not be presented on camera, and the songs have been knocked into a single medley.

TORONTO (CP) — The success of the Anna Wyman Dance Theatre probably has a lot to do with Miss Wyman herself.

She is the driving force behind all the choreography as well as the day-to-day grind of keeping a company alive.

The company, started four years ago in Vancouver, received favorable audience and critic reaction on its first Eastern Canada tour despite injuries to two of its eight dancers.

"This didn't make things easier," Miss Wyman said. "We had to recruit a couple of dancers quickly."

Miss Wyman, born in West Germany, had a classical ballet background before she discovered modern dance, partly from preference and partly because of the isolation of running a dance company in British Columbia, she has little to do with modern dance conventions of North America.

"I certainly have never been inspired by other dances," she said. "But generally I would say paintings, sculpture, the environment, these sort of things move me to create dances. And music, of course.

"I can't have a dance idea and then hunt for music. It doesn't work for me that way. The music must suggest some thing.

"About the only thing I rigidly avoid touching is nature. To me nature does not involve the dance, it is something to be enjoyed for its own sake; some thing to relax in and I would never try to translate it into other terms."

MUNICH, Germany (AP)— Paul Verhoeven, a prominent West German actor and producer-director, collapsed and died on the stage of the Kammerspiele Theatre Saturday during a memorial ceremony for colleague who had recently died.

Verhoeven had a 50-year career as producer and actor. He had been director of the Kammerspiele since 1952.

His best-known appearances in German-made movies were in The Kaiser from California in 1936, The Three Codonas in 1940, and Herr Sanders Lives Dangerously in 1943.

To Your Good Health

Growth Hormone For Really Short

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your article about a doctor called an endocrinologist dealing with human growth hormones. I'm 15, and short for my age (5 feet, 6 inches). How much can they make you grow and I'm very interested in this. J.D.

Even for a boy, I would not consider 5 feet, 6 inches excessively short. You certainly would not qualify as a candidate for human growth hormone therapy. HGH is mighty scarce material.

The hormone is extracted from human pituitary glands (its only source), and the supply is obviously limited by the number of people who die in any given year from whose bodies these valuable glands have been recovered.

With a great number of genuine shorties (under five feet) around, you can understand why it makes good sense to limit HGH use to these people for whom it can do the most good. Besides, at 15 you are approaching the age where HGH becomes ineffective even if available.

To date, no one has been able to produce a synthetic equivalent of HGH. When that happens, its use might be extended to persons taller than that.

It is possible that 5 feet, 6 inches, is your correct hereditary height for your age. It certainly doesn't indicate any defect in your pituitary gland which produces HGH for your body. There is no evidence that HGH will make the height potential in a person whose pituitary is producing normally. That means we can't make seven-foot basketball stars of people hereditarily intended to be six-foot baseball players.

At 15, you still can have further growth spurts. I suspect that you will be as tall as you were hereditarily intended to be. Forget HGH.

Dear Doctor: I've heard that blowing a balloon is good exercise for emphysema. Do you have to inhale a certain amount of time each day doing it? — J.T.

Yes, this is a good therapy for emphysema victims, and it can be done three or four times at a session. Four sessions a day is a good schedule.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As you know, in many cases the loss of the sense of smell has been successfully treated with zinc pills. What is the zinc compound most commonly used in these pills, and what is the dosage? Are there any known undesirable effects?

What are the causal mechanics linking zinc and the sense of smell — R.R.

I have commented in passing on the use of zinc in cases of loss of the sense of smell, but I have been careful to point out that the results are not predictable and that there can be some unpleasant side effects.

The role of zinc in this regard is under continuing investigation. Zinc is a trace metal found naturally in the body. The underlying mechanism in the matter of restoring the sense of smell is apparently involved with some enzyme activity, which culminates in the renewal of the olfactory nerves' ability to detect odorous chemical reactions as apprehensions of odors. Beyond this, little is known.

Zinc's role in arteriosclerosis has been studied with some interest.

The form of zinc used is zinc sulphate, and it is dispensed in capsules of 220 milligrams each, usually taken three times a day. But this would be a matter for your doctor to prescribe.

The side effects I mentioned are nausea and irritation. Don't be angry if your physician declines to prescribe it for you. Treatment still is largely unproved and, since it does involve these side effects, he may hesitate.

Dear Doctor: My problem is my feet and legs. They have been swelling up two or three times a day. I am awake and sometimes my face is all swollen.

Please don't tell me to see a doctor. I am 68 years old, and I have tried to get Social Security or disability, even food stamps, but have been turned down. Everything I can't work.

People have been telling me I have a disease of the liver or kidneys. Anything you can tell me would be greatly appreciated — Mr. F. A.

What else can I tell you but to see a doctor? Although you have been denied Social Security, there are other agencies around to help people like yourself to take care of their health. Contact a family service agency or an out-patient department of a local hospital.

A church minister could steer you to appropriate authorities. Visit a church in your neighborhood and inquire. You may have a relative, and there are agencies in large cities that offer this free or at reduced rates. Look in the telephone book under "Legal Aid."

As to your immediate medical problem, I cannot tell to much from what you have written. It sounds rather serious, partially involving the heart, liver or the kidneys — quite possibly all three — and requiring prompt attention. I hope you can get it.

There is no way to know just how good a bridge player the late Joseph F. Cain of Indianapolis would have been, if he had been able to devote more than a very small part of his time to the game.

Here is a hand he played, when the team of Welch, Buck, Wood and Cain won the open team championship in 1950. Larry Welch was a trifle out of place on that team—his name was too long.

Joe didn't have much of a two-bid and Edgar Wood had to scrape the bottom of the barrel to find a positive response. Joe used the new Blackwood convention to get to the spade slam.

Hearts were opened and continued and at trick three Joe made the first key play to let him make the slam. He led the deuce of clubs, not the five of clubs.

Next, came the 10 of spades and Joe was careful to play his nine. This made it possible for dummy's eight to hold the next spade trick so he could finesse for the last time.

Joe pulled the last trump and led his king of clubs. When East showed out Joe was able to lead that five spot he had preserved, finesse dummy's nine and make his optimistic slam.

Ontario Economy to Be Normal By End of Year Says McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough predicted Monday night that Ontario's economy will return to normal by year end if oil and natural gas prices don't rise again.

However, in his budget speech to the legislature, Mr. McKeough said other factors must be avoided if his forecast is to come true. These include high wage and salary settlements, a fall off in exports, particularly in the automobile industry, and a continued slowdown in housing construction.

But the major threat to Ontario's recovery "is the prospect of a further increase in the domestic price of oil and natural gas."

Any increase this year "would severely retard the anticipated recovery in the Canadian and Ontario economies."

Mr. McKeough's main theme was that the Ontario economy is basically sound, needing only temporary stimulation to recover. The removal of the sales tax on cars and on production machinery and equipment was designed to encourage capital spending by corporations and make them more competitive both at home and abroad. It will cost the province $410 million, he said.

Mr. McKeough estimated that the cut in retail sales tax will mean a saving of $50 million to industry, and commerce, and $25 million, each to construction and housing.

Ontario's automobile industry, a key contributor to the economy, received a boost because with the cut in sales tax a new car purchaser will save about $100 and be more in a mood to buy.

Mr. McKeough said Ontario faced a record inflation rate in 1974 of 10.8 per cent and the average unemployment rate was 4.1 per cent of the labor force compared with 3.8 per cent in 1973.

Despite inflation and a small drop in industrial production, Ontario residents had more money to spend in 1974 and capital investment was strong, the treasurer said.

But wage settlements have shown a steady rise since the first quarter of 1974, he warned. "By the last quarter, the average wage increase negotiated in Ontario industries amounted to 15.5 per cent, substantially in excess of the settlements occurring in the United States."

Such continued high wage settlements would seriously undermine Ontario's long - run competitiveness."

Mr. McKeough said the Ontario economy performed at close to potential during 1974 with the gross provincial product worth $72.3 billion compared with its potential of $72.8 billion.

Mr. McKeough said his optimistic forecast for Ontario this year is based on the expectation that the U.S. economy will recover by summer, that federal fiscal policy will continue to be expansionary and that energy prices will remain stable.

If this comes about, Ontario's real growth this year should be about 1.5 per cent compared to about four per cent in 1974, a more optimistic forecast than many economists have made.

The treasurer forecast that price increases this year would be less than 10 per cent and unemployment about 5.4 per cent.

New investment should go up by nearly 17 per cent because of the removal of tax on machinery, he said.

Ontario's jobless rate hit nearly six per cent in February, chiefly because of major shutdowns by the Big Three automobile makers and car parts plants.

The reduced operations in this important sector have rippled through the rest of the "delicately balanced" economy, Mr. McKeough said. "As the U.S. economy recovers, Ontario should regain its traditional level of automotive output."

First-time Buyers Of Homes to Get Help

TORONTO (CP) — First-time home buyers in Ontario are to receive $1,500 in provincial help under a 1975 budget measure announced Monday night.

Treasurer Darcy McKeough said a $1,000 grant will be paid individuals who purchase or build housing units between now and Dec. 31, 1975. The residences will include condominiums, co-operative housing units or mobile homes.

Owners will be eligible for an additional $250 grant in each of the two years following purchase if they continue to occupy the home as a principal residence.

Ontario's officials said the grant will be in addition to federal government grants of $500 for first-time buyers announced last year.

But unlike the federal plan, Ontario grants will not be restricted to purchase of new homes and there will be no restriction on the price of houses.

Mr. McKeough said the Ontario proposal would be "considerably more powerful" than the federal incentive and would pay out an estimated $55 million in grants during the balance of the year.

To qualify, an individual must be over 18 years of age, must be buying his first home at a price equal to fair market value and must take possession or title between now and Dec. 21.

Among increased spending for housing programs, the province has budgeted for more than a doubling of grants and loans to municipalities under the Ontario Municipal Action Program to $43 million this year from $18 million in 1974-75.

Advances to the Ontario Mortgage Corp. for socially-assisted housing are to be increased to $108 million from $133 million.

Income Tax Credit Up

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough introduced several provisions in his budget Monday night which he said will help operators of small businesses and farmers.

The maximum tax credit allowed annually to small businesses rises to $8,000 from $2,000.

The investment-related, income-tax credit was introduced in the 1974 budget by John White, then provincial treasurer. Under it, small businesses are permitted to claim a tax credit equal to five per cent of the increase in their invested capital in Ontario up to the maximum allowed, which now will be $8,000 annually.

Mr. McKeough said the enrichment of the credit this fiscal year will cost the government about $15 million, but will alleviate the burden of inflation on growing companies.

Nearly Half Million Freed of Income Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced Monday night that 450,000 persons are to be removed from Ontario's income-tax rolls in 1975.

In his budget presentation to the legislature, Mr. McKeough said the province will exempt those who remained liable for Ontario income tax although the last federal budget removed them from federal tax rolls.

Mr. McKeough said that eliminating the Ontario income tax liability for those persons in 1975 will cost the province $11 million.

He said that as a result of this move, no provincial income tax will be paid and substantial tax credits will be refunded up to the following income levels — single individual, $3,382; married couple, $5,282; family of four, $6,882; and single pensioner, $5,547.

The combined effect of the income-tax cut and the province's tax credits, Mr. McKeough said, will produce tax-free income thresholds of $5,370 for a single individual, $7,980 for a married couple, $8,275 for a family of four and $5,880 for a single pensioner.

No Ban Coming On Liquor Ads

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is not considering a ban on liquor advertising because it has been found to be unenforceable and failed, Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Monday.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon asked the minister in the legislature if he was considering such a ban.

Mr. Handleman replied that he wasn't because a ban could only apply to advertising originating in Ontario and would be impossible to enforce in imported publications and other media. Ontario publications which relied on advertising revenue from beer and liquor companies would be hurt by a ban.

Boosting Consumer Buying Aim of Cut in Sales Tax

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario sales tax will be reduced to five per cent from seven per cent to stimulate consumer spending, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday night in presenting the 1975 provincial budget.

The reduction, in effect from midnight Monday night until Dec. 31, 1975, is expected to result in tax savings of $220 million to consumers and $100 million to Ontario businesses this year, he said.

"All consumers have felt the effects of inflation on their purchasing power and those of fixed or low income have had difficulty in making ends meet," the treasurer said.

He said the move aimed at strengthening consumer spending will encourage purchases of such major items as cars, stoves, refrigerators and color television sets.

The saving on the purchase of a new automobile, for example, will be about $100 and on appliances and furnishings for a home up to $125, he estimated.

"This increased activity will flow into distribution, manufacturing and other industries and generate increased production and jobs."

The reduced tax rate will apply to all items except alcoholic beverages, restaurant meals valued at over $4 and entertainment admission fees which will remain unchanged at the 10-per-cent rate.

Mr. McKeough also announced total exemption from sales tax of machinery and equipment used in various industries in an estimated $10-million program effective immediately and ending Dec. 31, 1975.

He said the action will provide "major cost reductions" to construction, manufacturing, mining and logging sectors of the economy and improve their competitive position in domestic and foreign markets.

The savings to industry for the 1975-76 fiscal year is estimated to be about $108 million in foregone provincial revenue.

Returnable milk containers also will be exempt from the retail sales tax now payable by the dairy industry.

In another sales-tax related move, the treasurer announced a plan to compensate retailers for the cost of collecting sales tax.

Starting July 1, 1975, all retailers are to receive three per cent of the tax collected and in turn to a maximum of $500 in each fiscal year.

Even at Present Prices Ontario's Energy Bill Up

TORONTO (CP) — Even at current prices, oil and natural gas purchases will cost Ontario $749 million more this year, Treasurer Darcy McKeough told the legislature Monday.

In his budget speech, Mr. McKeough said that with already substantial increases in the field price of these energy fuels, plus proposed higher transportation charges, Ontario consumers face a 1975 price rise of almost 45 per cent.

The treasurer said any increase in the country's wellhead price of crude oil would seriously undermine Ontario's hopes for economic recovery.

Reduce Staff

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will continue to reduce the number of its provincial civil servants as part of a restraint policy as government spending, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday.

Mr. McKeough said in his budget speech the over-all reduction will be 2.5 per cent for this fiscal year.

Guaranteed Income For Pensioners Up

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario pensioners' guaranteed annual income will be raised by $9.50 per month to $240 a month as of May 1, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday night.

The increase will come under the province's guaranteed annual income System (Gains).

"As a result, Ontario will offer the highest guaranteed annual income to pensioners anywhere in Canada," Mr. McKeough said in his budget speech.

The highest guarantee will provide an additional $13 million in benefits, raising the total value of Gains payments for this fiscal year to $138 million.

Ontario's guaranteed annual income standard will be $2,880 annually for a single pensioner and $5,760 to a married couple.

In addition, Ontario is extending its free prescription drug program to all pensioners in Ontario, effective Aug. 1.

More than one million people, an increase of almost 400,000, will be eligible for free drugs.

The program will raise Ontario's bill by $15 million to $46 million a year and will benefit one out of every eight residents.

More Aid for Policing

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday night local governments in Ontario can expect increased per-capita grants for policing costs and special assistance for Northern Ontario.

But the treasurer, presenting the 1975 Ontario budget, revealed only part of his plan for provincial funding to municipal and regional governments and their agencies.

The balance, he said, will be announced in the legislature today when he tables what he called "a comprehensive document on provincial assistance to local governments and taxpayers."

Turner Surprises House

Plan Announced For May Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner dropped a surprise budget announcement Tuesday, while the Commons was primed for discussion of worsening economic conditions.

Mr. Turner told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he plans to table a new budget before the end of May, only about six months after the last one.

His announcement came as the opposition prepared to question the government on worsening unemployment and home construction figures released earlier Tuesday.

Statistics Canada reported that unemployment nationally rose to 7.2 per cent in March from 6.8 per cent in February. It reached the highest level in 14 years in central Canada.

March housing starts were only one-half of what they were a year earlier, showing that the key economic sector is in a worse slump than the government had expected.

Opposition members have been calling recently for a new budget, particularly since Mr. Turner said in February that his growth prediction in the last budget was too optimistic.

Outside the House, the finance minister said he considers recession and inflation to be "equally important problems."

"But if inflation is brought under control, the prospects of . . . growth are improved and growth is necessary for employment."

The budget will be Mr. Turner's third in almost more than one year. His May 8, 1974,

Campaign In Saigon Area Opens

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops fought their way into the heart of a provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon today in the first attack on a major city in the capital region in the current Communist offensive.

The South Vietnamese military command said the attack on Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province, began before dawn following an artillery barrage.

Street fighting was reported, but later field reports said most of the North Vietnamese had been driven from the city, leaving only small pockets of resistance.

Before the new budget is tabled, Mr. Turner said, he will need more information on domestic and U.S. energy prices, plus the spending plans of the United States government.

A federal-provincial meeting here today and Thursday will try to reach agreement on new domestic oil and natural gas prices.

The economic situation in the U.S. will be, as usual, a key factor in the budget planning. Mr. Turner has acknowledged that his forecast of 3 per cent real growth during 1975 has been lowered because of a mistake in assessing U.S. economic conditions.

The U.S. recession is deeper than anticipated, causing reduced purchases of Canadian goods, he says.

Trenton Hercules Ordered Home

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the three Canadian Hercules air craft that have been standing by in Hong Kong for use in South Vietnamese evacuations is being brought home.

An external affairs department spokesman said Tuesday the two others will remain until it is decided they are no longer needed either to evacuate about two dozen Canadians remaining in Saigon or to meet any Vietnamese refugees or orphans.

The three Hercules, with a total of 58 Canadians on board, interrupted Pacific training flights to stay on call at Hong Kong.

Two of the planes arrived in the colony last Friday and the third on Monday. Two made trips to Saigon, bringing out 62 orphans and 20 Canadians in one flight and seven adults and a child in another. The second had to leave Saigon in a hurry because of the curfew.

They also took in 29,854 pounds of cargo to Saigon for the Unitarian Service Committee, the Lutheran Fund of Canada and private orphanages.

External affairs said the number of Canadians now in Saigon is between 20 and 30.

Colleges and Teachers Turn to Arbitration

TORONTO (CP and Staff)— Outstanding issues in a contract dispute between representatives of 22 Ontario community colleges and their 3,500 teachers will be submitted for binding arbitration following a breakdown in negotiations Tuesday, the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said.

The association, 'the teachers' bargaining agent, and the Ontario Council of Regents, representing the colleges, reached an agreement on job security, workload and some vacation and salary issues, the CSAO said in a news release Tuesday.

A three-man arbitration board is to make a decision Monday.

Paul Wall, president of the Loyalist College teacher association, said today, "we're not complaining about binding arbitration."

Mr. Wall said he "doesn't have a clue" how long the arbitration proceedings will take and that teachers are "satisfied with the 91 percent increase (retroactive for the past two years) on the basis that work load was the main concern on which to be considered by the arbitration board."

The negotiations have been in progress for nearly two years and a new round of talks are to begin in September, said Mr. Wall.

"We've waited this long for the last contract — we can wait some more to get into the next set of talks — which will chiefly be concerned again with work load," he said.

Negotiations resumed after Mr. Justice Willard Estey, arbitration board chairman, gave both sides four weeks to make a final attempt to negotiate a settlement following a general salary award he made last March 19.

The award gives teachers a 26.26-per-cent salary increase over two years in a contract ending Aug. 31. Pay for the teachers, who have been without a contract since September, 1973, will range from about $8,-200 to $21,500.

Andrew Todd, CSAO chief negotiator, said no progress was made in two days of meetings in Toronto and "on the issue of teacher workload they actually backtracked."

Don't Like the Water? Ice Is Best Remedy

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

If your water doesn't taste good, put ice in it, says Neil Britton, manager of Belleville's Public Utilities Commission, the body responsible for city water supply.

Mr. Britton — speaking at a seminar at Loyalist College — was responding to one student who commented "my drinking water at home tastes like . . . sewage."

"It's a known fact that the odor and taste of water becomes more noticeable as its temperature rises," said Mr. Britton. "You're not the first to complain. I was once approached by a customer who claimed the water was ruining the taste of his Scotch whiskey."

"The Scotch sure must have improved the taste of the water, though," remarked Ian Fraser, moderator of the seminar.

$68 a Week Increase Proposed for Posties

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a conciliation board report has recommended a 365-a-week wage increase in four stages for Canada's letter carriers.

The newspaper says the recommendation calls for a 70-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, 39 cents more July 1, 40 cents next Jan. 1 and 39 cents July 1, 1976.

It says the proposal, when the final rate is reached, represents a 36-per-cent increase over the current $4.41 an hour for a carrier with three years' service.

The Globe and Mail says the increase for the first year is almost 23 per cent.

The recommendation was in a report signed by the board chairman and the nominee of the 16,000-member Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, the newspaper reports.

It says both sides have been silent on contents of the report, to be released Thursday. The union will be in a legal position to strike next Monday.

TRENTON — A record-breaking attempt to circumvent the world by two Australians ended here Tuesday when no engine of their twin-engine light plane died in mid-flight over Stirling.

The crew of Lady Luck ended the hopes of Dennys Dalton, a former WW II pilot, and his co-pilot Keith Carmody to break the 125-hour, 57-minute world speed record for piston engined planes. The record was set by an Australian, the late Trevor Brougham.

Pilot Dalton said late last night they had hoped to shave 16 hours from the record time. The two men were forced to land Tuesday at CFB Trenton where they were put up for at least one night at the sergeants's quarters.

Over Stirling, at 4 p.m., the crankcase of the left engine split open, spilling oil into the sky and shattering the engine.

Mr. Dalton said the plane, heavily laden with fuel, could not go on to Gander, Nfld., its first destination after a refueling stop in Toronto that afternoon.

The crew then left Brisbane, Australia, Monday, and had expected to complete their world total-flight time in 49½-days.

The result is a disappointment Mr. Dalton said, but another try is "on the cards".

"It at this juncture, it's hard to tell when I'll have a go. We haven't finished with this one."

Originally they had planned to fly the Toronto-Gander leg in five hours and 48 minutes, From Gander, it was on to Gatwick Airport at London, England.

So that the trip is not a total loss, Mr. Dalton said they will attempt to crack several existing speed records on flights from London home.

When they will lift off here is still unknown. The engine is a write-off, according to Dalton, and he hopes it can be replaced at an approximate $20,000 cost, within five days.

While they await the engine, they expect to see some of Ontario by car.

Both men are members of the Royal Queensland Aero Club, of which r. Carmody is president and both participate in local aircraft races.

For Mr. Carmody it was his first attempt at a record-breaking flight. Asked why he agreed to go on the flight, he said "I had nothing to do this week. figured I'd go along for the ride."

The Beechcraft Duke is owned by Mr. Dalton, who also owns a business where he lives in Surfer's Paradise, a resort centre 50 miles from Brisbane.

Premiers Meet Trudeau at Ottawa to Set Oil and Gas Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau called today for restraint by business and labor to fight inflation but said the price of oil and natural gas should go up.

He steered clear of saying exactly how much the federal government believes should be added to the frozen price of petroleum products.

But Canadian consumers can no longer expect to 'go on paying as little as $4.80 a barrel for crude oil—about $5.50 below the world price—or expect Alberta and Saskatchewan to keep selling at that price, Mr. Trudeau told the opening session of the national energy conference.

Mr. Trudeau said much of the recession throughout the world results from sharp increases in the cost of oil since 1973 when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries quadrupled their oil prices.

A federal provincial agreement hammered out last spring protected Canadians from the high world prices by freezing domestic price at $4.50. That agreement runs out at the end of June.

But with oil reserves in western Canada dwindling, the country will become more dependent on the high-priced imports from the Middle East and Venezuela, the prime minister said.

In addition, new supplies of oil from the North or from the Alberta oil sands will be more costly, he told the 10 provincial premiers at the meeting.

"We cannot expect those who search for oil—whether Canadians or others—to look for it and develop it in Canada if our prices are far below those in other countries," the prime minister added.

He said the federal cabinet "have come reluctantly to believe the price of oil in Canada must go up." The price need not go all the way to world levels but "we should watch what happens to the world price and decide from year to year what we should do."

Premiers William Davis of Ontario and Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia led the user provinces against price increases.

Mr. Davis, whose province is the main user of petroleum products and natural gas, said on the eve of the conference "there should be no increase."

In a flurry of statements before the conference, both premiers Peter Lougheed of Alberta and Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan said they doubt any agreement is possible at this two-day conference. Federal authorities said the same privately. A further round of discussion will be needed, they predict.

Senior officials of the federal

Commons Approves National Petroleum Corporation

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons approved in principle Tuesday a bill to establish a national petroleum corporation designed to increase petroleum supplies.

Eleven New Democrats and 11 Social Credit MPs voted with 114 Liberals, easily defeating the Progressive Conservative opposition 138 to 67.

The corporation, to be called Petro-Canada, would be authorized to move into all phases of the petroleum industry, including refining and distribution, and also could take over existing private petroleum companies.

energy and finance departments left little doubt Tuesday that Ottawa backs Alberta in supporting increases despite the protests of the user provinces, led by Ontario.

"The officials also said in a briefing for reporters it is reasonable to assume the new prices will have to be known by the end of May when Finance Minister John Turner brings down a new budget.

The budget would have to take into account new energy prices to replace the $4.50-a-barrel oil price fixed last spring under an agreement that expires June 30.

Unless a settlement appears possible before that agreement runs out, Ottawa is expected to push through Parliament a bill giving the federal government unilateral power to set interprovincial oil and gas prices.

Although neither Ottawa nor Alberta would say in advance what prices they are seeking, the province is reported to be looking for between $5 and $5 more a barrel.

Federal energy department officials estimate that would add eight to 12 cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline or home heating fuel.

The conference also will deal with the price for natural gas, which federal officials say is undervalued in comparison with oil.

With crude oil landed in Toronto costing $7.30 a barrel, the equivalent gas price should be about $1.70 a thousand cubic feet, 40 cents higher than the current price, they say.

Taylor Says Recent Budget Will Stimulate Economy

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON — The general theme of the new federal budget — stimulation of the economy — may appear contradictory in prosperous times but Canada soon will experience the high unemployment rates of the United States, predicts James Taylor, Conservative MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Taylor, addressing the Picton Rotary Club Tuesday, noted the proximity of the two countries and suggested economic trends are set first in the United States with a time lag before they appear in Canada.

"We see a contradictory set of forces, inflation and recession," he commented speaking of the two countries.

Mr. Taylor remarked unemployment rates in the States now have reached approximately nine per cent while in Canada the figure is 7.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis.

"We are experiencing a high unemployment, wage disputes and labor unrest," observed Mr. Taylor.

He said the new budget is a five-phase program to do what the province feels necessary to stimulate the economy.

Mr. Taylor said phase one of the budget is re-inforcement of consumer income and purchasing power while other phases include encouragement of home ownership and expansion of the housing supply, encouragement of increased investments and productivity, strengthening of small business and the farming community and a program to restrain the growth of government spending.

"The problem of inflation is always out there," he said.

Mr. Taylor said the reduction in sales tax to five from seven per cent hopefully will encourage the purchase of major consumer items. By the end of 1975 an upward turn in the economy is anticipated, he said.

The MPP predicted consumer spending will be re-inforced through income tax cuts that apply to the lower strata of workers filing returns.

He reviewed the benefits of the provincial budget to the first-time home buyer. The federal government now offers $500 to the new buyer but the provincial government now will pay $1,000 to first-time purchasers and follow up with two additional payments of $250 in future years.

The $1,500 subsidy to the first-home buyer will be offered not just toward the purchase of new houses but for other homes on the market. The federal grant of $500 is restricted to the purchase of new houses.

"When the economy starts to slide you see it first in the construction business," Mr. Taylor said.

He added there is then a spill-over to other goods such as stoves and refrigerators and furniture.

"If we can encourage people to buy a piece of Ontario that will give them a vested interest in the province and stimulate construction and related industries," he commented.

Mr. Taylor praised the budget for the temporary break offered to industry through the $410 million in cost savings on sales tax exemptions on production equipment and machinery.

He noted this should advance industry in the province at the competitive level.

"Hopefully, a larger productive capacity will be generated and expansion in industry encouraged," he observed.

Mr. Taylor also referred to the increase of $380 million in grants to municipalities aimed particularly at meeting police costs.

"It's important to maintain a strong law enforcement organization in the community," he said.

Public Control Costs More

A panel of spokesmen from Ontario Hydro, Bell Telephone and Belleville's Public Utilities Commission and transit commission concurred that public control of such services increase the cost. Norm Manning, of Ontario Hydro, said "because agencies such as ours serve all areas of the community and the province including the unprofitable areas, our commodity costs more."

Free enterprise would be inclined to cut service to remote areas where service was not profitable. The seminar took place at Loyalist College Tuesday.

Province May Cut Trenton's Budget

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — In 1976, town taxpayers may not be forced to pay the full 6.4 mill increase approved in March by council to cover 1975 capital spending in Trenton.

That indication was given in an interview Tuesday by treasurer Brian Fagan, back from a meeting in Toronto with the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB).

With the board rests the fate of Trenton's $1,982,826 capital budget. Only the OMB can give the town the okay to borrow money to finance capital projects.

Mr. Fagan said Tuesday an OMB official indicated his surprise at approval Trenton received for 1974's budget of $1,886,446.

The official was reported to have said the budget for 1975 was also high and he would look carefully at town expenditures with cost cutting in mind. As an example, the $30,000 set aside for a ball park in Centennial Park and other park projects was cited as a likely area for cuts.

Use of loans by the OMB could mean a decrease in the 29.4 mills required to retire the town's 1976 capital debt.

The treasurer said the official calculated the town's total debt should not exceed an estimated $7.5-million, roughly nine per cent of Trenton's equalized assessment.

Mr. Fagan said, that in all likelihood other items would be cut but that he did not feel "they'll cut us off completely".

As the controller of a municipality's power to borrow money, the OMB potentially has substantial impact on primary road rebuilding projects in Trenton.

Borrowing to finance construction spreads costs over 10 years, thus reducing the town's yearly payments with money raised through mill rate levies on taxpayers. The higher the borrowing rate figure, the more money is needed to repay loans and the higher the mill rate rises to pay for repayment.

Mr. Fagan said an alternative to funding capital projects exists. Funds come from the current budget in which case the entire cost of a project would have to be raised in one year.

Proclamation Denied

PICTON — Town council has refused to proclaim Secretaries Week planned from April 20 to April 26 by the National Secretaries Association.

Arena Funds Request Deferred by Council

PICTON — The Prince Edward Centre Commission has submitted a request to town council for a grant of $1,200 but councillor Russell Alexander says it should be turned down.

At a town council meeting this week councillor Alexander noted the Centre Commission already has a bank balance of more than $9,000.

Prince Edward County council is expected to give a grant to the Picton arena and a 20 per cent of this grant money is contributed by the town.

For this reason, councillor Alexander said he feels a further $1,500 is unnecessary.

Picton deputy — reeve Larry Richardson opposed this view observing a building like the County Centre cannot be operated "for peanuts."

He suggested the Wellington District Community Centre operates in the black because ice rental fees have been set much higher than at the County Centre.

The deputy - reeve added raising rates at the Picton rink might discouragetinue.

"We are talking about whether the general population supports this or the users," he said.

Arena Take 2

Councillor Harry Abram noted the grant requested by the Centre Commission would be small in comparison with the town's share of county council's $154,000 grant to the Wellington District Community Centre in 1974.

Town councillor Charles Hepburn commented the grant represents "a small price to look after the youth of our town."

Councillor Alexander observed, "You may change your minds when all of the budgets are in."

Council voted to refer the grant request to its finance committee for consideration.

Citizens Bureau to Move Back to City Within Month

TRENTON — By formal board resolution, it was agreed this week that the Citizens Bureau move into downtown Belleville offices within the month.

The move was announced Tuesday by newly-appointed bureau public relations officer Vernon Farrow, who said the exact location of the new office will be revealed shortly.

Moving day will bring to a close 16 months of operation in Trenton and is made possible by a recently announced $12,000 grant from the federal government. The consumer help group has slowly been running out of money granted it by the United Community Services of Belleville.

In making the announcement, Mr. Farrow said the bureau will try to open an office in Trenton two nights each week, but the centre of activity will remain in Belleville.

Along with the move, other changes and plans are being considered, mostly in the committee stages:

— Change in name from the Citizens Bureau, now in existence for about three years,

— An increased use of volunteer staff to supplement the expected two-member permanent staff.

— Incorporation of the bureau as a charitable organization.

— Establishment of a fee structure based on the ability of people to pay for services provided by the bureau.

— An approach to Belleville City council for funds though a dollar figure has not yet been set. Trenton council may also be approached.

Mr. Farrow said the board of directors is continuing its pursuit of additional funding from a number of federal government ministries.

Citizen's Initiative

Reginald Nicholls of Stirling is a senior citizen who is not allowing the grass to grow under his feet.

With limited funds he is trying to stimulate interest in a variety of activities among his contemporaries.

However, this has not been without obstacles. Among other things he has tried to organize a Stirling "Daystand" to cater to the needs of residents of two local nursing homes — but unfortunately with no response. As a member of the Nitecaps International Association of Salt Lake City, he tried a similar venture on a province-wide basis, but learned from the association he must confine his efforts to one county.

Not to be outdone, Mr. Nicholls is now trying to organize a Canadian pen pal club. However, a small test ad sent in to the personal column of a Toronto newspaper was turned down, for undisclosed reasons. Admitting to some confusion, Mr. Nicholls says if it were on ethical grounds he wishes to emphasize his objective is a proper organization, and that he seeks to avoid any suggestion it exists for any other purpose . . . "which of course it does not."

In this regard he points to publication in the same newspaper of women at a rub in parlor, stripped to the waist, polishing the shoes of male clients, such establishments thus receiving free publicity while his modest little ad was rejected.

In any event, the purpose of Mr. Nicholls' Canadian Pen Pal Club is to "provide a source of friendly correspondence for all, particularly for senior citizens, blind, shut-ins, and nursing home residents. It is not intended, however, as a mating club. Where the blind are concerned, correspondence would be through tapes.

Mr. Nicholls points out he has received support from a number of sources, including the Canadian National Institute for the Blind which sent literature, the Toronto-based United Senior Citizens of Ontario, and an Edmonton group called the Society for the Retired and Semi-retired.

Nitecap International, he explains, is a privately-owned group with a magazine which includes a list of pen pals. It also carries out monthly welfare programs through day-and-nite stands, and there is also a radio program carried by five stations.

Even though Mr. Nicholls says he has not been able to proceed with his plans through Nitecaps he says this organization does a lot of good work. For his part, the Stirling senior citizen has high hopes for the success of his Canadian Pen Pal Club, with extensions possibly overseas.

Olympics 'Gold' Quest

With the countdown to Montreal's Summer Games of the XXIst Olympiad bringing Canada closer to the international sport spotlight, it is worth noting that this country has won only 25 gold medals in previous summer games.

Many of these have come in what would not be described as mass-interest sports, like the 1968 equestrian gold Jaime Pay, Jim Elder, and Tom Gayford brought home from Mexico City, or the 1964 coxwainless pairs rowing championship won in Tokyo by George Hungerford and Roger Jackson.

Would you believe a clay pigeon shooting medal by George Genereeux in Helsinki's 1952 games?

Canada has really only had one Summer Games superstar, although our skaters, skiers, and hockey players have brought much pride to this nation in of cold-weather international prizes.

It was in the 1928 Amsterdam Games that Percy Williams streaked to victory in the 100 and 200-metre dashes.

Even if there are no budding Percy Williams' among Canada's current crop of Olympic hopefuls, the experience of international competition and the thrill of competing with the world's greatest before a largely hometown crowd will be a great morale booster for our aspiring athletes.

If Canada does come up with a gold medal next summer, it'll make all those torn up $10 lottery tickets seem like a good investment, after all.

Schools and the Past

It is perhaps a reflection of the contrasting levels of advancement of this country and those of many in the Third World that a school such as Centenary public school is virtually obsolete here, while to have-not people it might be considered a luxury.

Centenary is being closed as of June 30 and its students will attend Sir John A. Macdonald. Renovations reportedly would cost up to $300,000. Perhaps some use can be found for it ultimately — that might justify such an expense; as of now declining school population militates against this — a phenomenon which may reverse itself however and see the school in use again. For the moment though the watchword is economy.

Of a more historical nature there is talk of a local group being interested in purchasing the old CP rail station on East Dundas.

Last fall we passed on a suggestion to that effect from a visitor who thought it would be a shame to see it go under the wrecker's hammer.

If it does it would suffer the same fate as the old Hastings County Museum on Church Street. With the city's Centennial only a few years away it would be a pity to sever any more tangible connections with the past.

Viewpoint

MONTREAL GAZETTE

Once again our attention is drawn to the appalling conditions which some people must live in Canada.

Near Amos in northwestern Quebec, 300 people live in 33 houses and an elderly woman finds the three-bedroom home she shares with 11 others too best she has ever had.

At Grand Lake Victoria there is a community of 60 tarpaper shacks on an island inhabited for 250 years. But there is no school and the children must board away in the winter. There will be no school because the federal and provincial governments want the people to move away. They are Algonquins, squatters who now cannot even lease the land on which they have lived for more than two centuries.

For the Metis in Fort George it is perhaps even worse. Twenty-seven families there live in 14 shacks that cannot be repaired because they are beyond repair. Electricity and running water are exceptional luxuries.

These accounts by Linda Diebel and Luana Parker in The Gazette this week are only part of the story. Similar conditions could be found from coast to coast. They are characteristic of the worsening lot of our native peoples, who increasingly find their old ways of life destroyed while the doors of the advancing new technologies remain closed.

UK Vote on Europe Has Trade Implication for Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The fate of much of Canada's foreign trade is riding on the outcome of the forthcoming British referendum on membership in the European Economic Community.

As trading partners, Canada and the United Kingdom have been gradually drifting apart. Two years ago, Japan overtook Britain as our largest overseas trading partner.

In June, the British public will vote on the question of whether to stay on as a member of EEC, or to drop out—as did far the wing of the ruling Labor party, as well as various nationalist groups, are demanding.

Barring an upset in the referendum, continuation of Britain's EEC membership seems assured.

And that means the contingent, gradual application by Britain of the EEC's common external tariff against imports from Canada—unless Ottawa can persuade Whitehall to make an exception in our case as it did for New Zealand's butter exports.

The familiar British answer to Canadian fears has been that the EEC connection will make the U.K. economy stronger, and that a stronger Britain will be a better trading partner for Canada.

(Unfortunately, it hasn't been working that way. Canadian-U.K. trade has been growing more slowly than the growth of either country's total trade.)

Canadian businessmen have also been told frequently that Britain, as a part of the EEC, now provides an excellent base for Canadian entry into the world's second-largest free-trade area.

But Canadian exporters have been slow to exploit that opportunity—just as many British companies can't be bothered going after orders from North American customers.

However, Viscount David Garnock—adviser to the British Overseas Trade Board—admits that British manufacturers' reluctance to export is beginning to trouble the face of private controls on some products in the U.K. itself, he says.

Those price controls, of course, are a response to inflation—and a slowdown in today's galloping rate of inflation would be just the thing that could happen to bolster Canada-U.K. trade prospects.

But retail prices have still to feel the full effect of last year's 23-per-cent average rise in wholesale prices in the major industrial countries (Canada, the U.K., the U.S., Germany, Italy, France, Belgium and Denmark).

The recent decline in U.S. wholesale prices may be a free-shadow some relief at the retail end, probably not before the end of this year.

In the meantime, there remains the danger that each of the industrialized countries in the EEC will "go it alone" in its markets. Canada's export prices rose by about 35 per cent on average last year—and the volume of our export sales declined significantly.

With our main export concern still mired in recession, Canada could ill afford to lose more sales in such a traditional, long-established market as Britain.

Women's Growing Role in Politics Far Cry from Frost, Robarts, Era

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

From time to time Leslie Frost must have tremors in his grave. And John Robarts must have his moments of shock.

This is "women's year".

We have one woman as a senior cabinet minister in Ontario and another, the only other one, as speaker of the house, as a parliamentary assistant.

And women are getting deep, deep, deep into politics not only throughout the world but in Ontario.

And not in the traditional door-knocking and stamp licking but in the real, broadcast and strong voices in policy fields.

The most in that though both Roberts and Frost played women and their vote well as professional politicians there would just as soon go to sleep as sort of listen as have any close association with them.

Frost was the most allergic.

He wasn't called "soft smoothie" without reason.

He appealed to women and he made sure this appeal was maintained.

Even though he normally only kept two pairs on the go, and these could get rumpled, he always managed to appear immaculate. And when travelling he always carried a hair brush in his coat pocket so that when he entered a town or a hall a lock of those thinning grey white locks would not be a wave out of place.

But privately his attitude was not quite as secret as this.

Perhaps he had enough of working with women at home, where by reputation he's handsome and gracious wife Gertrude kept a firm hand.

In any event, whatever the reason, Frost was not known for the least acceptance of that publicly the thought of having a woman in his cabinet let alone his cabinet turned him off, off, off.

Also far as I can recall there was not a woman candidate running for the PC's during his regime.

There was some talk at one point about Charlotte Whitton running. The thought must have given him nightmares, good sleeper that he was.

Anyway it came to nothing.

A more serious situation was when Mrs. Cameron Montrose, a controller in Windsor was popular in the city was about to get a local nomination as a candidate.

Secret agents were despatched from PC headquarters and somehow Mrs. Montrose didn't get the nomination.

Frost's underlying reason was never expressed but was easily guessed. He just didn't want any female nonsense being built up around his cabinet table.

John Robarts was another ball game.

He didn't make any planned approach to the women's vote. He didn't have to. His obvious virility did his talking for him.

But there was no question that he shared the same feeling as Frost. He didn't want any women cluttering up his government.

He, in fact, was on the spot, in that he had a woman in his caucus.

Somehow Mrs. Ada Pritchard slipped through the net and got herself elected, first in Hamilton Centre and then in the new riding of Hamilton West.

And Mrs. Pritchard was a woman with definite cabinet qualifications.

She was a graduate of the London School of Economics and had an abundance of municipal experience concluding as a controller in Hamilton.

But she never made the front bench. The top of her ladder was the chairmanship of one of the legislature's standing committees. An honor most often passed out to hard-working members who will never quite make it to the flood-lights.

Finally, in August, she retired in 1971.

So now what about Bill Davis? He is doing everything he can with women, politically.

In the bridge dangerously? Frost and Robarts, at least, probably would say yes.

Make-work Programs Specialty of Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — One of the ongoing enterprises of the bureaucrats is their make-work program. . .

Make work and you force spend.

Force spend and you build staff.

Build staff and you boost budget.

Boost budget and you expand department.

Expand department and you make work.

It is a self-serving, force-feeding, around-the-circle process that resulted in a four-fold increase in the cost of the federal government in the recent years to the current record annual $18 billion.

To the taxpayers' fear and horror it has transformed the federal bureaucracy into the monstrous modern Dracula.

How does it happen?

Usually by design.

Deputy minister competes with deputy minister, department with department, each striving to bolster, command and outdistance the competition.

Prestige is the name of the game, and it's measured by the hundreds of millions of dollars in the size and growth of the departmental budget.

But it can happen by accident, too.

Like with the do-gooding and world-saving immigration program of allowing in colourful contrasting "visitors" and flooding the country with 250,000 or more fugitives fleeing the poverty of the Caribbean and Asia.

It was all so well-intentioned, all part of Prime Minister Ironsides' plan to set up and "sharing" with the less fortunate peoples of the World lands not so richly endowed.

But it got out of control.

It was a "make work" program, and that department itself elected, first in Hamilton and then in the new riding of Hamilton West.

And Mrs. Pritchard was a woman with definite cabinet qualifications.

She was a graduate of the London School of Economics and had an abundance of municipal experience concluding as a controller in Hamilton.

Canada and The Monarchy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I gladly answer "third-generation Canadian" Marion Andrews, regarding the cost of royal travelling to Canada.

Your correspondent is nearly right but mostly wrong. Ten visits of Governors-General, both in Ottawa and the provinces cost Canadians plenty — Governors-General Governesses and staff are not cheap institutions.

Far extras, such as the expenses associated with formal dinners, balls and receptions to bills passed by our parliament . . .

Oh yes, the heads of state of other countries. Perhaps we should be thankful they don't seem to have as many hangers-on and relatives as the Buckingham Palace crowd.

Just pray that Belleville doesn't go for the royal city's centennial celebrations. The cost would make the Mc-Ferland's hockey scandal look like peanuts.

I don't wave flags, madam, British or Canadian. I leave that sort of thing to the "third generation".

Anthropologist to Study Marmora and Residents

By RUBY MCCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — Marmora may be the subject during the summer months of a study by a graduate student in anthropology.

At Monday night's meeting, Marmora Village Council agreed to a request by Catherine M. Cameron, a Canadian graduate student in the PhD program in anthropology at the University of Illinois, to conduct first-hand research of the social, political and economic history of the village; as well as current affairs.

Miss Cameron said in her letter that she had received her MA degree from York University in Toronto and had conducted community research in Venezuela and Colombia. Her attention has turned to North American communities and she had selected Marmora as a potential site.

Miss Cameron said another important aspect of the study included people's responses to conflict situations, specifically how members of small communities deal with conflicts that arise in day-to-day life.

Her research would involve archival work: looking at village census data, consulting historical documents etc. and the interviewing of public and private citizens. Miss Cameron said she does not intend to infringe upon anyone's privacy, nor does she seek information that is not freely given. Her aim is entirely scholarly and the data would be kept confidential.

Miss Cameron said she had a number of reasons for choosing Marmora as the possible setting for her study. According to her research, she believes the village to be a viable and thriving commercial centre with a population size amenable to a small scale study.

She said she understands the village is somewhat more diversified, occupationally, than a number of other places of similar population.

Miss Cameron mentioned that she has had some connection with Marmora, her family having lived some five miles from the town a number of years ago. As well, some relatives of hers will shortly be residing here.

A number of references involving the Canada Council, who would vouch for Miss Cameron's research design were given in her letter, in case council wished to check.

The Village council was very happy to give Miss Cameron permission for her research with one stipulation, that she keep a copy of her historical data with the village for possible future reference.

Animal Control Village Problem

MARMORA — "Our dog and cat problem is getting out of hand" Reeve Jack Reynolds exclaimed with exasperation at Monday night's meeting of Marmora Village Council after listening to the complaints of residents that had been registered with members of council.

Council adopted a suggestion by Deputy-reeve Grant Airhart that the villages animal Control Officer, Don Tucker of Stirling, be contacted and instructed to conduct an all-night patrol on Friday nights to try and eliminate the problem of dogs and cats tearing open garbage bags left for collection Saturday morning.

"If Mr. Tucker isn't going to enforce our bylaw, we will have to dispense with his services and look into other possibilities," Reeve Reynolds added.

Cats have become almost as big a problem as dogs, according to some reports. One member of council who lives on a street where there is known to be an extra large number of cats at one residence, wondered about adopting a drafted bylaw proposal by the Ontario Humane Society that would mean permits would be required for keeping a cat or cats and also require them to be spayed or neutered.

Reeve Reynolds noted cats are covered in the present pet control bylaw and felt the problem should be taken care of by Mr. Tucker.

Arena Beams Checked

MARMORA — Mr. Pal of Dowdell, Pal and Associates of Scarborough was expected to visit Marmora Wednesday to make an inspection of the timber structures of the Marmora arena.

Dowdell, Pal and Associates is the engineering firm that carried out reinforcing of the Millbrook arena and has been consulted by the six-man committee in charge of repairing or replacing the Marmora arena.

The company has submitted a written cost estimate of $25,000 to do the same for the Marmora arena, contingent on whether the present timber structures are judged to be sound.

Gordon Bennett, chairman of the six-man committee, hoped Mr. Pal will be able to give an opinion on the soundness of the timber structure immediately following his visit.

Hastings Highlights

Painters Wanted

STIRLING — Volunteers are wanted to paint the new children's room at Stirling Public Library this Saturday. To help, please call at the library personally or phone.

Weekend Raised $11,000

STIRLING — Stirling Rotary Club president Ted Reid advised council by letter this week that Homecoming Weekend raised $11,000 for funds for a new Stirling district arena.

Agreement Explained

STIRLING — An agreement with Campbellford about dogs that Stirling officials knew nothing about a while ago turns out to be one signed in 1965 by representatives of that time, Campbellford reeve Morley Tanner and Stirling reeve Don Rodgers. All it did was allow dogcatcher Don Tucker to impound Campbellford dogs in Stirling. Campbellford was simply advising Stirling that it was terminating the agreement.

Council Protests Airing

STIRLING — Objection was voiced at Stirling council this week over the fact that details about flood plain mapping in the village were aired on the radio before council has been officially presented with them by the Lower Trent Conservation Authority.

It was pointed out that Stirling is going to have to pay some $1,500 for the study. The town foreman, Doug Bolic, who sits on the authority as the Stirling representative, said that they took some land out of hazard designation but put more into that category.

It was observed by clerk Robert Hulin that the LTCA had the power to cancel a building permit issued by the village if a building was erected on hazard land.

Car Fire Fatal

Tow truck operator Bruce Woodbeck approaches car in which gasoline fire killed driver William Craig Billyard, RR 4 Stirling, on the Town Line east of the village early Monday. Police say spilled gasoline ignited, the driver jumped from the car in flames and it rolled downhill into a sawdusk.

Records Mystery Solved

MARMORA — Marmora Village Council has received another letter from the Hastings County Board of Education regarding the missing Marmora School records that weren't really lost after all.

L.F. Reid, Hastings deputy director of education, gave this explanation in his letter: "In 1969 when the twelve boards which formerly operated the schools in Hastings County were amalgamated to one board — The Hastings County Board of Education — L.A. Kells, one of the Superintendents of Schools, began the mammoth task of collecting, cataloguing and preserving all the old records. The response to Mr. Kells' original request was very encouraging with the result that he was inundated with materials. So overwhelming was the flow of materials that some school areas were asked to hold all materials until further notice.

"Ken Killies, Principal of Marmora School at that time, complied with this request and carefully stored all material collected. Unfortunately, due to some changes in the organization of the administration, coupled with the fact that the board lacked adequate storage space at the main administration building these and other records were never again asked for until my recent request, of which you have a copy.

"I am pleased to say that Mr. Killies has acted very promptly since the recent request for assistance went out and the Marmora records are now here, or on the way to the Education Centre in Belleville where they will be properly catalogued for future reference."

Mr. Reid said he hoped this information would clear up any misunderstanding that may have occurred about the missing documents.

The records that came to light following Mr. Reid's original letter pertained to the operation of Marmora Township schools and were in addition to the ones stored at the Earl Prentice School.

Driver Perishes In Gasoline Fire

A 18-year-old Stirling area man was fatally burned Tuesday morning when his vehicle he was driving caught fire after a gasoline can in the car's rear spilled and ignited, police said.

William Craig Billyard of RR4, Stirling, was alone in his car about 9:15 a.m. Tuesday travelling west on Town Line Road, a mile east of Stirling when the incident occurred.

Provincial Police in Madoc said a two-gallon can of gasoline in the back of the car spilled and was ignited probably by a cigarette or cigar.

Police said the youth jumped from his car which then rolled down an embankment and into a snowbank.

Coroner Dr. Peter Briggs attributed death to be the result of burns. Investigating officer was Constable C. S. Robinson of the Madoc OPP. A post mortem will be held.

Late Storm Said Worst

MARMORA — Life in the Marmora area is back on an even keel following last week's storm that almost immobilized everyone and everything.

Some of the village's older residents said they could not recall a storm of such proportions that late in the year.

Schoolchildren had a two-day holiday, mail could not be delivered, traffic bogged on Friday afternoon and many area residents were snowed in for two or three days until the road crews could get around to open up all the roads.

Les McKeown, Marmora's superintendent of works was caught in the storm at Cambridge while enroute to Windsor with a busload of other superintendents to attend a Good Roads Association Workshop. Highway 401 was closed at stay overnight in Cambridge and managed to return home the next day.

Albert Leonard and the Marmora and Lake Townships road crew were out battling the snowdrifts day and night from Wednesday morning on, even working on Sunday.

A large transport was unable to make the long hill up through the rock cut at the west end of the village on Friday afternoon and had to back down.

Dance-a-thon Planned

The Belleville Junior 10-Pin Association plans a 24-hour dance-a-thon next month to raise funds for its entry in a provincial tournament. The money will help send five bowlers to represent Belleville at the contest, scheduled for London, Ont., the recreation-arena committee was told Tuesday.

Don't stop there– pour yourself one, too.

Yes, you need milk too—every day. It is a food so important to health that nobody ever outgrows the need for it.

You pour it daily. Why don't you drink it daily?

Every week of your life, you pour dozens of glasses of milk. For other people to drink.

But during the course of that same week, how many get drunk by you?

Only about two or three?

Well, two or three glasses of milk a week is not enough for any normal adult.

Milk is a food that is fundamental to good nutrition in people of all ages. No other food approaches it as a balanced source of the nutrients needed to maintain good health.

And yet, you've let yourself slip out of the habit of drinking it daily.

Well, now it is time to start again.

Do yourself a favour. Every day.

Luckily, it's not difficult to make a daily place in your life for milk. Just pour a glass and drink it, and you've done it.

But, like any habit, it takes a little getting into (especially if you've spent some years getting OUT of the habit of drinking a glass or two each day).

So here are a few suggestions.

Number one, take a hint from the picture. When you're pouring out your children's daily glasses of milk, pour out one for yourself, too.

It will give you a minute to sit down and talk to your kids, too. Another thing it's good to make time for!

Number two idea, replace one coffee break each day with a milk break. Three, have a glass with breakfast every morning. (This is a good way to increase your morning protein intake—which, in its turn, helps increase your staying-power right through until lunchtime.)

None of the above ideas takes more than a few seconds of your time. But since they help you set a regular habit of drinking milk, they also help you get the most benefit from it.

And those benefits, you will remember, are well worth having; no other food matches milk as a balanced source of nutrients needed for general health.

One more fact about milk. In a day when so many things are changing, and not usually for the better, milk remains what it always has been: a good food made by Nature, not by man.

Such a good food, in fact, that milk has quite truthfully been called "Nature's most nearly perfect food".

Five essential nutrients in milk. You need them all.

Calcium. You know milk is needed to help build young growing bones. But do you know that your bones need it too? The work of repair and maintenance goes on through all your life. Milk is an excellent source of calcium; and an easily obtainable one, too.

Protein...well, everybody knows how important protein is. Unfortunately, for many people, "protein" means only "meat". But right under our noses is another excellent source of it: milk!

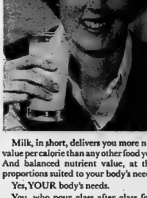
Phosphorus teams up with calcium to keep adult bones strong. Milk is also an excellent dietary source of this mineral.

Riboflavin is a B Vitamin. Your body needs it for general good health; and milk is an excellent source of it.

Vitamin A is another nutrient essential to the health of young and old alike. Whole milk is an excellent, and readily-available, source of it.

The above five are the nutritional factors of which milk is recognized as an excellent source.

In addition to these, milk is classed as a good source of thiamine; and, in Ontario, Vitamin D is almost always added.



Milk, in short, delivers you more nutrient value per calorie than any other food you buy. And balanced nutrient value, at that; in proportions suited to your body's needs.

Yes, YOUR body's needs.

You, who pour glass after glass for your children to drink...yet too rarely pour one for yourself.

Milk

At least once a day, make it milk.

Potatoes are plentiful and cheaper than ever.

Cheap—and Good for You

Potatoes are cheaper than ever and smart consumers are making use of them in many ways. They're a good source of Vitamin C and a medium potato has only a few more calories than half-a-cup of canned peas!

If plain boiling, baking and mashing are losing their appeal, try some of these more interesting recipes.

Rosemary Potatoes

Heat vegetable oil in a large heavy skillet; pare four medium potatoes and cut in ½ inch cubes. Add 1½ tsp. rosemary to oil in skillet and carefully add potato cubes. Reduce heat to medium and cover. After about 10 minutes of stirring and frying, remove cover and turn up heat to brown.

Twice-Baked Potatoes

Bake Idaho-style potatoes until cooked. Remove from oven and cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out cooked interior, leaving a firm shell. Mash potato with butter and refill shells. Combine ¼ cup dry bread crumbs with two tbsp. grated cheese and three tbsp. butter; mix mixture over top of potatoes and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in hot oven an additional 10 minutes.

Extra Special Scallop

Parboil four large sliced carrots five minutes in a small amount of boiling water. Drain. Slice five medium pared potatoes very thinly. Slice 3 medium onions thinly. Preheat oven to 250 degrees. Heat one cup of cream with one cup of whole milk until hot but do not boil. Mix ½ cup grated swiss cheese with ¼ cup grated parmesan and ¼ cup flour.

Layer potato slices, onion slices and carrots in a shallow baking pan with cheese and flour mixture. (Reserve some for top). Salt and pepper each layer. Pour cream over all and top with cheese and flour. Dot with butter. Bake at very low oven temperature (cream must not boil) for two hours.

Delicious

Pare and cut up potatoes and add to boiling water. Cook until soft. At the same time, cut cabbage into large wedges and boil or steam until cooked. Dice cabbage while hot and add to hot potatoes which you have mashed. Add generous amounts of butter, salt and pepper; add a dash of mace and chopped green onion if desired.

Potato Pancakes

Grate four large potatoes which have been pared. Add two tbsp. of sour cream, three tbsp. flour, one lightly beaten egg and salt and pepper to taste. Drop into hot fat in a skillet. Flatten slightly with turner and fry like a pancake.

Potato Salad

Boil and then pare six medium potatoes. Dice. Melt three tbsp butter in a large heavy skillet. Add potatoes and ½ cup finely diced onion, salt and pepper to taste. Pack the mixture firmly and cook uncovered until crusty and brown — about 10 minutes. Cut into wedges and turn. Cook until second side browns. Garnish with parsley, serve.

Warm Salad

Slice boiled pared potatoes and add one minced onion, one cup thinly sliced celery, three tbsp minced parsley, two tbsp cider vinegar, six tbsp oil, salt and pepper. Garnish with crisp bacon if desired.

Cheese Casserole

Boil medium potatoes until tender. Cool and peel and cut into ¼ inch thick slices. Preheat oven to 350; grease a two-quart casserole. Mix three beaten eggs, one cup of milk, ¼ tsp. nutmeg. Grate two cups old cheddar cheese. Layer half the potatoes in a casserole; top with half the cheese. Repeat and cover with egg mixture. Bake uncovered for 45 minutes.

WOMEN'S STUDY GUILD

The Trans-Amazon Highway was the topic of a talk given to the Women's Study Guild recently by Mary Jo Fortin and Marjorie Reid.

Mrs. Fortin outlined the history of the barely-inhabited Amazon region in Brazil, pointing out the need for a national program of integration. When completed the highway will link the already completed roads of the east coast with those of Peru on the west crossing the jungles and rivers of the interior.

The disadvantages of this highway-building program were enumerated by Mrs. Reid who spoke of the ecological disturbances such a highway causes. The interior is the last vast virgin territory on earth except the Arctic she said and from the rain forests here comes a large percentage of the earth's oxygen. The highway will destroy the balance of nature will be responsible for the eventual extinction of primitive Indian tribes and rare forms of wild life.

A discussion period followed the talk after which a lunch was served by the hostess Loreen Ellis assisted by Linda Wilson.

IODE

Mrs. Birkenshaw introduced Reverend Sidney Bates, who in his capacity as missionary to the deaf, is Protestant Chaplain at Sir James Whitney School.

Rev. Bates gave an interesting and informative demonstration of the methods of communication through sign language.

A talk was given by Nancy Stockwell, Civil Defence Secretary, on the survey of fishing vessels in Canadian Waters and the invasion of fishing rights.

It was reported that Joan Adams, National President of the IODE is to be guest of honor at the Argyll Chapter's 65th and The St. Julien Chapter's 80th Anniversary Dinner to be held October 7.

Joan Birkenshaw and Stella Smith are attending the Provincial Annual Meeting at Hamilton April 15 - 17.

Following the closing of the business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burgess gave a talk illustrated with slides of their travels in Greece, Cyprus, Turkey, Lebanon and Israel, bringing to the fore the realities of every day life in the strife torn areaf.

Ann Landers

Old Aunt Robbed, She's Disgusted

Dear Ann Landers: My aunt who is 86 years old and lives in a nursing home was robbed last week. The lovely robe she received for Christmas, two bottles of cologne, her new nightie, an old wrist watch and a plain gold wedding band were stolen when she had to spend a couple days in the infirmary.

How low can a person get? What is this world coming to when someone would steal from an old lady who has so little? Please print my letter and tell me what you think about this.—Pride Departed.

Dear P.D.: It's sickening. But every day thousands of people are ripped off by unconscionable, sub-human, crazy loons who prey on the helpless. Recently I read that a 27-year-old cerebral palsy victim had his wheelchair stolen.

Your aunt, and others who live in institutions, should have one drawer with a lock on it. This might help reduce the temptation, but the big question is—what can we do about our sick society?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 18, a senior in high school, and am considered a fairly intelligent, well-balanced girl. I've always thought of myself as mature and able to make good decisions. I now am faced with a problem that is testing these qualities.

I should be floating on cloud nine. I'm in love with a great guy. Doug has dated loads of girls but last week he told me he's mine—all mine! The problem: He is my first cousin.

How do I explain this to my family? If Doug and I should decide to marry in a few years, could we have normal children? Please tell me, Ann. I'm—On Needles And Pins.

Dear Needles: If both you and Doug are healthy and there are no illnesses, such as epilepsy, diabetes or blood problems in either your family or his, the chances for having normal children are good.

Some states will not permit first cousins to marry, however. Check with a lawyer and find out about yours.

As for your parents, they will probably be pleased if Doug is all you say he is. Moreover, chances for in-law trouble should be vastly reduced, since both sets will be an aunt and an uncle!

Dear Ann Landers: Here's one you've never had before. My husband and I were married 25 years. Harvey moved out several months ago and we will be divorced eventually, but because of financial problems it won't be for a while yet.

Harvey fancies himself quite a swinger and wants a vasectomy. (When we were married, the old-fashioned methods were good enough.) Here's the rub. The surgeon won't perform the operation without my signature. Part of me says Harvey is the one with the problem and I shouldn't be sanctioning his new life-style by making things easier for him. Another part of me says the world will not be any better off if Harvey has more children. Also, fatherhood could create additional money problems which we don't need.

Ann, you're so good at cutting through to the heart of the problem. Please help me decide. I want to be fair.—Undecided In Detroit

Dear Dee: This is Harvey's problem. Don't allow him to make it yours. Tell the swinger that not all doctors insist on the wife's signature before they will do a vasectomy and that he should scout around and find one who doesn't.

Doris Clark

How Can Upright Fellow Find High-minded Woman?

Dear Doris: I'm a healthy man of 30, closely involved with a lot of people through church and sports activities. But finding a lady friend who has similar high motivations and who can spiritually, intellectually, socially and sexually stimulate me has got this fellow licked.

Where does one begin? I've chatted with social workers and clergy, placed and answered ads in the newspaper, dated, belonged to various clubs and even felt at times I was being pursued unfortunately by married females already troubled by marital problems of their own.

My prayer has been for at least a friend, preferably a young wife, perhaps for a widow and family. But how does one make any satisfactory contact?

Several clergy and social workers I've chatted with have given me sympathy, prayed with me, extended encouragement to preserve my devotion to Christ, But Doris, I'm a man with human needs who wants his own kinfolk to care for.

Pilgrim Pete.

Dear Pete: It just isn't easy for a person like you with high ideals to find the right partner, is it? And yet we have many Canadians who aim just as high. I do not condoct a marriage bureau nor attempt to link up possible lifetime partners, but I know people who do.

Contact the Personal Acquaintance Service offered by the Pastoral Institute of Calgary, which has linked up many suitable friends and partners. It has a correspondence service; and singles of both sexes, like you, write to it from right across Canada.

And here's wishing you success in your quest!

Actress Portrays Rape Victim For Police Officers' Training

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — "We're going to ask you to help us," the policeman told the woman. "Our main concern is you."

The policeman was Lieut. John Bukunt of Waltham. The woman was actress Maureen Kerrigan. And the setting was a classroom at Brandeis University where policemen were learning how to treat rape victims.

Miss Kerrigan portrayed the victim. Bukunt and Detective Diana C. White, a security officer at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, interviewed her while the class of 25 looked on.

The training program was conducted in accordance with a Massachusetts law passed last October that requires police departments to have specially trained rape, investigation units.

"If we can train police to handle investigations more successfully, we can get better prosecution," said Charles H. Rogovin of Criminal Justice Associates, which is conducting the training sessions for the state's Criminal Justice Council.

They are designed partly to meet complaints that police treatment of rape victim often is insensitive, with the officers suggesting that the women led their attackers on or at least failed to fight them off.

FBI statistics show 10 per cent more rapes were reported in the United States in the first six months of 1974 than in the same period of 1973. There is one forcible rape every 10 minutes, the FBI said.

These statistics apply only to rapes that are reported to police. Fear of harsh treatment by authorities, belief that the attacker won't be convicted and worries about unwanted publicity cause many rape victims to let the crime go unreported.

In addition to establishing training programs, many areas are changing rape laws to eliminate requirements that a rape be corroborated and that proof be presented that the victim resisted.

A bill passed in California last year prohibits harassing questions during a trial about a rape victim's prior sex life; a similar measure is being offered in New York this year.

Training Sustained Stewardess

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Dobey, a stewardess on what came to be known as the Doomsday Flight of November, 1971, recently received her 10-year nursing pin from St. Joseph's Hospital.

For almost 12 hours on Nov. 12, 1971, a skyjacker held a gun at her head on an Air Canada DC-8 out of Calgary. She was forced for much of the time to hold a bomb in one hand and the passenger's hand in the other.

Miss Dobey had been back six months from Kalmazoo, the aptial of Nepal, where she had been a volunteer nurse for three months in an airline employes organization called Dooley's Overseas Volunteers ( DOV), when the incident occurred. The organization is named after Dr. Tom Dooley, a medical missionary.

"I think that sustained me through those hours," she said. "I came home with this sense of peace, and determination to go back, or elsewhere, when I could find it financially possible again."

Miss Dobey, who graduated from St. John's General Hospital in Newfoundland specializing in psychiatric care, said this also helped her.

"When the skyjacker kept talking about his 'voices' I knew something of his torment of mind, and tried to keep him as calm as possible," she said. "There was a point at which I was sure I was going to die"

Later, the man told a psychiatrist that Miss Dobey was "responsible for my failure."

PM's Trip Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau escaped to Jamaica's warm climate for a Christmas vacation, and Tom Cosulich (PC—Leeds) now wants to turn some heat on him for making the trip at public expense.

Mr. Cosulich said in an interview today the trip cost taxpayers at least $5,382 because the prime minister "likes to travel as an emperor."

Mr. Cosulich, a long-time critic of the prime minister's life-style and travel habits, made the comment after a written reply to his question about the vacation.

The prime minister's party, including his wife, two children and an RCMP inspector, flew to Jamaica Dec. 29 on a transport department JetStar and returned Jan. 6.

The reply said only the cost of transportation, $5,382.50, was paid from public funds.

But Mr. Cosulich said the airplane remained in Jamaica during the holiday and he was sure the crew "did not pay their own hotel bills" during the stayover.

No Pressure

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of three Ontario food processors testified Tuesday that no outside pressure was applied to make them buy refined sugar from Eastern Canadian refineries instead of raw sugar abroad.

The representatives of Canada Packers Ltd., E. D. Smith and Sons Ltd., and Weiberg Products Ltd. appeared as defence witnesses in the trial of three refineries charged with fixing prices and limiting competition between 1960 and 1973.

Won't Be Admitted

ORONTO (CP) — Ottawa universities have taken the position that unless a dispute between Ottawa Board of education and its high school teachers is settled by April 15, graduating students in the capital will be denied admission this fall, Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said in the legislature Tuesday.

Benefits Limited

TORONTO (CP) — Truckers, public transit commissions or taxi cab owners will not benefit from removal of provincial tax on gasoline or diesel fuel used by industrial, commercial or institutional users, a treasury official said Tuesday.

'Irresponsible'

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon accused the Ontario government Tuesday of "flagrant irresponsibility" in bringing down another deficit budget.

The Liberal leader told the legislature that the "predictable mediocrity" of provincial treasurers like Darcy McKeough has "added $4 billion net debt to the province in the four years since Mr. Davis became premier . . . ."

Curbs Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Election campaign contribution and spending restrictions contained in the government's proposed bill to regulate campaign financing "merely legalize exorbitant levels of expenditure," Donald C. MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) said Tuesday.

Without effective enforcement of the bill's provisions, Mr. MacDonald said, "we're going to be spending more on elections, not less."

Women Working

OTTAWA (CP) — There were 3.4 million working women in Canada at the end of 1974—34.5 per cent of the labor force—says a study by the federal advisory council on the status of women.

The biggest single group—36.4 per cent—held clerical jobs while the smallest—seven-tenths of one per cent—worked in natural sciences and engineering jobs.

Bishop Ordained

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP) — In a ceremony attended by more than 1,200 people the Most Reverend Gerard Dionne was ordained a bishop Tuesday.

Called Trickery

TORONTO (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) says the provincial government's proposed reduction in the civil service is "political trickery with no real economic significance."

The CSAO, bargaining agent for provincial government employees, said in a news release Tuesday that the 2.5-per-cent reduction in civil service announced in Monday's budget will result only in poorer service to the public.

Want Facts

OTTAWA (CP) — Contraceptive packages and labels should indicate failure rates and side effects, and carry a expiry date beyond which birth control products may not be reliable, the federal advisory council on the status of women said Tuesday.

The proposal was one of four approved at a council meeting attended by members from across the country.

Found Insane

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Paul Gillis, 26, of Toronto was found not guilty by reason of insanity Tuesday on a charge of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the death last Aug. 5 of Laverne Merle Johnston, 32, also of Toronto.

Police testified that Gillis told them in a statement he had "killed, strangled and raped" Mrs. Johnston in the bush before throwing her body into the water.

Godfrey Grateful

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto Chairman Paul Godfrey said Tuesday he was "deeply grateful" the Ontario government has helped Metro taxpayers a second successive year, through increased financial aid.

Decline Expected In Housing Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Housing Minister Donald Irvine said Tuesday that his ministry expects housing prices to decline this spring.

"New, used and vacant houses, by necessity, will drop in price," he said outside the legislature after an opposition attack on housing policies laid down in Monday's budget.

The budget promised first-time home buyers a grant of $1,200, which Mr. Irvine says will not necessarily stimulate the housing market but will generate more spending on household items.

"We are providing a buyer incentive," he explained. "The grant will stimulate the economy: the over-all economy will boom."

He said the private sector is going to expand housing construction this spring and summer—"housing that hasn't been on the market in the last six months."

Increased housing starts, he adds, will create a buyers market rather than the seller's market which has driven up prices during the last year.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon asked if the housing ministry intended to establish a mechanism to gauge whether prices jump 41,200 to match the government grant plan.

"It is impossible to establish such a mechanism," Mr. Irvine said, and urged the opposition to rally behind the government's "strong initiative" in the housing field.

Outside the legislature, Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, termed the budget's housing provisions "inconsequential" and said the budget decreases spending on housing in some areas.

Many of the budget announcements were retreads of similar announcements made weeks ago, he said.

March Housing Output Only Half Last Year's

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition housing critics demanded Tuesday that the government take further steps to deal with the housing slump.

They were reacting to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) figures showing that housing production in March was about half what it was last year at the same time.

A CMHC official said the low production rate raises questions about chances of reaching the government's minimum target of 210,000 starts this year.

Later Tuesday, Finance Minister John Turner told the Commons he will introduce a budget in May. Along with the budget, housing critics are expected to ask for more action to stimulate the housing industry.

Progressive Conservative housing critic, said in a statement issued by her office that it is "imperative that the federal government respond immediately" to provincial demands for a bigger federal housing budget.

John Gilbert, NDP housing critic, said the CMHC figures indicate the "failure of the government programs to cope with the housing crisis."

"I would hope that the government will take active measures to deal with it."

Flora MacDonald, Progressive

CMHC Buys Rochdale

TORONTO (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said $2.5 million Tuesday for Rochdale College, which has been called a "haven for drug abusers and hardened criminals" by a grand jury.

CMHC was the only bidder at a public auction that had been ordered by the Supreme Court of Ontario to sell the 18-storey building.

Municipalities Get Six Per Cent of Levy

TORONTO (CP) — General support grants to Ontario municipalities from the provincial government no longer will be tied inversely to municipal spending growth rates, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Tuesday.

Tabling details of his plan for the province's aid to local governments, the treasurer told the legislature all municipalities this year will receive six per cent of their 1974 net general dollar levies.

Mr. McKeough admitted changes in the grant structure might prove "unduly harsh" to municipalities which would have qualified for a rate in excess of six per cent under the former structure.

For that reason the province would guarantee, for 1975 only, that any grant would not fall below 95 per cent of last year's entitlement, he said.

Eating in New Orleans

Half the tourist interest in New Orleans is the food — a combination of classic French cooking with a dash of Creole inspiration. A New Orleans tradition is Sunday brunch at Brennan's in the old French Quarter. (CP

Eat Sparingly for Week Before New Orleans Visit

NEW ORLEANS, La. (CP) — At least half the tourist interest in New Orleans is the food—a combination of classic French cooking with a dash of creole inspiration. Creole refers to natives of Spanish-French ancestry, the background of many New Orleans families. Now it's used loosely to describe anything that originates from those early times.

Eat sparingly for a week before departure for this fascinating Louisiana city at the mouth of the Mississippi River. Then forget about calories and reducing diets.

Plan to stay at least four or five full days in New Orleans itself. This way you can plan two brunches that are New Orleans specials and at least four dinners at outstanding restaurants, provided you have that kind of gastronomical stamina. You'll find yourself lingering for at least two hours over each meal. —

Important, too, for anyone embarking on a food spree are the prices. Here they are reasonable. For example, Sunday brunch at world-famous Brennan's in the old French Quarter—Vieux Carre—is a New Orleans tradition but the same menu is served daily.

Start with the milk punch (with bourbon) at $1.50. Then choose a grilled tomato, poached eggs, Egg Sardou, artichoke hearts, creamed spinach and Hollandaise sauce.

There are more expensive dishes and also the à la carte menu if you want just a main dish. But who could resist a dessert such as Bananas Foster? The bananas are sauteed in butter, brown sugar, cinnamon and flambeed in rum and banana liqueur.

Or there's crushed strawberry omelette, with crushed strawberries cooked in a sweetie sauce and flambeed in brandy. Both desserts are served over vanilla ice cream.

There are the jazz brunches on Saturdays and Sundays at Commander's Palace in the newer Garden District. Here, as at Brennan's, the price of the main course is the price for the complete meal. Dixieland jazz is played by oldsters and features well-known trumpeter Alvin Alcorn.

If you go to this restaurant for dinner, the price is also reasonable, especially if you choose the table d'hote meal. One choice at $7.25 is fish poached in white wine with seafood sauce.

Commander's Palace was originally opened as a restaurant in 1880 by Emile Commander. Last year it was acquired and renovated in Victorian decor by four of the ladies Brennan. They had a yen to try their hand with a new venture.

Two other excellent restaurants are smaller and more intimate. Louis XVI is in the modern Marie Antoinette Hotel on Toulouse Street.

Try the creole seafood jumbos ($1.40) as an appetizer and then their dazzling Montmorency (with cherry sauce) at $8.25. The other restaurant is the Andrew Jackson on Royal Street. About 10 years old, it is one of the most elegant in the city.

Some of their specialties are veal King Ferdinand at $9—veal slices sauteed farmers in butter and asparagus, ages probably are artificially covered with lump crabmeat created.

table d'hote special-ly, crabmeat Lafitte ($8.25), has morsels of crabmeat sauteed in seasonings and dry wine and covered with Hollandaise sauce.

For those who like hotel dining, there's the elegant Sazerac room in the Fairmont Hotel. Try their Louisiana prawns baked with crabmeat at $8.50 or the filet of sole with shrimp and oysters, at $8.50.

Express Opinions

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural magazine, says one of its recent polls indicates that most farmers feel food and gasoline shortages are created falsely to raise prices. It said 63 per cent of 731—key rural since sauteed farmers polled said that shortages probably are artificially created.

Battery Cars To Serve Dutch As Cheap Transit

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP)—A little white battery-operated car that goes 18 miles an hour, emits no pollution and makes only the slightest noise is going into use in Amsterdam.

Some Dutchmen say the two seat Witkar — meaning white car—may be at least a partial answer to downtown traffic congestion and air pollution.

It looks like a space buggy and a pedestrian can summon one at a strategically located depot by inserting a key—for which he has paid a refundable deposit of 25 guilders ($10)—into a computer control box.

The Witkar, invented by Loud Schimmelpennick, is 5 feet 9 inches long, 4 feet 8 inches wide and 4½ feet high. There are only four on the streets now but organizers of the government-backed Witkar Co-operative Association said they have 2,500 members and plan to put 200 vehicles into service in the next three years.

A Witkar spokesman said that when the program is in full swing, there will be 35 Witkar depots about 1,000 feet apart throughout the city.

Members pay the 25 guilders for lifetime driving privileges in addition to the key deposit. They also pay about four cents a minute for use of a Witkar.

The key is personally coded and fits both the cars and a system of computer consoles.

When the computer is fully installed, a prospective driver will be able to get a car at any depot by inserting his key into the computer control board and specifying his destination depot and, if room exists, the driver is allowed to go there.

If the depot is crowded the driver has the option of travelling to another depot where parking is available.

The computer also bills the driver's account for time used.

The cars pack only 15 minutes of power, but Witkar station design provides for an automatic battery recharge.

The cars cost about $2,400 each, and the Witkar Association has been granted a credit guarantee by the Dutch ministry of culture, recreation and social welfare.

While plans are currently limited to Amsterdam, several other Dutch cities have shown a serious interest in the experiment. There have also been inquiries from Denmark and Japan.

"It really is a bouncy beast," commented Get van Den Berg, a 19-year-old Amsterdam student on their first Witkar spin.

"I don't particularly like automobiles, but this gives you sort of a pod-natured feeling in traffic."

To drive the Witkar, you switch on the engine, operate the forward or reverse switch and move away with a push on the accelerator. There is no clutch and no gear shift.

Van den Berg said he liked the Witkar's plexiglas windows, which provide 360-degree visibility. "You feel like a prince," he said. "You're really touring the town."

Autos at times get impatient with Witkar's pokey pace, and Van den Berg said he found himself "keeping to the side a bit, out of the way of the cars."

"But, really, how fast do you have to go in the city? You can't drive aggressively in the Witkar and I think that's an advantage. It's rather a friendly little car."

THE BATTLE FOR BERLIN — John Strawson.

The war against Nazi Germany ended as a battle for Berlin. The question was how, when and by whom the battle would be fought. In February 1945, the Red Army was fifty miles from Berlin, while Eisenhower's forces had not yet crossed the Rhine. However, a month later the Russians were bogged down while the Allies were advancing rapidly. Among the Allied leaders there was fierce controversy about Berlin's importance as a military objective. Mr. Strawson has put together the story of the last few months of the struggle for Europe, from January battles to the nightmare in Berlin.

WORKING WITH GEMSTONES — Alec Firsoff.

The object of this book is to provide as complete a guide as possible to all aspects of lapidary art. Tumbling, cutting, cabochons, faceting, inlays, lapidary machinery, lost wax casting, the fundamental properties of minerals, are all discussed with a wealth of practical advice.

BEYOND THE KNOWN UNIVERSE; FROM DWARF STARS TO QUASARS — I.M. Levitt.

Within the past dozen years astronomers have been studying new and exotic phenomena — dwarf stars, quasars, black holes and white holes, pulsars, neutron stars, supernovae — which present very baffling questions. Some pulsars apparently blink on and off some 30 times a second. How can they do it? The neutron stars have solid crusts, in spite of surface temperatures of perhaps seven million degrees. Dr. Levitt tells the story of these new celestial oddballs and relates how scientists around the world are attempting to solve the riddles posed.

COMPLETE GUIDE TO HOME APPLIANCE REPAIR — Evan Powell.

This book explains how to repair a great number of appliances, from toasters to dishwashers. The author is an editor for "Popular Science" magazine. He earned his way through college by repairing appliances, became technical service director for a major appliance company and developed and taught a course in appliance repair. He uses a two step approach; first you learn how an appliance works, second, you learn how to diagnose the problem and make repairs. Also included are rules for the proper use and care of the appliances which can save the owner money.

STRANGE ADVENTURES OF THE GREAT LAKES — Dwight Boyer.

These tales of the Great Lakes recount stories of men battling the elements, the suspense of daring rescue attempts, the mystery of inexplicable disappearances of ships and crews, and of stubborn sailors and wayward ships. One chapter relates the grim events which took place during the Armistice Day storm of 1940; another, the legends about the schooner "Hunter Savidge"; another, the launching of the first iron ship in 1845. Readers who enjoyed "Ghost Ships of the Great Lakes" will like this as well.

Salmon Stocked River

LONDON (CP) — Five thousand tiny salmon have been put into the River Thames in an attempt to restock the river now that it has been cleaned up. The fish were put in between Twickenham and Richmond by Viscount Thurso, who donated them for the experiment. They were bred in his hatcheries in the Thurso River in Scotland.

Rio de Janeiro Drug Squad Is Said Linked with Mafia

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — Members of Rio de Janeiro's Narcotics Bureau have been accused of protecting the local drug Mafia and even of acting as executioners in gangland warfare.

A report by four detectives to the state secretary for security says drug traffic "is greater than can possibly be imagined because it is protected by influential people," who receive a big takeoff. The state prosecutor has called for an official investigation.

The detectives reported they had been subjected to great pressure from police colleagues to abandon their investigations. Then they had received death threats.

The report says three district police chiefs, several commissioners and military policemen have not only been protecting the Mafia, led by Milton Cerves Tiago (nicknamed Big-Head), but have even been selling marijuana and cocaine.

At least two narcotics bureau agents are being investigated over the "execution" of rival drug pedlars whom Big-Head considered a threat.

The investigations began several months ago and led to the arrest of Big-Head himself and 13 underlings. Within days he escaped.

Two of his lieutenants and a policeman were acquitted despite prosecution charges that they were caught with a large quantity of money, cocaine and marijuana.

The prosecution said the policeman was caught in one of the roughest areas of Rio with about $1,800 and large quantities of cocaine, some of which he was distributing to important bosses as a courtesy.

The sister of one of the pedlars denounced two narcotics bureau agents for his execution, which she witnessed. She has since disappeared and the homicide bureau is investigating.

Police said one of Big-Head's lieutenants, supported by several policemen, plotted to kill his boss and take over the ring because Big-Head's own addiction to cocaine was considered to be endangering the whole business.

But the lieutenant was arrested before he could carry out his plan.

The government is paying $75,000 towards the cost; the remaining $65,000 will come from the gallery itself, arts charities and private donors.

Canada's Smallest University

Canada's smallest university, College Sainte-Anne in Church Point N.S., is putting bilingualism to an unusual test that has national implications. # Smallest University Testing Bilingualism

CHURCH POINT, N.S. (CP) — Canada's smallest university, unheralded and with a quiet urgency, is putting bilingualism to an unusual test that has national implications.

One hundred and twenty-eight students and a score of faculty members at College Sainte-Anne are living the concept that French-speaking and English-speaking students can emerge from a liberal arts education not only fluently bilingual, but with a deep understanding of each other's roots.

"This must work," said Michael Estok, an assistant English professor who was raised in Saskatchewan. "If it doesn't, if we can't achieve bilingual equality here, we might as well give up.

College president Louis Comeau, an energetic 34-year-old former MP, describes the ideals of the college with the enthusiasm of a man who is seeing a vision fulfilled.

"I don't know of any other institution in Canada that has the same objectives we do. Our aim is to produce a bilingual student capable of living and working in a Canadian climate or an international climate with the knowledge of two languages and two cultures.

"Of course there are some institutions that promote bilingualism as an institution. But everything they do, they do in two languages. For instance, they'll have an English education department and a French education department. That's not our aim at all."

The college's calendar states its premise succinctly: a challenge for students to live bilingually, "it is the challenge which our whole society faces on a large scale in every element of Canadian life."

On the surface, bilingualism at the school is French being spoken as a matter of habit—in class and out.

But for the 63 French-speaking students from Acadian areas of the Maritimes and from Quebec, one aim is to speak a continually improving French, gradually rejecting English intrusions into their native language. Most already speak English, but are deficient in writing it. The improvement of written English for French-speaking students is a priority at the college.

For Anglophone students, who are from various parts of the Maritimes, a main goal is the constant exercise of a second tongue until, as one student put it, "we find ourselves thinking in French."

Both kinds of students rely only roughly the backgrounds of each other's cultures, but the forgrowth of their common Canadian culture.

The Canadian studies program includes courses on Canadian prose, fiction, drama, film, poetry, folksongs and contemporary music.

"I think we're trying to be a real Canadian institution in the new sense of the word," Mr. Comeau said. "We think the most important thing to emphasize at first is our own cultural landscape whether we're talking about French or English."

One thing that impresses the visitor to the college is the degree of intense commitment shared by students and faculty.

Bryan Empson, an assistant history professor and a French-Canadian from Manitoba said: "It is a real challenge. The government has spent so much money promoting bilingualism, but here we can see concrete examples of it working because the kids want it to."

New Law Enforcement Unit In B.C. Remains Mysterious

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police, RCMP and the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit staged a series of raids early today, arresting .....

That paragraph has become increasingly familiar to British Columbians in the last year but the third member of that law-enforcement triumvirate, the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit, known as CLEU, remains largely a mysterious force.

When provincial Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced CLEU's formation last spring, it was as part of a massive package of legal changes. Mr. Macdonald pointed to the provincial task force report on correctional services and facilities completed in 1972, which said B.C.'s crime rate had more than doubled in the period from 1962 to 1971.

Such a situation meant drastic changes were needed throughout the legal system—police, courts, correctional facilities—and the government intended to tackle the problem as a whole, rather than fractionally, Mr. Macdonald said.

Most of what the government proposed, including CLEU, came under the umbrella of a new group called the Justice Development Commission (JDC). But because the proposals were so labyrinthian, Mr. Macdonald's comments about increased crime grabbed far larger headlines than his proposals of what to do about it.

In the year since, CLEU has been the most visible of the JDC activities. It was established to provide an attack on organized crime, which could not be undertaken by municipal law-enforcement agencies because of limitations of jurisdiction, manpower and budget.

To the end of 1974, CLEU:

—seized heroin, cocaine, marijuana and other drugs which had a total street value exceeding $4 million;

—recovered stolen property worth $735,000;

—arrested 140 persons on a wide variety of charges, including conspiracy, trafficking, robbery, breaking and entering, possessing stolen property and illegal firearms and escaping custody.

Although most of the 1974 cases have not been processed through the courts yet, a CLEU spokesman claims the publicity surrounding the force and its activities is speeding up the normal slow pace of high court trials.

"For example, our public complaints about release of drug traffickers on bail—because they consistently continue to operate while awaiting trial—has had an effect," he said. "In the last nine major drug cases, 42 persons were arrested but only four were granted bail."

And, since the suspects pressure for early trial dates by defence lawyers became much heavier, he added.

CLEU's operations are divided into three sections—planning and analysis, investigation and legal research. Overseeing the entire operation is a policy board which determines CLEU's targets, headed by David Vickerz, deputy attorney-general.

In a typical operation, the planning and analysis division, based in Victoria, gathers criminal problems — heroin distribution, stolen car or jewellery rings, organized bankruptcy frauds—and presents a report, complete with names of suspected "criminals, to the policy board.

Board members determine the goals of any investigation, in addition to Mr. Vickers, the board includes Don Winterton, Vancouver's chief constable; Asst. Commissioner Ed Wilter, commanding officer of the RCMP in B.C.; Dr. Malcolm Matheson, who headed the earlier task force on correctional services; Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson, former chief justice of the B.C. Supreme Court; Barbara Sutherland Brown, a Victoria housewife, and Dr. Stuart Jamieson, and economics professor at University of British Columbia.

The board's decisions then are executed by the investigative division, Inspector Alex Andrascik of the Vancouver police and Inspector Ed Nasykens of the RCMP jointly run the day-to-day investigative operations.

Two Area Residents Receive $20,000 from Criminal Compensation Board

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

A 36-year-old Shannonville man was awarded $14,870 in Criminal Injuries Compensation Board proceedings at the county courthouse here Tuesday.

Winston Rupert Brant received the award in connection with a shooting incident Dec. 10, 1971 at the Riviera Hotel located on the outskirts of Campbellford.

Mr. Brant was 30 years of age at the time of the incident. He was an employee of Ri-Temp Ltd., of Belleville and was on leave to attend Humber College in an apprenticeship course for sheet metal work, living in Toronto.

Mr. Brant was shot in the abdomen through the front door of the hotel by a man with whom he had had an earlier altercation in another Campbellford drinking establishment.

The man was charged with attempted murder but was finally convicted on a lesser charge of wounding and sentenced to four years in prison.

Hospital records corroborated Mr. Brant's statement, which said he is unable to perform heavy labor due to the nature of his wound. Part of his award will be paid in 12 monthly instalments while he attends a training course.

The maximum award is $15,000.

In a second case, Nellie Leola Scrimgeour, 70, of Green Acres Nursing Home in Trenton was awarded a lump sum of about $5,000 plus almost $500 in expenses in connection with a beating she received from an unknown assailant on July 29, 1973.

Mrs. Scrimgeour was beaten about the head by a man wielding a 15-ounce liquor bottle shortly after she had gone to bed that night. Police say the man set fire to newspapers on her bed in an apparent attempt to cover up his crime.

She was found on the floor of her bedroom by a city policeman. Both board members present, chairman Eric Silk and Shaun McGrath, noted concern over an immediate personality change undergone by Mrs. Scrimgeour as a result of her injuries.

The other case on the agenda involved a juvenile and was non-reportable.

$419,000 Grant to Ease Expected Tax Increase

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A $419,000 phone call from Queen's Park Tuesday set the city hall mood a-jangling in Belleville.

After weeks of budgetary brooding, the call was delightful news for Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

"What a relief!" came her immediate reaction. "We really were good news today."

The call meant the city treasury, now processing the cost of running Belleville in 1975, is that much richer, in a year of less-than-great financial expectations.

The amount is the total the provincial government is earmarking for assisting the city with a local government.

Added to an expected surplus, and increased assessment, it could mean city council enters its budget deliberations later this month with close to seven mills on the credit side, estimated the mayor.

The good news showed:

— An increase in such grants of about 19 per cent — to $1,860,000 in 1975, up from $1,557,000 the year before.

— An assistance grant for police operations of $251,000, up from $175,000 in 1974.

The extra $419,000 the city governed means the "city's financial picture is looking much brighter than it was a few weeks ago," said the mayor.

At that time she admitted to not being overly optimistic about new Ontario grant dimensions.

The mayor said the treasury is certain it has a surplus of about $400,000 and another $140,000 is on the books in new assessment.

Added to the increased provincial grants this totals about $800,000 — or close to seven mills, she estimated.

This will help offset wage increases and inflated material and services cost even before council gets around to debating any needed mill-rate increase, she said.

A big question mark still dangling for an answer, she admitted, was the size of additional demands on the city's budget.

Information filtering through municipal circles some time left local governments uncertain as to provincial intentions on how they would allocate their grants in this year's Ontario budget.

Now, "the province realizes the municipalities have to have more help . . . that the property tax cannot meet our needs," said Mayor Jeffery.

She recalled she recently had forecast city taxpayers should prepare for higher levies.

"I'll certainly be taking a new look at that statement now in light of what the province has done to help us," she said.

Board Remains Silent On Principal Dismissal

Board administrators are remaining mum over the public support given Monday night to Keene Public School principal Eugene Bright, who was dismissed from his post effective Aug. 31.

Prince Edward County Board of Education director John McNeil said "all in due time" when asked to respond to the public's demand of full disclosure of the dismissal.

About 200 parents, of a concerned committee, met Monday night at the school to give Mr. Bright their full support and demand the board provide "specific details" to substantiate the charges against the principal.

During the meeting it was revealed the board said Mr. Bright had a "low level of acceptance" in the community. It also believed Mr. Bright lacked disciplinary and management skills.

The committee will form a delegation and attend the April 14 board meeting to petition the trustees. Mr. McNeil said he could make no comment at this time.

Several parents at the meeting charged that Mr. McNeil did not have all the facts and made the decision on hearsay and innuendo. The principal has been offered a teaching position with the board in September.

Brighton Man Dies

A 56-year-old Brighton man, George Ellis Davis, was killed Tuesday when the vehicle he was driving was in collision with a car when he came in collision with another eastbound vehicle, driven by Neil A. Barr, of RR1, Bonaventure, N.S.

A passenger in the Barr vehicle, Elaine Dyke, 21, also of Nova Scotia, was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

The accident occurred about 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Steel Flowers

Grade 9 welding students Tim Caul (top) and Randy Woodcock came to the rescue of Quinte Secondary School authorities with these flowers, made out of steel scraps, to be used as decorations around the school. Apparently, real flowers at the school had a habit of ending up in the hands of girl friends. The welding class is taught by Ed Thibeault.

Detroit Resident Killed

A resident of a Detroit suburb was killed at about 5 a.m. today, his brother and the brother's daughter, injured in a collision on Highway 401 about a mile east of the Salmon River Bridge. At about 5 a.m. the American car was in collision with the rear of a semi-trailer that was moving at the time. Identification is withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Experts Argue Merits Of Utility Ownership

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Public utilities such as hydro, transit and water cost more under government supervision than they would if left in the hands of free enterprise, says Norm Manning, public relations officer for Ontario Hydro.

Mr. Manning — along with representatives of Belleville's transit and public utilities commissions and a representative of Bell Telephone — was speaking at a seminar at Loyalist College Tuesday.

"A publically-owned utility costs more," said Mr. Manning.

In utilities such as provision of municipal water and electricity, and in transit systems, "there are higher standards," said Mr. Manning.

"In carrying the responsibility of serving the public, we have the obligation to serve areas that are not profitable," in a business sense, he said.

Utilities such as Ontario Hydro must serve outlying areas that free enterprise wouldn't touch because of the costs involved, he said.

"Free enterprise would trim their operations to include only the profitable areas and further, free enterprise is more inclined to take a business gamble," said Mr. Manning.

Marylra Burtt, chairman of the city's transit commission said some of the blame of financial losses is due to "people on boards who are only interested in being appointed to a board".

She said the attitude some times has been, we're getting subsidied anyway, we might as well spend more money. "The strikes would be lighter if a private company owned the commission."

"Some people are only interested in another feather in their cap while climbing the political ladder," said Mrs. Burtt.

The city's transit authority provides a good example of the cost of running a public utility.

The transit commission faces increasingly large annual deficits with the deficit for 1979 estimated to reach $1-million said Mrs. Burtt.

When asked if the city really needs the transit commission, Mrs. Burtt replied "a lot of people are getting along without it right now". A strike of transit employees has halted the city's bus system.

All About The Bridge

Exhibits were available for scrutiny and provincial government professionals for questioning as first of two public meetings on Bay Bridge replacement project was held Tuesday at Loyalist.

Harry Vander Kooi, a project manager, outlines area under study for new Highway 14 link to Howard Lockwood, (right) as Ernesto Salvo, senior transportation and communications ministry designer, observes discussion. Second meeting will be held at Amelianburg, Township hall tonight.

Public Response Poor to Bridge Meeting

A provincial government study team is in Ameliasburg Township today wrapping up preliminary contact with local reaction to a new Highway 14 route across the Bay of Quinte.

The first phase of gathering public opinion — on siting of a replacement for the antique Belleville-Prinoemore Bay Bridge — ends with a public meeting in the township hall tonight.

Officials of the team — from the transportation and communications ministry — distributed hopes the Ameliasburg contact will draw wider response than a similar presentation Tuesday at Loyalist College.

Last year, the township's council passed a resolution calling for a Wallbridge-Loyalist Road route leading to Highway 401. This year, a new council resolved the new alternative be sited at or near its present location.

Aimed at facilitating residents in the Belleville shoreline area of the Bay the Loyalist afternoon-evening public information session ended with only 27 people prepared to monitor or quiz the experts at the night-time meeting.

Earlier in the day, about 40 more people trickled into the Loyalist gymnasium — some of them students — to view displays of the study area and personally talk over project proposals with the ministry team.

Peter Pinfold, ministry environmentalist, said the response was "smaller" than anticipated — or indicated by previous reactions from municipalities and residents since the study was first being organized late last year.

Both public sessions fill in the initial groundwork for the study, expected to take 18 months to complete.

It concludes the input stage which has seen information also gathered from local government administrators, politicians and provincial MPPs.

Tim Stevens, senior project manager, said Tuesday night that a traffic survey scheduled for summer months and the public meetings next fall/winter season may mean it could be September before the team returns to discuss the second phase.

The study area — reaching from Prince Edward at the west Bay from Point Anne to the CPR Trenton base near Bayside, already has three alternative sites proposed to the present Belleville — Ensmore structure — Point Anne, Wallbridge-Loyalist Road and Bayside.

Some Question Need For 14-401 Connection

Is too much emphasis being placed on a connecting link with Highway 401 in planning the new traffic route across the Bay of Quinte?

The concerns of local people must also be considered, provincial government experts studying location of a new Highway 14 link across the Bay were told Tuesday night.

The cautious came during a flighly-attended meeting on the issue at Loyalist College involving replacement of the years-old Belleville — Rossmore Bay Bridge Road.

Dr. John Clarke, who conducted the Amelianburg to his dental practice in Belleville, said people seemed "overly - obsessed" that the new Highway 14 should connect with Highway 401, Prince Edward County, be added, has "simple" access to the provincial throughway.

Roy Baldgett, a former Belleville resident now living in Carrollton, said current study — by transportation and communication officials — should be concerned with local needs. Most of the traffic across the present bridge involves people heading into Belleville, he said.

"It doesn't take too much study to my mind," said Mr. Baldgett.

Palmer Highrise Ready Next Month

The Palmer Rd. highrise will be complete in six weeks, says a spokesman for the new owners, Val Park Corp.

The 15-storey building containing 115 units along with four penthouse suites has been in construction for the last two years.

The project got the green light this week when the province's ministry of labor certified the building's two elevators. Until now, only the apartments on the first four floors could be rented.

"Elevators have always been our big hold up," said George Parkhurst, local management officer for Val Park.

Val Park is owned by Kingston contractor Antonio Valenti who purchased the building for $2.4 million. Until the building is completed by the former owners, Val Park Corp. will oversee on-sight work.

Mr. Parkhurst said at least 60 apartments will be rented by the end of the month and "the entire building will be complete within six weeks."

Demand Exceeds Supply Of City Garden Plots

The demand for homegrown food has spouted in Belleville. All 38 of the plots — planned by the city's parks department as Belleville's first venture in community gardening — have now been rented.

In fact, there are 18 more applications for such plots situated on land donated by Albert College between Wellington and Sidney streets — parks director Lloyd Syer said Tuesday.

The situation contrasts with that of two weeks ago when parks officials were expressing concern about the poor response of Bellevillians to the project.

Publicity on the problem was followed by heavy demand for the plots, leased for $15 for the summer.

The department has sufficient land left over to open about 40 more lots, Mr. Syer told his parks committee.

The response also brought a community garden, he said.

The Belleville Garden Club has leased one plot on which it plans to grow produce for the Cheshire Home for handicapped adults, said Mr. Syer.

Ski Club Funding Debated

The city's recreation - arena committee Tuesday took no action on an appeal for support from Batawa Ski Club.

The club last October first wrote the city asking for $500. It also sought aid from other local municipalities.

It received such help the club's executive "can see no way" to maintain its facility, the committee was told.

The committee — which has run instructional ski programs at the club for four years — decided the letter, delivered from last year, should be received. However, city manager Wilbur Purcell was asked to inquire if any money had been sent to the request.

Now 18 years in operation, the club last year had an operating deficit of $1,400. Money received over from previous seasons helped offset the loss. But the club now has only $800 in the bank, wrote its president, John McCormack.

Some 40 per cent of its 1973-74 income came from sale of advance membership. But lack of new — therefore poor — skiing is expected to "drastically" reduce this revenue.

The club, with a record of volunteer participation in its evolution, is hopeful that with a "few good" future seasons it will be able to install snowmaking facilities, wrote Mr. McCormack.

His appeal also solicited grants from Trenton, Frankford and Hastings County Councils.

With such help the club hoped to "keep ski recreation in the area . . . at a nominal rate".

Steel Flowers

Grade 9 welding students Tim Caul (top) and Randy Woodcock came to the rescue of Quinte Secondary School authorities with these flowers, made out of steel scraps, to be used as decorations around the school. Apparently, real flowers at the school had a habit of ending up in the hands of girl friends. The welding class is taught by Ed Thibeault.

Games Still Undecided

More information—from an equipment source — will be awaited before any decision is made on Belleville seeking the Ontario Games in the 1978 centenial year.

Clifford Belch, city recreation director, said he was still seeking information from Oshawa on its experience as host city to the games last year.

The information should be available at the next recreation-arena committee meeting, said its chairman, Ald. George Zegerac.

Macs Meet Stars In Benefit Game

Add Jean Paul Fayette and Jim Murdoch to the list of former Belleville McFarland stars who will be returning to the city for Saturday's Fred Goegan Memorial Night at Memorial Arena.

Both residents of Montreal, Fayette and Murdoch join Don (Turk) Barclay, Joe Lepine, Minnie Menard, Bep Bulduk, Johnny McLellan, Keith Montgomery, Goose Gosselin, Bobo Bobonis, Pete Conacher, Ragg Raglan, Don Hogan and Greg Currie in the list of famous names who will be back.

Not all of those were associated with the Allan Cup McFarlands (1938) and the World Champions (1959).

Currie, for instance, is connected with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association when he isn't handling manager's duties for Toronto Globals (now reported to be combined with Richmond Hill Tyrnes) of the Ontario Fastball League.

Greg is no stranger to sports fans in the Bay of Quinte area. At one time, he brought Toronto-based teams (among them Turk Broda and his All-stars) to this district for exhibition softball games.

Rounding out the McFarland lineup for Saturday's benefit game, are players who reside in the city and district. Among them are Gordie Bell, Lionel Boily, Wayne Brown, Floyd Crawford, Dave Jones, Jean Paul Lamirande, Keith Macdonald, Ed Marineau and Lee Szuzke.

The club will be wearing a new jet of McFarland-Canada sweaters for the game with the Syracuse Stars, a club Goegan played for and coached during the 1950s.

Dr. T.I. Woodley, club doctor with the McFarlands, will be the referee.

Tickets are on sale at Murray's Food Market, Reading and Greeting Shop, McKnight's Variety and from former McFarland players. Price is $1.

Leagues, Referees Set for Season

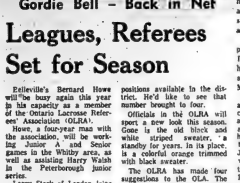
Belleville's Bernard Howe will be busy again this year as a referee as a member of the Ontario Lacrosse Referees' Association (OLRA).

Howe, a four-year man with the association, will be working Junior A and Senior games in the Whitby area, as well as assisting Harry Walsh in the Peterborough junior series.

Larry Stark of London joins Howe on assignment to the



BERNIE HOWE

The Belleville lacrosse referee would like to see more officials allotted for the Cobourg to Kingston area. At present he fills one of only two positions available in the district. He'd like to see that number brought to four.

Officials in the OLRA will sport a new look this season. Gone is the old black and white striped sweater, a standby for years. In its place, is a colorful orange trimmed with black sweater.

The OLRA has made four suggestions to the OLA. The referees' association suggestions include: a two-minute minor penalty for a player judged to be guilty of misconduct involving the referee; a limit on team penalties during a game (similar to the rule in use in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association); more control by club management in an effort to curb foul language, and two-game suspensions for players picking up game misconducts.

Last year, the OLA kept a chart of misconducts per team and the referees who assessed the sentences. As a result of this, certain clubs, managers, coaches, and players were reprimanded and disciplinary measures followed.

Referees do not escape scrutiny by the OLA. In 1974, eight of the 62 OLRA members were removed from duty or disciplined when they were found to be ruling in a manner described as "too strict".

Turning to the National Lacrosse League, teams in the Hamilton, Quebec City, Long Island, Lansdowne, Boston and Philadelphia will operate.

Bobcats Select Outstanding Players

This season wasn't exactly the best for the Belleville Bobcats, but it was a rebuilding year. Their ranks were filled with many rookies and that was proven Saturday night at Hillcrest Community Centre when the Belleville Bobcats Booster Club sponsored the Annual Bobcats Awards Night. Three out of four players honored for their achievements in the 1974-75 season were in their first year as Bobcats.

Wayne Calberry, a first year player from Trenton, and Jim Richardson, who completed his second season as a Cat, split honors as the Bobcats Most Valuable Player (MVP).

Calberry was used both as a defenceman and a forward-centre through the season. His aggressive, free-checking approach to the game made him a threat to every team the Cats played in the Metro Junior B League. The rookie was ninth highest scorer on the team with 12 goals and 13 assists.

Richardson was the Cats highest scorer, with 41 points, for the second season in a row. He was selected to the Metro Junior B East All-Star squad, but that was an honor that proved costly. During the game he suffered a shoulder separation and was lost to the team for the remainder of the year. Nevertheless, the sharpshooting right winger was named the club's MVP.

Scott Samis, from Bancroft, finished fifth in the Cats scoring race with 29 goals and 15 assists. His offensive output, and defensive prowess earned him the Rookie-of-the-Year award.

The Bobcats should count their blessings for getting the 17-year-old. He had a choice of playing for the Markham Royals, the Peterborough Lions and the Bobcats. Fortunately, for Belleville he chose to play here.

A third rookie figured in the awards. That was 17-year-old Al Jeffery. His family had moved to Belleville from the Montral area, just prior to the 1974-75 season. Jeffery completed his first year in the Metro League with 11 goals and 24 assists, for 35 points, and sixth spot in the list of Cat scorers. Those statistics along with his sportsmanlike conduct earned him the team's most sentimental Player Award (MPG). Awards however, are not unique to Jeffery. In the junior league in which he played in Montreal, he was voted rookie-of-the-year last season.

For the last two seasons the MGP trophy had gone to Rob Foster, last year's MVP trophy went to Mark Coates and the rookie-of-the-year was split between Bruce Clark and John Sargeant.

Coates was on hand Saturday night to present the Most Gentlemanly Player trophy in memory of Bill Cook to Jeffery. Ken Caswell did the honors for the Buck Fisher Memorial, which is the Rookie-of-the-year award and Don Foster presented the Bobby Hull Trophy, which is in memory of Foster's son Bill and Art Culloden both beyhood friends of Hull's to Calberry and Richardson.

COUGARS FILE SUIT

CHICAGO (AP) — A trustee for the former owners of Chicago Cougars filed suit Tuesday against the World Hockey Association seeking payment of $741,500 in unpaid taxes and bills. The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, contends Chicago Cougar Hockey Club, Inc., is entitled to at least $434,000 in WHA franchise fees. It also contends the WHA owes the organization $117,500 for loans made in 1973 and 1973, and $178,000 in pay federal income taxes.

Rangers and Blues Choke in Third Periods

Phil Bombards Kid Brother As Bruins Mangle Hawks 8-2

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

Maybe Phil Esposito needed only the sniff of Stanley Cup money to get the juices flowing again.

After enduring what was a slump by his standards in the second half of the National Hockey League schedule, the Boston centre re-discovered his first-half form Tuesday night in spark Boston Bruins to an 8-2 win over Chicago Black Hawks.

Phil scored three times as the Bruins drove his brother Tony from the Chicago goal in the first game of their best-of-three first-round series.

In other first-round opening games Tuesday night, New York Islanders shocked New York Rangers 3-2, Pittsburgh Penguins edged St. Louis Blues 4-3 and Los Angeles Kings defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4 in overtime.

Phil Esposito had an awesome first half for the Bruins, scoring 42 goals in their first 41 games, but produced only 19 goals in their last 39 games.

Tony, who had 29 saves, was lifted in the second minute of the third period after Phil's second goal gave the Bruins a 7-0 lead. The Hawks' goalie was replaced by Michel Dumas.

Greg Sheppard added two goals and Carol Vadnais, who also had three assists, Johnny Bucyk and Andre Savard one each for the Bruins. Dick Redmond and John Marks were the Chicago scorers.

The Rangers blew a 2-0 lead in a 91-minute stretch of the third period on what Islander goalie Glenn Resch described as good bounces.

"You guys saw it," said Resch. "We got three good bounces and three goals.

Ranger captain Brad Park scored his club's first goal and assisted on the second by Peter Stemkowski.

"You work hard for two periods and have the game go your own way and all of a sudden you lose it in the third, blowing a two-goal lead," Park said. "That's not the way the game is supposed to be played."

Clark Gillies, a rookie from Moose Jaw, Sask., who scored 25 goals in the regular schedule, scored the decisive goal for the Islanders.

His split Ranger defencemen Gilles Marotte and Ron Greschner late in the third period to get in position for the winner.

Billy Harris had scored the Islanders first goal and Jean Potvin tied it. Potvin skated in on the left side of Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin, shot wide but chased his rebound behind the net and scored before the netminder could regain position.

PHIL ESPOSITO
Scores Hat Trick

Now the Rangers must beat the Islanders on their own ice at Nassau Coliseum on Long Island Thursday night.

The Blues twice blew two-goal leads. The Penguins overcame a 3-1 St. Louis lead in the third period on a pair of goals by Chuck Arnason, then won the game when Pierre Larouche, a 19-year-old rookie, scored with 2:31 left in the game.

Larouche, who led all NHL rookies with 68 regular season points, slapped in a 30-foot shot from the slot after taking a pass from veteran Vic Hadfield who was behind the net.

Mike Murphy took advantage of a second chance to give the Kings their win. A minute after Torbette goalie Gord McRae blocked a shot by Murphy, the Kings regained possession with a 2-on-1 break and Murphy took a pass from Gene Carr and scored the winner at 4:39.

Never behind, the Kings lost a chance to win in regulation time when Toronto's Ron Ellis redirected a Dave Williams shot and knocked it past Rogie Vachon with 1:30 left in the third period.

A crowd of 12,426 saw Bob Berry and Carr give the Kings 1-0 and 2-1 leads. Blaine Stoughton had the other Toronto goal.

All four series came Thursday night at Chicago, Long Island, St. Louis and Toronto.

Nighthawks Take Lead

NEW HAVEN (AP) — New Haven Nighthawks, behind the strong goaltending of Brian Holderness, defeated Virginia Red Wings, 4-0 Tuesday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final playoff series in the American Hockey League.

The Nighthawks had finished in fifth and last place in the Northern Division but got into the playoffs by defeating Syracuse in a special playoff. Virginia finished first in the Southern Division.

Fincups Upset Petes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Hamilton Fincups defeated Peterborough Petes 3-2 Tuesday in the first game of their eight-point Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A semi-final series.

Petes' coach Roger Neilson had predicted a rough game but the Fincups came here and outplayed the Petes to erase the home-game advantage in the series.

Hamilton outshot Peterborough 28-22.

The next game is in Hamilton on Thursday.

Nordiques Win WHA Opener

Running Roads Tires Roadrunners

By AL McNEIL

Quebec Nordiques took advantage of a tired Phoenix team Tuesday night to defeat the Roadrunners 5-2 and take a 1-0 lead in their World Hockey Association best-of-seven, quarter-final playoff series.

The Roadrunners had spent all day Monday travelling from Phoenix to Quebec by way of Los Angeles, Chicago and back to Quebec. Coach Sandy Hucul said his club was forced into the round-about route when management of the Quebec team unilaterally decided the series would start Tuesday.

"It (the route) was the only way we could get here," Hucul said. "It's just a rotten deal by Quebec—Quebec made the decision to open here tonight, not the league."

The Phoenix coach could have a point. The other three quarter-finals were scheduled to begin at least 24 hours later than the Quebec-Phoenix match.

Tonight, Toronto Toros visit San Diego Mariners and Minnesota Fighting Saints open against New England Whalers at Hartford, Conn. The fourth series begins Thursday when Cleveland Crusaders visit defending champion Aeros at Houston.

REJEAN HOULE

The second game of the Nordiques-Roadrunners series is also scheduled Thursday at Quebec.

Quebec built up a 5-1 lead by in the first two periods. Winger Rejean Houle and Ronald Leclerc scored two goals each to raise a cheer from an otherwise listless crowd of 10,195 on hand for the Nordiques first playoff game in three seasons of WHA play. Michel Parizeau was the other Quebec goal-scorer.

The Nordiques had 2-0 before centre Robbie Ftorek scored for Phoenix at the 33-second mark of the second frame. But Houle's second goal of the night, this one on a power-play, and Leclerc's pair against Phoenix goalie Jack Norris, appeared to leave the Nordiques in the driver's seat as the third period started.

But the Roadrunners were stronger in the third period, dominating play and outshooting the Nordiques by a 31-4 margin.

The excellent work of Richard Brodeur in the Quebec net limited the Phoenix club to only one goal, a sizzling 40-foot wrist shot by left winger Dennis Sobchuk.

General manager Maurice Filion of the Nordiques said his team had taken a good lead in the first two periods and then "sat on it" during the third.

He said Brodeur's his fine performance had made the difference between victory or defeat for the Quebecers.

On the other side, Hucul said he was proud of the way his team had rebounded in the final period.

"When you're tired you make mistakes and you have no concentration," the Phoenix coach said. "But one team was as bad as the other—we came back and tied them up in their own end for all of the third period."

Takes from the Rich Gives to Religion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Calling himself a "black Robbin Hood," heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali said Tuesday that boxing against the likes of Chuck Wepner and Ron Lyle is "a big ripoff."

"I admit it. It feels like stealing sometimes. I just made $14 million beating a nobody like Chuck Wepner. I'll make another $1 million beating another nobody like Ron Lyle.

"Sure, what I'm doing is a big ripoff, but I can't stop fighting while I'm making all this money. I want to make as much money as I can. I want to take much money from the rich as I can."

Ali confessed to "fighting for the money and the money alone."

"I've got a little pride, sure, but I don't have to prove I'm a good fighter. Everybody knows that I'm the greatest."

In this resort city where, as Cassius Clay, he first won the heavyweight title from the late Sonny Liston, Ali has begun training for his championship bout May 16 with Lyle in Las Vegas.

"People don't know this, but almost 90 per cent of the money I make I turn over to the Muslim religion or buy a building for my religion."

"I guess you can call me the black Robbin Hood, I'm stealing from the rich to give to the black poor."

He talked about retiring in two or three years, after meeting top-ranked contenders George Foreman and Joe Frazier one more time, for $10 million and $7 million payoffs, respectively.

"I'm going to box Foreman and Frazier one more time and beat them, and then I'm going to hang it up. That will take a couple of more years, probably, and I'll be 35 or 36."

Game Plan Number Grows

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of Game Plan international card athletes rose to 91 Tuesday with the release of 1974 track and field ratings that include four A-card and seven international B-card competitors.

The 1974 total of 91 world-ranked athletes compares with 57 in 1973.

Under the Game Plan athlete classification system, A-card holders rank one to eight in the world in their sport, and B-card athletes are rated nine to 16.

The track and field listing is: A-card athletes — Marjorie Bailey, Vancouver, Marvin Nash, Toronto, Dabbie Brill, Victoria, and Glenda Reiser, Ottawa.

B-card athletes—John Beers, Merrit, B.C., Hugh Fraser, Ottawa, Claude Montmiry, Cap de la Madeleine, Que., Yvonne Saunders Guelph, Ont., Dan Shaughnessy, Toronto, Bruce Simpson, Ottawa, and Thelma Wright, Vancouver.

Game Plan, a co-operative effort of the federal government, provinces, Canadian Olympic Association and Olympic Trust to increase Canadian excellence in international sport, provides sports governing bodies with training and competition allowances based on classification and number of carded athletes in each sport.

Big Guys Feel Pressure As 39th Masters Approaches

TOM WEISKOPF

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Golf's great and near great gathered each other as rivals today. Nervously, they featured a constant sotto-voce—on the eve of the 39th Masters tournament.

"It's the only tournament I know that you start choking at the gate," said Arnold Palmer, now a graying 45, seeking to end a major victory drought that started with his fourth Masters title in 1964.

"My putting is good," said Tom Weiskopf, suddenly propelled into the role of co-favorite with Jack Nicklaus. "I don't feel the world is going to collapse if I don't win the Masters this year.

Perhaps the heaviest tension of all strummed the nerves of Lee Elder, the first black man to compete here and for months the centre of world-wide attention as a breaker of racial barriers.

"I do not feel like a great man in history," Elder told a presidential-style news conference Tuesday. "And that's the way I would like to keep it."

Elder pleaded to be left alone while facing the greatest challenge of his career, and added: "I am playing well enough to win if breaks go my way."

Nicklaus wore a mantle of supreme confidence—the product of a four-time winner—as he returned from a weekend break with his massive hitting power and probing artistry more evident than ever.

In his practice round, he almost holed out from the fairway on the ninth hole, thrilling a clubhouse gallery. Then he spotted a couple of putts about 30 feet from the hole and knocked them into the cup.

Nicklaus, winner of his last two tournaments—the Doral and Heritage—and his former Ohio State schoolmate, Weiskopf, who led all the way to last week's Greater Greensboro Open, have been established as the players to beat for the 1975 green jacket.

An international field of 78, including 54 United States and 17 foreign pros and seven U.S. amateurs, tees off Thursday for the first four rounds over the majestic 7,035-yard, par 72 Augusta National course.

Prize money is never announced until the last day of the tournament. It normally is more than $200,000 with $30,000 plus to the winner. Fringe benefits to the champion have been estimated at $1 million.

Helicopter Drops

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A helicopter being used to dry out the soggy outfield at Arlington Stadium fell several feet to the ground Tuesday but the pilot was not injured. The helicopter was chartered by Texas Rangers to fax the outfield dry before Tuesday night's American League baseball opener with Minnesota Twins.

Houston, Seattle Win NBA Playoff Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home-court advantage helps in the National Basketball Association. But it doesn't hurt to have a good defence, either.

Houston Rockets and Seattle SuperSonics had both Tuesday night, and as a result have a 1-0 lead in their best-of-three opening-round playoff series.

"I'd have to give credit to their defence," said New York coach Red Holzman after the Knicks dropped a 99-94 decision to the Rockets in their Eastern Conference opener. "They really played well, plus the fact that we shot poorly.

In Seattle, the SuperSonics played what coach Bill Russell called "our best defensive effort of the season."

It resulted in a 90-77 rout of the Detroit Pistons in their Western Conference opener. Tom Burleson held Detroit's Bob Lanier to a sub-par 15 points while scoring 19 himself.

Fred Brown came off the bench to pop in 23 points for Seattle, which led from the opening minute, held off an early fourth quarter Detroit rally to win going away.

In Tuesday's only American Basketball Association game, Seattle, which led from the 9-0 minute, held off an early fourth quarter Detroit rally to win going away.

Kentucky Colonels beat Memphis Sounds 128-105 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final.

Along with Houston's glittering defence, the youthful Rockets used 23 points by Calvin Murphy to whip the Knicks. The Rockets, in the playoffs for the first time ever, moved to a seven-point halftime lead, 46-39, by outscoring the Knicks 24-9 over the final 2:27 of the second quarter and Houston never trailed again.

Windsor Nullifies RCGA's Excuse

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Windsor group has offered to guarantees that the Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA) won't lose any money by staging the 1976 Canadian Open golf tournament.

The RCGA pulled the Open out of Windsor last Friday, citing adverse economic conditions in the Windsor-Detroit region.

A letter sent Tuesday by the committee to the RCGA guaranteed that any deficit incurred in staging the tournament would be covered by funds put up by local business interests, said Windsor realtor Gordon Ellis, who heads the group.

The RCGA announced in February that the $200,000 tournament would be held at the Essex Golf and Country Club. The association announced Friday it would be moved to a Toronto-area course.

"We've taken away their excuse for not holding the tournament here," said Ellis. "What this means is that we will satisfy their request for money."

Backing the guarantee are five major Windsor business firms and a local of the United Auto Workers. The group also hopes to get the backing of Detroit businesses.

The group has asked the RCGA to provide a target figure for gate receipts, based on receipts at past tournaments.

The group would then put the RCGA's 25 per cent of the target figure in escrow.

General manager Dave Moore of the Essex club, which is entitled to the other 50 per cent of the receipts, said the club does not share the RCGA's concern that Essex would incur a serious loss if the Open were held there.

Essex officials say the RCGA would not consider evidence that the economy in the Windsor area has taken an upturn. The RCGA asserts the economic situation has not improved in the area since February.

Mayor Bert Weeks said discussions between the Windsor and Detroit Chambers of Commerce will be opened on collecting the necessary funds. "They (Detroit) wanted the Open, too."

Monday night, city council passes a resolution officially protesting the decision in "the strongest language possible."

Exact wording of the resolution had not been formulated Tuesday.

Glen Abbey in Oakville was to have become the permanent site of the tournament in 1978, but poor growing conditions resulted in the switch to Windsor. LT PEC is urging devr

Booked in Soccer Flareup

LONDON (Reuter) — Three players were sent off and four others booked during an English League Third Division soccer match between Grimsby and Crystal Palace Tuesday night.

Referee John Hough sent off Jim Cannon and Alan Whittle of Crystal Palace and Mick Crossman of Grimsby following a flareup in the 79th minute.

Palace, fourth in the standings, were beaten 2-1 and lost a chance of making up ground on the leaders.

Plymouth Argyle, who won 2-0 at Huddersfield, took over the Third Division lead from Blackburn Rovers.

Argyle, in the First Division relegation zone, eased its worries with a 2-0 home win over Coventry City. Both goals were scored by Brian Kidd.

In Division III, Norwich City moved from fifth to third with a 1-0 away victory over Sheffield Wednesday.

Several of the matches were played in snow blizzards.

Poaching A Chicken

Most "leftover" chicken dishes taste better if they are made from poached chicken. If you have leftover roasted, broiled or fried chicken choose a leftover dish with a sauce or broth base.

Poaching chicken is easy. Simmer in water in a covered pot with a stalk of celery, an onion and a little salt until tender. Strain the broth and reserve it. Cut the chicken meat from the bones in generous slices. Any unused portion of the poached chicken may be stored in an air-tight container in the refrigerator or freezer for later use.

Robinson Debuts With Home Run

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Robinson did something in his club's first game of the season no other American League manager has done for more than 20 years.

He hit a home run.

The homer started Cleveland Indians on their way to a 9-3 win over New York Yankees.

Robinson faces the twin hurdles of being baseball's first black manager and trying to be the first man to play for and manage an American League team since Lou Boudreau piloted the Indians and Boston Red Sox in the 1940s and early 1950s.

Mrs. Jackie (Rachel) Robinson

FRANK ROBINSON

...son, the widow of the first black man to play in the major leagues, threw out the first ball and said she was "proud, proud, proud to be here."

Then Robinson, who will be the Indians' designated hitter, hit his 575th homer in his first time at bat as manager.

In Tuesday's other American League games, Oakland A's nipped Chicago White Sox 3-2, Minnesota Twins crushed Texas Rangers 11-4 and Boston downed Milwaukee Brewers 5-3.

A game between Kansas City Royals and California Angels was rained out at Anaheim while Tuesday's scheduled opener between Baltimore Orioles and Detroit Tigers was postponed earlier because of a Michigan snowstorm.

Robinson brought a Cleveland crowd of 36,304 to its feet with his first-inning homer off New York's George (Doc) Medich.

The first player in great him at home plate was winning pitcher Gaylord Perry, who had a couple of publicized squabbles with Robinson.

"I waited to let him know I was with him," said Perry, who scattered nine hits. "I was probably more happy for him than he was for himself."

Despite that dramatic homer, the Indians fell behind 3-1 in the second inning. But an old Baltimore team-mate of Robinson's, Boog Powell, hit a two-run homer and Jack Brohamer hit a run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly to beat the Yankees.

Vida Blue allowed four hits in seven innings and centre-fielder Bill North cut down the tying run at the plate in the ninth as the world champion A's opened their season.

Designated hitter Tony Oliva's three-run homer capped a six-run Minnesota assault against 25-game winner Fergason Jenkins in the first two innings.

Bobo, Montgomery doubled home two of Boston's three runs in the third inning and Tony Conigliaro made a triumphant return to the major leagues as the Red Sox spoiled the American League debut of Milwaukee's Hank Aaron.

Aaron, the Brewers' designated hitter, walked, struck out and grounded out twice. Conigliaro, Boston's designated hitter, helped set up a first-inning run with a hit-and-run single.

Tom Terrific At It Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver looked like Tom Terrific again Tuesday afternoon.

The veteran right-hander displayed the form missing last season when he surrendered six hits in pitching New York Mets to a 2-1 win over Philadelphia Phillies in their National League baseball opener.

"I'm ecstatic," said Seaver of his win over Steve Carlton.

In Tuesday's only other National League game, Atlanta Braves blanked Houston Astros 2-0.

San Francisco Giants and the Padres were rained out at San Diego. A game scheduled for Tuesday between Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cubs at Chicago's Wrigley Field was postponed last week because of a Midwest snow storm.

Seaver struck out nine batters and came up a winner because of Met newcomers Dave Kingman and Joe Torre. Kingman hit a long home run in the fourth inning and Torre delivered the game-winning single in the bottom of the ninth.

Seaver, who struggled to a sorry 11-11 season last year after being regarded as one of the game's top pitchers for many years, is the man on whom so much of the Mets' hopes rest for 1975.

"I couldn't be happier," said Seaver, who was nicknamed Tom Terrific when he became a star in the late 1960s. "I was strong all the way, throwing fairly hard with a good breaking ball. I didn't throw too many bad pitches."

The Phillies nicked him for a third-inning run on Dave Cash's double. But Kingman tied the one run and Perry scored on score in the fourth, golfing a two-out, two-strike pitch far beyond the left field wall.

Felix Millan opened the Mets' ninth with a single—only New York's third hit and first since Kingman's king-sized homer. Then Carlton walked John Milner on four pitches and missed with his first two to Torre.

On the next pitch, Torre singled.

Carl Morton's five-hitter and Derrell Evans' run-scoring single in a two-run fifth inning carried the Braves past Houston. Morton retired 16 batters in a row after a pair of first-inning singles before shortstop Larvell Blanks' throwing error ended the string in the seventh.

Ralph Garr singled to start the fifth against Astros rookie Doug Konieczny. Garr moved to third when Marty Perez was safe on shortstop Rezer Metzger's error, Evans singled for one run and Perez scored on Mike Lum's grounder.

HOW MUCH SHOULD GOOD NUTRITION COST?

The latest report from the Food Prices Review Board asks this question — a reminder that especially with rising prices, it's important that every penny spent for food should buy sound nutrition, and not frills.

Plan menus with Canada's Food Guide in mind, eating extra foods you want only after you have provided foods your body needs. Watch our Consumer Corners for help in shopping and meal planning. If you lack a Canada Food Guide, get one from a local welfare agency or drop us a line.

Menus providing basic body needs can be interesting and appealing for as little as $42.00 a week for a family of four. Add extras only when your budget and calorie needs allow.

ANDRE LACROIX

Lacroix Wins WHA Crown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andre Lacroix has captured his second scoring championship in the three-year history of the World Hockey Association, but he needed a late-season spurt and a record number of points to do it.

Lacroix picked up five goals and 12 assists in his last five games with San Diego Mariners to finish with 147 points, the most ever by a WHA player and the second-most ever in major-league hockey.

He had eight goals and 23 assists in his last 14 games, leading the Mariners to a second-place finish in the Western Division.

The late-season splurge enabled him to catch Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets, who led Lacroix by five points with five games to play. Hull's 143 points also topped the WHA record 139 points accumulated by Lacroix with Philadelphia Blazers in 1972-73.

Lacroix' point total ranks behind the 152 points Phil Esposito picked up with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League in 1970-71. His 106 assists topped the record 104 Orr had in that same season.

The 25-year-old native of Lasnor, Que., was a journeyman National Hockey League player until he joined the Blazers in 1972-73.

He was traded to New York Golden Blades before last season, moved with the Blades to New Jersey in mid-season and then moved with the club again this season to San Diego.

Hull deprived Esposito of another major league record he set in that same season when he scored his 77th goal Sunday night against San Diego. Esposito's record was 76.

It was the eighth season in an 18-year career in which Hull scored 50 goals. The points total was the highest of his career.

Quebec Nordiques' Serge Bernier, with 122 points, finished third in the scoring race, followed by Winnipeg's Ulf Nilsson with 120 and Houston's Larry Lund with 108.

Every man on the roster of Houston Aeros finished with a plus in the goals-for and goals-against department, led by defenceman Marty Howe with plus 46. Hull led the league with plus 55.

Gordon Gallant of Minnesota Fighting Saints was again the league's most penalized player, overtaking John Hughes of Phoenix in the final week. Gallant, who drew 223 minutes last season, had 203 this year to Hughes' 201.

There was a change in goaltenders in Houston this year, but the Aeros still took defensive honors. Ron Grahame led the league with a 3.03 average and Wayne Rutledge was second with 3.24.

Don McLeod, who moved to Vancouver Blazers after leading the league in the Aeros this season was eighth this year with 3.33.

Weightlessness Improves Product

HOUSTON, Tex. (Reuter) — One of the most valuable spin-offs from the world's first manned international space mission may be the manufacture of a space-made product which would dramatically improve communications through television, telephone and computer.

During the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project (ASTP) this July, the spacecraft will use a small electrical furnace to make optical fibres with qualities which cannot be produced on earth.

United States astronauts and Russian cosmonauts will use the furnace for several other experimental manufacturing processes.

Light waves through optical fibres are expected to transmit light, signals, images and other types of information.

Optical fibres have been made on earth for a long time but the earth's gravity field keeps scientists from developing them to the length and purity they need.

Gravity sets up convection currents and vibrations that prevent the growth of continuous and homogeneous fibres as the elements from which they are made are fused.

In the furnace, lithium fluoride fibres will be embedded in a sodium chloride (salt) matrix.

The Apollo-Soyuz space launch will blast off from the Soviet Union with two cosmonauts aboard. About 7½ hours later, three American astronauts will take off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in an Apollo spacecraft.

The Apollo crew will join the Soyuz in orbit and they will dock, linked together, some 240 miles above the earth for about two days.

Cave Warm in Winter Makes Ice in Summer

BEAMSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — With caves that form ice in the summer, mineral springs, traces of an Indian encampment and unusual wildlife and vegetation, Cave Springs Farm has always been a topic of rumor and conjecture.

The 113-acre farm nestled at the base of the Niagara Escarpment is located on a road which roughly follows the old Iroquois Trail which was the main Indian east-west route for centuries before the white man settled in Canada.

It is believed the area was inhabited by Neutrals, a tribe peculiar to the Niagara Peninsula. The Neutrals, who had inferior weapons and a less warlike disposition, were wiped out by the Iroquois in 1653.

Margaret Reed, who with her husband, an insurance salesman, occupies a 19-acre plot called Panacea Farm in the middle of the property, said: "There is an aura here that resists change."

She pointed to a cave and explained: "It is dry and warm in winter and forms ice in the warmest days of summer."

The warm air, apparently moistened by an underground lake, rises and hits the cool cave walls. Icicles form from rapid condensation, and eventually there is a heavy layer of ice like a refrigerator that needs defrosting.

Mineral springs flow from crevices in the escarpment walls. Recent scientific analysis has shown that the water might be a mild laxative and provide relief for some stomach ailments.

The property has changed hands frequently since the original Crown deed was filed in 1798.

Scotland Yard Still Tries To Convict Bermuda Killers

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuter)—Every two or three months two or three men in business suits arrive from England and go directly to police headquarters where, ignoring the commanding view of Hamilton harbor, they pore over batches of documents.

They are Scotland Yard detectives and their job is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to bring charges in a string of murders with black-power overtones that have shocked this tiny British colony which prides itself on its race relations.

The murders date back to 1973, when the island's 41-year-old police chief, George Duckett, heard a noise outside his house in a bleak and isolated section of the island and went out to investigate. He was shot dead.

Six months to the day later, Sir Richard Sharples, the island's governor, and his youthful aide-de-camp were gunned to death on the lonely grounds of Government House.

Sir Richard had only been on the island for five months. He had made what some residents describe as "the right noises." He and his aide, Capt. Hugh Sayers, had no known enemies. They had not been here long enough for that.

A few days later, two people were killed in armed robberies in local supermarkets.

Murder is not common on the coral islands of Bermuda nor, for that matter, is crime. The oldest of Britain's colonies, Bermuda has a well-earned reputation as a tourist paradise.

It has a population of 54,000, of which 60 per cent is black. This population is almost completely occupied with the care and feeding of nearly 500,000 tourists a year.

Although the island imports almost everything, its people have a tradition of full employment. "We believe in hustling, working hard," said one white.

He added: "We are not as subject to the winds of change as others. Black people here are shocked when they see some of those West Indian islands where people live in tin shacks."

Until the night of the Sharples murder, people here believed their island was different, not subject to the tensions that affected other parts of the world.

But the killings have stirred a re-evaluation.

Police launched a two-pronged probe. They searched Sir Richard's life.

At one time he had been a secretary of state for troubled Northern Ireland. Police wondered whether the Irish Republican Army had reached across an ocean to dispatch an enemy.

And, if so, was it just a coincidence that Duckett was killed six months before?

The first theory in the Duckett killing was that he had been murdered by a personal enemy. Gossip suddenly sprouted up about his life.

But in the Sharples case police arrested a half-dozen members of a black-power group called the Black Berets, a group they admit to knowing out of existence.

They built their case slowly, until today they are convinced they know who killed the three officials, why and how.

Well-informed sources on the island say police are convinced the killings were the result of the preaching of hatred of the islands politically and economically powerful whites.

But whatever evidence has been compiled, and informed sources say it is considerable, police keep asking themselves, "Do we have enough to convince a Bermudian jury."

Because of the racial makeup of the island, this jury would be mostly black and officials wonder whether a black jury could be made to believe that the crimes originated in their community.

Black Bermudians agree. As one woman teacher said: "He was nothing to us. No one had anything for or against him.

"This man and his aide were killed by marksmen. We are not marksmen. What do we know of guns?

The killings had the earmarks of a professional, hired killer. And we wonder who in the white community wanted these people out of the way."

The Black Berets were started by students educated in the United States in the 1960s, a time of demands for radical, often violent solutions to racial problems.

Police said they believe this shocking turned down to certain criminal elements on the island.

New Zealand Has Jobs For Almost Everybody

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — With unemployment ranging from five to eight per cent in many Commonwealth and Western countries, New Zealand remains a haven of nearly full employment.

The last statistics showed the total unemployed for the whole country at 3,135, slightly more than one-quarter of one per cent of the work force.

This was certainly a step increase on figures of a month before—up 68—but in fact the number out of jobs for any length of time is even smaller than the figures suggest.

In Auckland, for instance, 791 were registered as unemployed, but only 99 have been out of work long enough to qualify for unemployment pay.

Many register for jobs—and then find work themselves—and do not bother to report that they are no longer out of work. Some are described by labor department officials as "tongue-in-cheek" registrations—they put down names but make no effort to take up offers of jobs.

Many who register do not even bother to return in two or three days as requested to check for vacancies.

The chief employment officer in Auckland reports that if anything jobs are becoming easier to find and his office is finding fewer problems in placing applicants. The fact that there still are unfilled vacancies is self-evident to anyone driving through factory areas of Auckland. Notice boards outside premises in many of these industrial districts still carry signs advising that jobs are available immediately in a wide variety of callings.

The general explanation of New Zealand's continued freedom from unemployment is that there was a large surplus of vacant jobs. Even with tighter conditions in business and some companies reducing staff, the situation is only coming somewhere near balance.

Brahms' Requiem Draws Full House at Bridge St.

By EUGENE LANG

Bridge Street United Church was practically filled to capacity Tuesday evening as a packed congregation was present to hear the first performance ever in this city of Ein Deutsches Requiem Op. 45 by Johannes Brahms. The Bridge Street Church Choir (augmented) has attempted some of the formidable religious masterpieces ("Messiah" — "Elijah" — "Creation" — "St. Matthew Passion") in years once by, so once more Director Robert Reid has added to his laurels another five stars for an excellent performance of this demanding opus.

This, the composer's greatest choral work occupied him on and off for over 10 years. It was inspired by his sorrow after the tragic death of his personal friend and benefactor, Robert Schuman in 1856. After his mother in 1865 he added the fifth movement in memory of her. Parts of it were performed in 1867 and 1868, but it was not until 1869 that the work was given in its entirety as we know it today.

Among all oratorios since Beethoven Brahms' Requiem stands supreme and it could be considered as the most consistently choral work since Bach's B Minor Mass and Handel's Messiah. It is the most extensive score that Brahms has written. Using his unerring judgment Brahms compiled the text from the German Bible, treating of the transience of earthly things, the bliss of heaven, comfort in sorrow, the sad lot of mortals, resurrection, and the blessedness of those who die in the Lord. Although firmly rooted in the Christian faith, it is wholly removed from dogma in the narrower sense. It is, shall we say, addressed to all who believe, irrespective of creed.

Inspiration was the feeling everyone received from the 35 voices that sang with such conviction at all times. A perfect opening was attained with limpid simplicity and clarity as the serene singers detached themselves from the dusky background in the accompanying lower strings (here Brahms calls for no violins).

Splendidly stirring is the second movement, although this slow march has a grisly and grotesque tone in its opening and closing offset from the more cheerful tone in the sunshine in the middle section. Sonority was the keynote in this section, although in some measures the accompanying pizzicato strings were nearly inaudible by the forcefulness of the voices.

William Perry, the bass soloist in the third movement declared his phrases with dramatic declamation. The concluding fugue was sung with inexorable increasing intensity as it carried the theme up and impetus over the long D pedal point from lower strings and foot of organist — one of the most remembered series of pages in all religious music.

The fourth section was attained with lilting gait of orchestra under Daniel voices that wafted with non blatant blending. Brahms here gives both performer and hearer a restful respite from the violent emotions of the former two movements.

Soprano Hazelanne Reid brought to her solo an emotion of maternal consolation in a beautifully conceived realization of this lovely movement that the composer intended as so rightly to the betterment of the entire Requiem.

The sixth section was given an exultant exhortation by the choir, with organ and orchestra giving full support to overpowering passages that carry the final movement and fugue to its blazing eruptions. As the voices crowded eagerly upon each other all were engaged in a whirlwind of enthusiasm, and by this we conclude the nearly 1,000 listeners.

Once again Robert Reid has given us an inspired recreation of one of the 'greats' in all sacred musical literature. The long hours of plodding practice received their just rewards in flourishing fruition. The final applause in a standing ovation was sufficient proof as to the reception of the Requiem by the congregation.

The program began with a warm up anthem, "Praise" by Alec Rowley, which saw choir in instant command of its vocal blendings and powers. Blare of trumpets in final chord brought this lieutenant selection to stirring end.

We can safely say that the 23-piece orchestra gave of its best at all times, and was a decided asset to the performance. Dr. Frederick R. C. Clarke of Kingston provided sensitive organ accessories as befits the various scorings.

The well-known Hallelujah Chorus from Messiah by Handel was sung in rousing recognition by the choir, this sending a lot of listeners away with a feeling of familiarity, as, no doubt the Requiem is not the best known composition to local audiences.

Two congregational hymns were sung, the final one arranged in impressive fashion by S. Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street Church who was on hand, but because of recent illness was not available for his usual role at the Casavant.

Opening welcome and closing prayer was given by Rev. George K. Ward, Minister of the host church.

In summation, a superlative performance by all — but we hope that this Requiem will be done again, and in its entirety. The last movement is so much a part of the work as a whole with its long emotional decrescendo that brings us back to a liveable world that without its inclusion the full message as Brahms intended is not completely realized.

This machine, designed by Ryo-Cattean of Walterioo, France, is the mechanical device which will be used by the Ontario Lottery draws. The first draw will be made Thursday May 15. Regular draws will be held every other Thursday for a grand prize of $100,000 and a variety of other cash prizes. Tickets will cost one dollar each, and all prizes will be tax free.

Through the Ministry of Culture and Recreation, the net proceeds from the lottery will be used by the government to support programs for physical fitness, sports, recreation and culture in Ontario. The Ontario Lottery Corporation hoped, within the next three years, to be selling tickets at the rate of $190 million per year, and that about $40 million annually would then be available to support the public projects.

NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Sills made a triumphant Metropolitan Opera debut Monday in The siege of Corinth to end a 30-year road and cap a career that has made her a superstar here and abroad, but not at the Met.

Miss Sills's Met debut followed a long-running feud between the Brooklyn-born diva and Sir Rudolf Bing, now retired manager of the opera company.

However, both have been softpedaling their historic inability to get together.

"There were one or two attempts to have her sing, but they just didn't work out," said Bing recently.

"I was either busy some where else or I didn't like the roles he suggested," Miss Sills said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock singer Stevie Wonder, 24, became the father of his first child Monday afternoon.

Wonder was at the side of Yolanda Simmonds in St. Luke's hospital when their eight-pound, one-ounce daughter was born.

They named her Aisha Zahia—African words for intelligence and strength.

Carney Best Actor

Godfather Still Oscar Favorite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Art Carney, Ellen Burstyn and the movie about the Mafia were the stars of the 47th Academy Awards. Francis Ford Coppola's The Godfather, Part II won top honors with six Oscars, including best picture.

The sweep made the 36-year-old Coppola Hollywood's undisputed king, but Carney, 56, was the sentimental victor of the festivities.

"I'm numb, I'm happy, why should I be embarrassed—I'm Irish!" he said after his surprise win as best actor for playing a 75-year-old cross-country traveller with a cat in Harry and Tonto.

Carney's win was a delight on the audience, which rose in tribute to the veteran television actor. It was his first starring role in a movie.

Miss Burstyn, nominated twice before, finally won as best actress for her role as the errant housewife with ambitious as a singer in Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore.

Robert De Niro, the young Mafia don of Godfather-II and Ingrid Bergman, one of the suspects in Murder on the Orient Express, won as supporting performers.

The awards shaped up as producer-writer-director Coppola's night, despite heavy betting on Chinatown which won only an Oscar, for original screen play.

The Godfather sequel was the film Oscars for best direction and screen play adaptation (with Mario Puzo), as well as for art direction and original dramatic score.

It was also a "family" matter, to put it mildly—Coppola's father, Carmine, composed the score with Nino Rota and his sister, Talia, was nominated as best supporting actress in the film.

But Coppola said after the awards that he was surprised that his film won best picture over the original screenplay for The Conversation.

Two years ago, Coppola lost in the best director's race for The Godfather, but the film and its star, Marlon Brando, won Oscars.

Miss Burstyn, in a New York play, and De Niro, making a film in Italy, did not claim their awards. Miss Bergman was there and she received a standing ovation from the admiring crowd.

"All good things come in three," she commented afterwards, referring to her previous wins as best actress for Gaslight (1944) and Anastasia (1956).

Only Helen Hayes and Jack Lemmon have also won Oscars in both the main acting categories and in a supporting role.

Amarcord, Frederico Fellini's affectionate autobiographical film of prewar Italy, was named best foreign language film of the year.

Best song went to We May Never Love Like This Again, from The Towering Inferno. The disaster film also won for cinematography and editing.

The closest thing to controversy came when producer Irwin Schneider accepted the award for best documentary feature for his film opposing the Vietnam War, Hearts and Minds.

The producer read a telegram of friendship from the Viet Cong delegate to the Paris peace talks.

Later in the program the Motion Picture Academy answered through Frank Sinatra, master of ceremonies: "We are not responsible for any political references made on this program tonight and we are sorry they were made."

The award to De Niro was a thrill since he was contending with two actors — Michael C. Gazzo and Lee Strasberg—from the same film, and with his sentimental favorite, Fred Astaire of The Towering Inferno.

There also was a question whether De Niro's role was actually supporting or of full star status with Al Pacino.

The proceedings were marked by two sentimental bouquets to the past.

Miss Bergman presented a special Oscar to veteran French director Jean Renoir, too ill from a recent operation to attend the ceremonies.

Said Miss Bergman: "In the cinema universe, he is the living god.

John Wayne, who appeared in four Howard Hawks films, presented another special Oscar to the veteran director.

Hawks recalled conversing with John Ford in the late director's final days and hearing Ford's prediction: "You're gonna get an award."

"If you insist on opening 20-point two notrumps, you ought to learn how to play the dummy," remarked North.

"What could I have done?" replied South. "West made a brilliant defensive play and upset my applecart."

South won the club lead with dummy's queen and decided that his best chance for nine tricks would be to collect three diamonds. So he led a low diamond and stuck in his 10. West won and shifted to the 10 of spades.

South won and led his deuce of clubs with every intention of creating an extra entry to dummy by finessing the nine. Unfortunately, for that plan West played his 10 spot and South was one entry short. He did take a successful diamond finesse but that gave him only two diamond tricks and the combination of the bad spade break and the unfortunate position of the king of hearts left him one trick short.

Do you see how South could and should have played the hand?

At trick one he should have played dummy's ace of clubs and dropped the king under it. That play would have left him with two more entries in dummy and the means to score three diamond tricks.

Of course, if East had shown up with the 10 of clubs South would have looked rather silly. But those are the things that are sent to try mens souls.

Herpes Simplex Attacks Genitals

By G. C. THORYESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoreson: My husband was treated for herpes progenitalis several years ago, but no cure resulted and it crops up sporadically. I'd like any information you may have on this.—J.S.B.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Could you give me some information on herpes progenitalis infection? I've had it for over a year and only recently found out what it is. My last doctor said it is an incurable virus and that they are working on a vaccine for it.

Is this correct? How do you develop this infection, and is it contagious?—Mrs. V.M.

I continue to get a great deal of mail on this subject.

The viruses that give man trouble are usually identified by the "target organs" or localities of the body which offer them the most inviting environment. This is readily noted in such diseases as pneumonia and hepatitis (which derive from Greek words for lungs and liver, respectively). The herpes simplex II virus is the infecting organism in herpes progenitalis, and its target is the genitalia of both men and women, since it is passed on by sexual contact, it meets the description of a venereal disease.

This is a stubborn virus, and for the time being, at least, seems to be resistant to treatment, a fact both you and I have learned during your long periods of infection. However, effective treatment is a prime goal of those doing research in the field of communicable diseases.

There is a drug called Stoxil (idoxuridine) which has been effective against a form of the herpes virus thath attacks the eye. This drug has also been used against the genital herpes, but with mixed results. And I am told that other new drugs are being studied for anti-herpes II treatment. But they have not been released for general use—which means that they may be used only in carefully controlled experimental situations. However, results in the small number of experimental cases so far look encouraging.

Effective vaccines against virus infections are not easy to come by, as many has learned. Many years of research were required to develop protection against German measles, polio, mumps, smallpox, and other diseases. But the whole field of virus research holds much promise for the future.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: A young couple, married three years, are hesitating to start a family of their own for fear drug experimentation when they were in college would adversely affect their baby.

Is there a test to determine whether or not circumstances have been damaged, or to otherwise reassure them?—Mrs. P.A.P.

There is some evidence that chromosomes may be altered by drug use, but whether this carries genetic defects is not quite clear.

There are some tests that can be made, I understand, but the average physician would not be equipped to conduct them since they are highly sophisticated, complicated and expensive procedures. They are usually done in medical centres.

The couple might seek genetic counselling, a new specialty which has only recently emerged in medicine. In this they could have their question answered to the extent that an answer can be given, and go on from there. Your local medical society, or any large hospital in your area, might be able to tell you where such counselling is available.

It is known that some damage can occur to a fetus exposed to drug abuse in the mother during pregnancy. This is why physicians avoid prescribing many drugs during pregnancy, especially during the early months.

Polish Is Taught

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Polish has been added to the list of languages taught at the University of Waterloo. Since 1971 the subject has been offered by the department of German and Slavic languages and literatures.

Anna Newman, the course lecturer said there is about 10 registered students plus two or three who are auditing it.

She said the suggestion that the course be offered came from the Polish community in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

Mrs. Newman, who moved to Canada two years ago after marrying a Canadian said the reason people wish to study Polish is that they are of Polish ancestry and want to improve their ability in the language, as well as their appreciation of that country's literature and culture.

"Poland has, by the way, a very beautiful literature."

Others interested in the course are people with Polish or Slavic backgrounds who simply want to learn the language or non-Slavic people who have some knowledge of other Slavic languages and want to add to it, said Mrs. Newman.

Also, there are engineers and scientists who want a reading knowledge so they can keep up with Polish scientific publications and people travelling abroad or studying the Polish culture, she said.

She foresaw the possibility that the university will some day offer a full four-year honors program in Polish including a cultural studies course.

Not Up To Scratch

LONDON (CP) — The governors of Slowe public school have been warned that some health and hygiene standards are not up to scratch. Local public health inspectors went to the school near Bockingham when 30 boys suffered from food poisoning after eating roast pork.

Party Lines Broken Over MPs' Pay Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Party-up ranks were broken Tuesday as the Commons resumed debate on the government's plan to increase the pay of MPs and senators.

Charles Caccia, deputy government whip, spoke against the proposed 23 1-3-per-cent increase. It would raise the annual pay and tax-free allowance of MPs to $36,000—$26,000 in salary, $10,000 in expenses.

But two New Democrat MPs announced their support after their parliamentary leader, Ed Broadbent, had outlined the party's opposition.

Mr. Caccia (Toronto Davenport), whose job as deputy government whip includes rounding up Liberal members to vote along party lines, said he disagrees with the approach and the timing of the bill.

He said MPs salaries should be studied by an independent commission and that any pay increase approved now should not take effect until the next federal election, expected in 1972.

"This bill was produced here internally with very little, if any, consultation with the outside world," Mr. Cacci said. "It is no surprise that the public was rather dismayed and that a certain degree of resentment developed."

Parliament should adopt a procedure that would make the public—"part of the process rather than alienating them".

He suggested that delaying an increase until the next election "would indicate our intentions, prepare the public and develop greater support for a measure of this kind."

Despite his opposition, Mr. Caccia indicated he will accept a pay increase.

"On this measure, as with any other measure, the will of the majority of this House will rule," he said.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) and Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) both called for immediate passage of the raises.

Mr. Leggatt said the proposed increases are "long overdue and well justified." Mr. Gilbert said, however, that he "would be quite happy with $50,000 a year plus a cost-of-living allowance."

In addition to the immediate increase in salaries and allowances, the government proposes tying the salaries to the industrial wage index, which presumably would provide automatic annual increases.

Mark MacGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) said higher salaries for MPs would safeguard the public interest in addition to providing fair pay for parliamentarians.

The indexing plan was introduced before Christmas when the government, faced with a public outcry, backed down from its original proposal for a straight 50-per-cent increase. Mr. Broadbent has said the wage index would provide higher salaries by 1978 than the original proposal.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the government's original proposal for a straight 50-per-cent increase "did damage to the economy of this country." He refused the last increase, which took effect Oct. 8, 1970.

The government's announcement sparked inflationary wage demands from other groups, Mr. Knowles said. A case could be made "for some increase" in MPs' salaries, but the one proposed was the "height of irresponsibility."

He also criticized the Progressive Conservatives, asking "what they would have said if some other sectors of the economy had raised their salaries by 50 per cent."

Ontario Opposed To Any Oil Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario is adamantly opposed to any increase in the price of crude oil produced in Canada, Premier William Davis confirmed Tuesday.

"Ontario's position is that there should be no increase," he told a news conference following an informal meeting with premiers Peter Lougheed of Alberta and Robert Bourassa of Quebec.

Premier Bourassa also wants no substantial increase in the price of domestic crude, but Premier Lougheed was expected to discuss today for a substantial increase at the two day federal-provincial first ministers' meeting on energy and the economy.

Mr. Davis confirmed the position enunciated by Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough when the Ontario budget was brought down Monday—that an increase in oil prices would only feed the fires of inflation.

"Inflation is still a very real problem in Canada and not an awful lot is being done about it," the Ontario premier said. GOT MONEY

He added that since the price of oil was jacked up to $6.50 a barrel for Canadian consumers, of $1.5 billion, 95 per cent went to the oil-producing provinces and the federal government.

That added revenue was not reflected in new jobs in the oil-producing provinces, Mr. Davis said.

The premier emphasized that an increase in oil prices could affect Ontario, Canada's wealthiest province, it could have an even more adverse effect on other provinces.

"It's not a totally parochial stance we're taking," he said.

Mr. Davis said that the ultimate decision on the rise of oil prices rests with the federal government.

"We're going to take a very firm position, I think that is evident," he said.

Service Will Decline If Rate Hike Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada must have rate increases or users of its telephone and other services will face "a deterioration of services," Jean de Grandpre, president, told shareholders at the annual meeting Tuesday.

He noted other utilities, like Ontario and Quebec Hydro, have stated similar positions recently and have warned consumers those rates are going to cost 10 per cent to 15 per cent more annually for some years.

He indicated Bell Canada feels it should have a rate rise in the area of five per cent annually.

The rate rise granted by the Canadian transport commission in August, 1974, generated only $13 million more revenue last year. But the 30-per-cent surtax on non-manufacturing corporate income announced in last November's federal budget cost Bell about $7.9 million, or 21 cents a share, in higher taxes.

Bell Canada had profit of $224.4 million or $5.37 a share in 1974, compared with $205.4 million or $5.18 a share a year earlier.

In response to a shareholder's question, chairman Robert Scrivener revealed that Bell's subsidiary, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., has obtained more than 99 per cent of the shares of Microsystems International Ltd. under a share exchange offer.

New Bill Sets Limit To Hen Production

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart introduced a bill in the legislature Tuesday to provide a new set of controls on Ontario's egg producers.

The bill is designed to control the number of hens in the province, a ministry spokesman said. Existing controls place a quota on the number of eggs that can be marketed.

By switching the control mechanism from eggs to birds, it should be easier to monitor the number of eggs reaching the market, the spokesman said.

Not Parallel Situation

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen says the current military offensive by North Vietnam does not represent a "similar parallel" with United States bombing of Hanoi.

In explaining to the Commons why the Canadian government has not lodged an official protest with Hanoi—a Commons resolution denounced American bombing in January, 1973—the minister said the "worthwhileness" of such a move must be considered.

Because they're used cars. And there's never been a rustproofing process that could work effectively on a car that's already started to rust.

Until now.

Now there is one. And only one. The only rustproofing system in the world that really works on used cars.

It's Tuff-Kote. Which makes Tuff-Kote dealers the only people in the world who can rustproof not only new cars — but cars that are anywhere from 5 months to 5 years old.

What's more, they'll guarantee the job is writing. Something no other rustproofers in the world will do.

Because they don't have Tuff-Kote's exclusive double coating system for rustproofing both new and used cars.

So whether you're driving a new or a used car, bring it to a Tuff-Kote dealer and get the protection of total rustproofing. Your car will not only last longer — it'll be worth more when you trade it in.

Oil Price Accord Effort Dropped

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 premiers have failed to reach any agreement on future oil and gas prices and after a further token discussion today, they tackled broader economic issues.

The failure of the petroleum talks became obvious Wednesday, the opening day, when the provinces—particularly Alberta and Ontario—dug in on uncompromising terms.

Even a private Trudeau dinner Wednesday night made no dent in the differences.

"If there was any hope of agreement yesterday, the dinner proved otherwise," one premier said.

So the 11 leaders went behind closed doors today to compose a temporary finale to the oil-gas question, before another conference before June 30 when the current freeze on crude oil at $6.50 a barrel expires.

They have said they want some impact in the federal budget that Mr. Turner has said he hopes to deliver before May 31.

This discussion was carrying through lunch and the conference was to conclude following this closed session.

There has been some hope that despite the obvious and strong disagreements on petroleum prices, some settlement might materialize at the private dinner.

"It was a very friendly, happy and convivial occasion," said Premier William Davis of Ontario. "But in that atmosphere it was clearly decided we couldn't agree on price increases."

He, like other premiers, felt the announcement of a May federal budget just one day before the conference began might have undermined the talks.

"How can we agree on prices that will have a profound effect on inflation when we don't know what will be in the budget?" asked Mr. Davis.

The alternatives for a settlement at this stage before June 30 seem to be another conference or a unilateral federal decision to impose the petroleum price increases. It says must come, raising domestic prices closer to the higher world levels.

On the Commons agenda is a proposed petroleum administration act that can get action, although it will undoubtedly would take such legislation to the Supreme Court of Canada, if it is widely observed.

Ontario Premier William Davis and Nova Scotia's Gerald Regan, who took the strongest positions against a price increase, agreed after the private dinner that an agreement seemed out of the question at this conference.

"I think we're moving to lack of agreement," commented Mr. Regan after the dinner. "My guess is we'll be back here in June."

Mr. Davis agreed there was little chance of a new price being set now. He said another conference probably was necessary within a month or two.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed, whose provinces produces the bulk of Canada's oil and gas, and wants an increase, said he wasn't disappointed about lack of progress Wednesday.

"We will not set a figure at this conference," he predicted to reporters.

Before Alberta could agree to a price, Mr. Lougheed said, it wants a better indication of economic moves the other premiers have in mind. Alberta also might want to see what Finance Minister John Turner proposes in the federal budget to be brought down before the end of May, he added.

Allan Blakeney, premier of Saskatchewan, likened the opening statements of the first ministers to bargaining positions, it was not surprising to them, he said, to have Ontario, Nova Scotia and other consuming provinces such as Manitoba and New Brunswick, reject any increase for starters.

Neither Mr. Trudeau nor Mr. Lougheed mentioned any figures. But Mr. Blakeney, outside the conference, mentioned a $2 or more increase la private for a barrel of oil unless some of Saskatchewan suggestions were accepted.

One of the Blakeney proposals is to create an energy development fund for any increase over the $6.50 a barrel now in place until June 30.

The only outwardly happy man around the table was British Columbia Premier David Barrett after Mr. Macdonald announced Ottawa plans to increase the export price of natural gas going to the United States.

Mr. Macdonald also said that the federal government wants the price of natural gas "over the next few years" to climb to parity with oil.

At one point Mr. Macdonald rejected Mr. Regan's claim he was a leading proponent of higher energy prices for Canadians.

Mr. Macdonald replied he was laying down the facts so the premiers could make a decision.

Mr. Macdonald said Canadians now understand "that the era of cheap energy has ended". There was nothing to support the view that Canadians could go on forever enjoying substantially lower prices than the rest of the world.

The world price for a barrel of oil is about $5 higher than that paid in Canada.

Mr. Macdonald said he has assurances from leaders of oil companies that they will put their investment from a price increase into exploration and development in Canada.

"In addition to bringing on new discoveries, higher energy prices would lead Canadians to restrain the rates of growth of demand and to use these resources more wisely."

Phnom Penh Airport Within Mortar Range

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Rebel forces broke through a gap in the government's defence line today and moved to within two miles of Phnom Penh airport, military sources said. They said the advance put the insurgents within medium mortar range of the vital airstrip.

Cambodia's acting president, Sauthan Khoy, presided over an emergency cabinet meeting as the military situation around this city deteriorated following insurgent attacks on the capital and the northern lines.

A high-ranking American diplomat met with Phnom Penh leaders before the cabinet discussions began, the sources added.

It was predicted that the government will make an important announcement after the returns here of Prime Minister Long Boret, and speculation is rife that it will be made to coincide with or before President Ford's speech tonight.

Attack Renewed

SAIGON (AP) — The battle for a provincial capital 40 miles east of here entered its second day today as North Vietnamese forces began their second assault at daybreak.

Military analysts said it was still too soon to say whether the repeated attacks on Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province, were the prelude to a drive on Saigon.

The attack on Xuan Loc, a city of more than 100,000 residents, was the first major assault in this region since the Communist offensive began five weeks ago.

Ford Will Seek Aid for Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford met with Democratic and Republican leaders Wednesday to discuss a major policy speech he will deliver tonight asking Congress for increased military aid for besieged Indochina.

Ford's speech will be broadcast by television and radio networks beginning at 9 p.m. EDT.

House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill Jr. said Ford told 16 congressional leaders the address will be the most serious he will make to Congress as president.

Dramatic Warming Trend Predicted

HAMILTON (CP) — A Columbia University scientist said Wednesday that the world may experience "a dramatic and sudden warming trend in the next few decades.

W. S. Broecker of Columbia's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory told an international symposium on environmental biogeochemistry organized by the Canada Centre for Inland Waters that a cooling trend in the last few decades will probably end soon.

"By the first decade of the next century we may experience global temperatures warmer than any in the last thousand years," he said...

He said the effects of carbon dioxide—which acts to warm the earth's atmosphere—will reinforce a natural upturn in global temperatures.

Postmen and Treasury Board Remaining Mum on Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for the letter carriers and the government are playing their cards close to the vest on a majority conciliation report released Wednesday that proposes pay increases totalling $84 a week over a two-year agreement.

C. M. Drury, acting treasury board president, said in the Commons Wednesday that both parties had agreed not to comment on the report, while Letter Carriers' Union president Roger Decarie said union leaders were still studying its proposals.

Mr. Decarie also said the union is not talking about a strike, raising hopes that a settlement may be reached. The union is legally entitled to strike Monday.

However, even if the union accepts the report, government negotiators could turn it down.

The conciliation report, concurred in by the union nominee to the three-man board, would raise weekly pay to letter carriers with three years experience to $243.60 by July 1, 1976, from the current $177.60.

The report proposes a pay increase retroactive to Jan. 1 of 70 cents an hour; another 30 cents on July 1; a further 40 cents next Jan. 1 and a final raise of 30 cents on July 1, 1976. Hourly wage now for the letter carriers after three years is $4.44.

Egg Control To Be Tighter

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial agriculture ministers reached broad agreement Wednesday on measures to give the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) greater control over production and marketing of eggs.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, chairman of the meeting, said he expected an agreement to be signed within two weeks.

The agreement would provide for an expansion of CEMA's inspection and monitoring system to exercise continual surveillance of the national hen flock to ensure that producers remain within their quotas. Greater accuracy in reporting all egg production and movement will be ensured by the licensing of all producers, dealers, graders and vendors.

Catch-up Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration warns there will be fewer jobs and more inflation if labor unions press for higher wages than the recession weakened economy can afford. The Council on Wage and Price Stability noted that wage increases lagged behind price increases last year, but said attempts to recover this loss in 1975 could be counter productive.

He pointed out that body heat is increased by strenuous physical activity, such as making love.

U.S. Oil Price Boost Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a surprise vote to allow 30 per cent higher prices for a share of the nation's oil production, the Senate is considering whether Americans should be forced to reduce energy consumption.

Final action was scheduled this evening on a bill giving the president broad authority to impose conservation measures during an emergency, and requiring the states to enforce fuel-saving measures.

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee planned to continue its consideration of various options for an energy tax package.

In a significant victory for oil-state senators, the Senate voted Wednesday to allow higher prices for a portion of domestic oil production. Sponsors said the action would provide the incentive for pumping 19 billion barrels of oil that would not be produced at today's frozen price of $5.25 per barrel.

Boy Has Clocked 560 Miles In Winter Track Training

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Andrew Lowe is getting warmed up — by using a snowbound city park.

The 14-year-old has been using Zwick's park as a training ground for getting in shape for his collegiate's warm-weather athletics.

Almost every day since January, Andrew has donned his jogging suit after school and trots a round trip of three miles from his George St. home to Zwick's.

Once there he jogs another seven miles, a solitary figure between the snowbanks flanking park roadways.

The unpeopled, chilly park is an ideal spot for his workout. It's spacious, has good pavement and little traffic.

Andrew — who moved here with his family from Pennsylvania last fall and now attends Belleville Collegiate — chose the park for just those reasons. In a community the size of Belleville, he says, it's difficult to find a spot that meets all the qualifications for long-distance, undisturbed jogging.

He'll keep the beat on his lumbering-up until the warm weather arrives and he seeks to join the collegiate's track and field events.

By then he'll also know how many miles he's jogged to quality. He keeps a daily track record. To date, he's marked up 560 miles.

Uniform Downtown Shopping Hours Possible

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Downtown businessmen will soon be surveyed on their outlook towards uniform store hours.

Gerry O'Shaughnessy, president of the downtown association, said Tuesday a questionnaire has been circulated to each member of the association and replies are already being returned.

"We want a good amount of input from the merchants themselves before the association executive makes any recommendation on uniform hours," he said. "We must have a good communication link between the executive and the members . . . we don't want to appear to be ramming anything down the merchants' throats."

If uniform shopping hours are accepted by the downtowners, customers will be able to shop with the certainty that if one store is open all the rest will be open.

War Effort Surpassed Canada's Size: Plomer

Canada's effort in the First World War was far out of proportion to her size and manpower, Commodore James Plomer told Quinte-area veterans Wednesday night, and "don't let us forget that. The Canadian identity was established at Vimy Ridge."

Comm. Plomer described Canadian forces as pioneers who had to be resourceful volunteers — "A citizen army, much as we have today in our militia."

Guest speaker at the annual banquet to commemorate the 38th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge, Comm. Plomer, a resident of Milford, spoke to veterans of both wars in the Tartan Lounge of the ANAF.

"Canadians," he said, "have a special kind of courage that is all the stronger because of our dislike for war. Veterans know how awful war is and we can take all our lessons for today from the experiences of our country and our men during the First World War."

Comm. Plomer, former senior officer afloat on Canada's east coast and commander of HMCS Cayuga during the Korean War, is also distinguished by the fact he had a tooth pulled by his surgeon aboard Cayuga, Ferdinand Waldo Demera, the Great Inquoiter.

Sharp Increase in Grants Lessens Trenton Tax Rate

TRENTON — Unconditional grants to Trenton from Queen's Park in 1975 have jumped 29 per cent over last year to $1,912,000 and could mean a 10 mill decrease to town taxpayers.

The announcement of the impact of the Ontario government's grants came Tuesday from town treasurer Brian Fagan.

Over 1974, the 29 per cent jump represents $427,976, a sum that includes a $63,000-increase in a grant aimed specifically at covering police department operating costs. For the police department alone, the jump in the supportive grant means a 58-per-cent increase over the $73,000 grant in 1974.

Details of the increase in government grants was tabled in the legislature in Toronto after Monday's budget was released.

Mr. Fagan said Wednesday the dollar increase theoretically means the town can get the same level of services this year as last year without including 10 mills in the total rate.

Grants, termed unconditional by the province, can be applied to any expenditures the town sees fit.

On the other hand, conditional grants must be applied to specific costs. For example, said Mr. Fagan, the transportation and communications ministry gives Trenton approximately $300,000 of which each dollar must be met equally by the town.

Early Morning Crash Kills Detroit Driver

A Detroit man, Louis Joseph Abraham, 52, has been identified as the driver of a 1971 Cadillac killed in a collision with a semi-trailer on Highway 401 a mile east of the Salmon River Bridge about 5 a.m. Wednesday.

With him in the car were his brother, Nassef Abraham, 47, of Melvindale, a Detroit suburb, who is in Belleville General Hospital in serious condition with multiple fractures. Also in the car was Valerie Abraham, 18, of Melvindale, Nassef Abraham's daughter, who is classified in satisfactory condition in BGH with head, neck and foot injuries.

Belleville detachment OPP officers say the Abraham car was in collision with the rear of the transport truck.

Driver of the Canadian Tire Corp. semi-trailer transport suffered minor neck injuries, was treated at Belleville General Hospital and released.

Open House at Fisheries Education for Students

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

GLENORA — The Glenora Fisheries Research Station operated by the Ontario ministry of natural resources Wednesday held its annual open house with emphasis on what director Jack Christie termed "face to face contact."

Mr. Christie observed that instead of leaving visitors to "go it alone" efforts were made to explain the numerous displays and programs.

He said student tours of the station planned for today and Friday are experimental this year.

Groups of about 20 students will visit the station and hear lectures by staff members there. Later, it is expected they will report to fellow pupils on one or more of the areas of study.

Mr. Christie said fisheries management is a concern for all, not just the sporting fraternity, commercial fishermen and tourists.

"Fish integrate the whole aquatic system," he noted in an interview Wednesday.

Mr. Christie explained if there are healthy fish stocks the aquatic environment is "in good shape."

He suggested the public often fails to appreciate the difficulty in attempting to husband common property resources.

He added that it has been observed that what belongs to everyone in fact belongs to no one.

The director said if the public can recognize the problem in trying to preserve resource a more general involvement may result.

He referred to user conflicts in multiple-use situations and commented that fisheries resources usual take "short shrift."

Division at the fisheries research station included the Food Web, Fish Autopsy Sampling a Fish Population, Processing Sample, Fish Examination and many others.

Harmony with Nature Theme of Displays

GLENORA — Students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute today will tour the Glenora Fisheries Research Station where displays focusing on the roles of this government facility will be explained.

Don Hurley, MA, PhD, a biologist specializing in warm water fish studies, says efforts have been made to make this year's exhibits "more comprehensive".

Before arrangements were made for the annual student visit to the research station, teachers were consulted to learn what information would best dove-tail with classroom studies.

"We are showing what we do and what we attempt to do in the Great Lakes, in Lake Ontario in particular," commented Mr. Hurley.

He said the over-all question to be forwarded is "Can we live with fish in harmony?"

Mr. Hurley said there is a fisheries research station on four of the Great Lakes with the facility at Glenora probably the largest. A total of nine persons are employed full-time in addition to casual help.

He observed that in former years elementary school children have visited the station but many of the displays proved too complex to offer real benefits. Teachers generally agreed that the program was too advanced for public school children to derive much information.

Fish Story

Jack Christie Wednesday greeted hundreds of visitors at the open house held annually at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station. This display was part of the exhibit that was prepared for the tour.

Chopper Curious

About 250 students at Smithfield Public School all armed with curiosity, swarmed around Cpl. Bob Abra and one of the two Ontario Provincial Police $200,000 Jet Ranger helicopters. The helicopter visited seven area schools Wednesday in conjunction with the Trenton Knights of Columbus Law Enforcement Week.

Government Believes Public Wants Strong Measures

Minister Would Close Colleges for a Term if Staffs Take Strike Action

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There well could have been more than a smidgin of significance in a speech Universities and Colleges Minister James Auld made a while ago about colleges and their staffs.

You may remember it.

The minister said that if college staffs started illegal strikes, were to rule, booking off or otherwise disrupting the colleges he would take a simple step: he would close down the colleges concerned for a term.

One reason he gave was that it wasn't fair to students, many of whom had worked to get to their college, to give them an equally off-again education.

There could, however, have been another reason, a practical one, a political one.

The Davis government may have to be ready for a slow-down fight with our teachers.

Teachers at all levels have been getting more and more demanding in Ontario. Demanding and irresponsible.

We have had wildcat strikes. And just currently Toronto elementary teachers have been demanding a 45-per-cent raise.

They have had the government bore over a barrel.

Direct negotiations, of course, are carried on with local boards. The government could step in but it has not done so, for what has appeared principally as fear of offending the teachers and the large vote they represent. They have played them patsy.

There now could have been a government decision to reverse this.

Both Mr. Auld's speech and recent stronger positions by Education Minister Tom Wells would indicate there has been.

And if this is true it could have been assessed by the party leaders that politically it could be wise in the election, now expected this spring, for the government to be taking a strong hand against the teachers.

Liberal leader Bob Nixon, regarded as the main threat in the election has been having what appeared to be a public love affair with the teachers.

The NDP is in a position where it hasn't, and wouldn't, publicly oppose them.

Yet every indication is that the majority of the public now is thoroughly fed up with teachers, and what at least comes across as their griping.

The average voter, particularly if a parent, sees them as coddled, working a nine-month year, taking paid sick leave at every chance, always complaining about the size of classes and their big work-load and always looking for more money.

As a realistic gamble the government may well have decided that it will gain many more votes than it will lose by backing the class-room community and pulling it into line.

The Debacle in Asia

What does the onrushing Communist advance in Southeast Asia mean to Canadians, even to the people of Belleville?

Is it any concern of ours?

Yes. To the extent that, as John Donne put it long ago, "Any man's (or country's) death diminisheth me . . . For I am involved in mankind . . . Never Ask to Know . . . For Whom the Bell Tolls . . . It Tolls for Thee."

And didn't Hemingway take a line from that for his book on the Spanish civil war which by drawing Italian Fascists, German Nazis (and their first use of dive-bombing techniques) and Soviet Communists illustrated how others can become involved.

Shouldn't it concern us that the Communist North Vietnamese have broken the Paris peace agreement and are engulfing the territory of the Thieu government in Saigon.

But isn't all this a far cry from Canada? Not really, for wasn't Canada for many years part of the International Control Commission, a body unhappily divided against itself and of little influence in controlling the combatants.

It should concern us because of the deafening silence in Ottawa from a government which noisily castigated the U.S. bombing of Hanoi, thereby joining the clamor of the left wing both inside and beyond Canada.

The placard-waving rabble who emerged from the garrets and the woodwork for even the slightest pretext of an anti-American demonstration, and who now, like Ottawa, are mute. Silent on the killing and maiming of countless South Vietnamese civilians, people hurt and slain just as expeditiously as was achieved by any bomb.

It should concern us because, aside from any government hearts that once bled for the Hanoi Reds there are, right in our midst, fellow travellers who must now be rejoicing over events in Southeast Asia and who might be expected to support an increasingly leftist posture in Canada as well. Support too for what some observers believe could be impending Communist takeovers in Europe, beginning with France and Italy.

Ironically, a Hanoi-published sheet called Vietnam Courier, mailed to us from a union source in Trenton, of all places, last year spoke of "progress toward peace" — once there was an end to "Yankee neo-colonialism" and overthrow of the puppets. That, it said, there could be progress toward "the building of a really independent, sovereign and democratic South Vietnam."

Independent?

How independent, incidentally, are we in Canada? What of those "bleeding hearts" (a phrase coined ironically by Prime Minister Trudeau) in Ottawa? How secure are we from the same kind of subversion that is eating away at societies abroad? Does anybody care?

Certainly in the West we are a long way removed from the "bearing of any burden and paying of any price to ensure the cause of liberty" that the late President Kennedy enunciated.

City Roads

Road repair work has been such an on-again-off-again municipal platform in Belleville that it has come to be a case of believing it when we see it.

City Engineer Joe Angelo is on record as saying that in many cases it is not just a simple matter of resurfacing. Older neighborhood streets, he indicates, have eroded so much that only total reconstruction would look after the job adequately.

It's a problem that is not going to go away and Council of course realizes this and is doing something about it. The city's recent capital works budget of slightly over $3½ million includes provision for an expenditure of $772,000 on roads — this to cover Dundas East to Bleecker reconstruction, the balance of funds for the Pinnacle Street extension and the initial phase of the industrial-park servicing.

Certainly there is still a lot of ailing road surface around the city. There is much to be done — and Council knows it.

Cabs Fill Bus Vacuum

Getting to work by cab Belleville-style, because of the transit strike, is an expensive proposition. But that's the way it has been for many city employees. It has not even been good cycling weather for those who would try that mode of transportation.

How about walking then? Again, it could be too far for some, but for those who live within a reasonable distance it would go far toward fulfilling the spirit of Canada's new drive for fitness.

Last December company and union representatives got together with Government people, medical men and physical fitness experts in Ottawa to develop a plan for in-plant exercise programs.

Fitness classes are held in some branches of the Health and Welfare department and employees of the Post Office in Ottawa reportedly participate in similar programs.

Periodic tests on the Health and Welfare participants showed marked improvement in fitness.

It's fair to say though there are still too many Canadians who are not exercising enough; if more programs such as the above could be sanctioned by industry and workers it could bring about a more widespread improvement in the nation's health.

Viewpoint

Ottawa Citizen

Canada may achieve two major objectives at the Law of the Sea conference in Geneva, but only if it is prepared to make concessions.

Its first goal is to get agreement not only on economic jurisdiction 200 miles out to sea, but over the whole continental shelf. That would give Canada 400,000 square miles more than the 200-mile limit would provide.

The second goal is to get agreement to clean up river pollution and, therefore, much of the ocean pollution. Most sea pollution originates with rivers.

Chiang Kai-shek Was Last of the 'Big Four'

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

There have been so many summits, so many world leaders meeting in consort since the Big Four of the Second World War that few of us remembered Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek while alive was the last of the wartime Big Four: Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin and himself.

The others have all departed him by many years, Franklin D. Roosevelt dying on the eve of victory in April, 1945, Stalin in 1953 after a life of monstrous crimes, Winston Churchill of great old age a decade ago.

When the war ended in 1945, Chiang Kai-shek had been fighting the Japanese since 1937 and the Chinese Communists on and off for even longer.

He still ruled most of China in the fall of 1945, a power which the Chinese Communists were whittle away while they demoralized his armies and his immensely corrupt regime to win in 1949 and form the People's Republic of China.

Chiang's domain was reduced to the large island called Formosa by the colonial Portuguese, their word for "beautiful", but better known since he arrived there in mid-1949 as Taiwan.

It would be Nationalist China for the Republic of China, his foothold for a return to the mainland, always a futile hope, but in the Cold War days of the early 50s, one which he was encouraged to maintain, given the massive American support to his cause.

Though his island domain was small, Chiang Kai-shek in the 1950s was still a force to be reckoned with. His rejuvenated army was made up of war officers, as well as the surviving veterans of the mainland war.

His navy and air force were re-created with the latest in American equipment, destroyers and jet fighters.

And the Taiwanese economy in general boomed and continues to do so with substantial American, then Japanese and European investments pouring. Prosperity and the passage of the years brought the Taiwanese a renewed interest in independence which the aging generalissimo did not anticipate and would not accept. Demands for a break with Taiwan's status in her own right as a state and an 'end to the fiction of the Republic of China.

Such a move would have been absolutely out of the question for the determined general and president and the Taiwanese separatists were exiled and jailed, their opinions not published.

The change in fortunes came with the move to the real China by some of the world's leading powers, a move to recognize Peking in which Canada had a large role.

Indeed it was the Canadian formula over Peking's claim to Taiwan as a part of China, which permitted not only our recognition but that of about 40 other European, Third World and Asian states.

In that formula appeared the expression, "Canada takes note of the claim of the People's Republic of China to Taiwan", a phrase acceptable to the Communist Chinese.

Today the pendulum of recognition has swung in China's favor and away from Taiwan, though her diplomatic presence still is strong in the world and her economy is one of the strongest in Asia, in spite of global inflation.

These strengths are reason enough to suggest that with the generalissimo gone at last, dead at 87, Taiwan will be able to search for independence there, in spite of possible great pressures from Peking and the countries which recognized her to impede that process.

Stock Market Slips Once Again

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The stock market's early-1975 strength seems to be melting away like the mid-winter snow. For Canadian investors, the current slump in stocks is made all the worse by the relatively stronger performance of U.S. markets.

The New York market, even though it may have been drifting lower, at least has found a certain measure of support in the recently announced federal income-tax reductions totalling to $23.8 billion.

Canadian taxes, too, were cut in last November's federal budget, but that action seems to have had little long-lasting effect on market psychology.

It appears to have been outweighed by such factors as these:

—Serious disruptions in the Canadian labor market. Wage demands are higher than ever this year, despite rising unemployment and the continuing recession.

—A Canadian inflation rate that shows no sign of being brought under control. Many businesses cannot automatically pass their cost increases along to their customers.

—A depressed outlook for Canadian exports. Our foreign sales have been hit by the current recessions in the United States and Japan, by Britain's adherence to the European Economic Community, and by inflationary increases in our selling prices.

Confidence is, as always, the key factor in the movement of stock prices.

Investor confidence in the policies of the prime minister and his comrades—who are proposing to pay themselves a salary increase—remains, somewhat conservatively, as 23 per cent—remains at a low level.

Even the stockbrokers, who can always be counted upon to discover any good news, are cautious in their comments.

"Until there is some evidence that business inventory liquidation has run its course and that the reorder cycle is visible, and because of developments in the Middle East, we believe a conservative policy still is in order," says Merrill Lynch, Royal securities of Toronto.

The firm suggests that 20 per cent of the portfolio should be in cash or equivalent and warns that, with few exceptions, it is premature to buy cyclical stocks.

A firm of investment counsel, Babson's Canadian Reports Ltd., takes a similar position:

"It still is too early for a wholesale re-entry into the stock market. . . . A major re-entry should be avoided until and adequate reserves should continue to be maintained."

Wood Gundy Ltd. suggests that Canada's economic position, relative to that of the U.S., will suffer during the rest of 1975.

But the Toronto-based firm rejects the view—implicit in the current level of Canadian stock prices—that the North American economy will decline over the next decade.

Its advice: Maintain a generous cash reserve, but establish strong positions in carefully chosen stocks.

It's true that stock markets usually lead the way. The investor who waits for positive proof that market confidence has returned will probably find stock prices much higher than they are today.

But the attention of a good many investors today is concerned not so much with the upside opportunities as with the downside risks.

So far, the market has borne up reasonably well under the weight of some very bad economic, political and military news.

Analysts are wondering how it would react to a renewal of war in the Middle East, if that calamity should materialize.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 10, 1955.

Ontario Baseball Association president, Clarence Riddell, announced recently that Jack Carson, manager of the Belleville Bulls, has been appointed a member of the association executive. Jack is the first Belleville representative on the body since the late Leon Dafoe, former sports editor of this newspaper. The OBA could not have selected a more capable executive member than Carson. In fact he is one of the best. If get the best, in this district, qualified for the post.

The last Canadian infantry battalion to see service in the Far East, the 2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, sailed from Korea on the 8th of April. They sailed aboard the General W.A. Mann, and are expected to arrive in Seattle on April 21st. Several of the men are from this area.

April 10, 1945.

To help make motor cars last longer and to reduce accidents, Belleville police will cooperate in a Dominion-wide brake check program, it was announced today by Chief Constable R.T. Probert. During a six-week period police will check the brakes of all cars involved in moving traffic violations and in accidents in which Probert said it is to be hoped that motorists will take advantage of the brake-testing device which will be available at police headquarters for anyone wanting to have his brakes tested. Cars being driven now are over twice as old on the average, as cars driven before the war — and brake failure can pose a very serious hazard.

April 10, 1935.

Effective June 30, the Wall St. United Church of Brockville, Ont., and the Young Canada Church of Winnipeg will exchange pastors. At a special meeting of the official board of Young Church, last night Dr. F.E. Maloti announced he had received a call to the Brockville ministry. It was also announced that Rev. W.E. Donnelly of Brockville had accepted the call extended by the Winnipeg church. Mr. Donnelly came to Young Church in 1929 from Bridge St. United Church, in Belleville. Prior to that he held pastorates at Orillia, Chatham and Uxbridge, all churches in Essex County, Ont. Prior to taking up his Brockville charge, Mr. Donnelly held pastorates at Amherstburg, Exeter and Bradford.

Editor,
The Intelligencer:
Sir,—I refer to Mr. Hockley. I have read the article under "Civil List" in the Britannica and admit that there is no reference to the Crown granting in return for the annual Royal allowances. However, if Mr. Hockley will look under the same heading in the American Peoples' Encyclopedia, he will find that such a transfer was made and further, the historian, L.G. Pine states that, whereas the income from those lands in 1837 amounted to $1,000,000 pounds Sterling, the allowance paid that year was 385,000 pounds Sterling, of which 475,000 pounds Sterling went to the

Who Will Take the Blame?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:
Sir,—
There seems to be a fatal tendency these days for everyone to blame everyone (or someone) else for all of the things that are wrong. But each person has been playing a bigger part than he or she realizes in producing the mess that we are now around us. How can there be a real change until there are individuals who take personal responsibility for making that change come in their own lives?

This, to me is integrity — taking a good look at our own personal shortcomings in the world we live in, and letting the quality of that be realized. Maybe love is a unifying factor capable of achieving the world-wide brotherhood so many have looked for over the years. Instead of the answer being nowhere, we may find it "now here".

I'd be most happy to hear from any of your readers on this matter. In an editor of a weekly newspaper located here in western Canada.

Tweed Chamber Balks At Tourist Booth Cost

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Unless two regional tourist associations come up with more funds, the Tweed chamber of commerce won't operate a tourist booth this summer. The chamber also wants to see the yearly snowmobile races 'A' sanctioned by the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation and wants to keep funds for this purpose rather than spending them on the tourist booth.

This was decided by a meeting of the Tweed chamber of commerce at a meeting in the Tweedsmuir Hotel Wednesday evening. Chamber president Doug Storey told the meeting last year it cost in excess of $1,000 to operate the booth, which is housed in "North America's Smallest Jailhouse", and was staffed by two girls.

"250 people stopped at the booth last year," said Mr. Storey.

"That's small," Bill Thomlinson, a chamber member noted. He said it should be closed for one year.

Mr. Storey pointed out that the highlands of Hastings and Land of Lakes tourist associations gave but $200 each itself year and got all the benefits from the tourist booth.

"The Chamber of Commerce hasn't done anything for five years," Mr. Storey said.

"That's because the bulk of the money is going to the tourist booth," Mr. Thompson added.

"Let's take $2,500 and put a wading pool in the park," Mr. Storey urged. Mr. Thomlinson suggested that the money be kept to be used in conjunction with the snowmobile racing if it is sanctioned.

Mr. Thomlinson pointed out that the races during the Tweed winter carnival have consistently made $2,000 a year for four years. He said that if the races are sanctioned the figure would be $5,000 or even $6,000.

To be sanctioned, the race track would require proper facilities. To achieve this, the chamber plans to approach the Tweed Fair Board with the suggestion that with the aid of a $10,000 LIP grant, a 10- or 60-foot wide banked track be built. Mr. Thomlinson said the track should be a one-day event.

Chamber vice-president Clayton Langevin said such a track could be used for go-kart racing or for 10-speed bicycle racing. Mr. Thomlinson also said motorcycle races would be a big event.

Driver Unhurt

Madoc OPP said a late model car, driven by Doulas John Homan, 29, 229 Pine St., Belleville, went out of control on Highway 28, about three miles east of Ridge Rd. The vehicle also broke through a fence and caused $25 damage.

Provincial constable Rick Doucette is investigating the mishap. There were no injuries.

Fiddlers Tuning Up For Hastings Festival

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — The sound of violins tuning up and old folk melodies being practiced is in the air in North Hastings these days with contestants warming up for the first Bancraft Old-Time Fiddling contest.

The contest, which will be held May 3 in conjunction with that North Hastings Science Scope is being organized by the Bancroft Lions Club. Organizers say they hope to bring fiddlers from many of the surrounding areas into Bancroft.

One of the judges for the contest will be Ramona Hawley, who, herself is an accomplished violinist.

According to the chairman of the contest, Ivor Macleod, each contestant "will be allowed four minutes for the playing of the compulsory numbers of a jig, a waltz and a reel".

The contestants will be competing in two categories, junior and senior, and the judging will be on a basis of music, smoothness, timing and showmanship.

A tape will be made of each contestant and, says Mr. Macleod, in addition to cash prizes "the committee is hopeful that one or more trophies will also be offered if interested donors are found".

The contest will be open to any interested old-time fiddling devotees, however registration close on April 21.

Entry forms can be obtained by writing to Mr. Ivor Macleod, Box 940, Bancroft.

Prepares for Contest

During the May 1 to 3 North Hastings Science Scope in Bancroft there will be an old-time fiddle contest. Ramona Hawley, an accomplished violinist and one of the judges, gets in some early practice.

Woodburn Praises Festival

BANCROFT — The presence of vocal and instrumental music in North Hastings Schools and the number of private music teachers in the area have been praised by Dawson Woodburn, adjudicator at the North Hastings Music Festival.

"The quality may not be there as much as you wait," said Mr. Woodburn during the festival exercises on Tednesday, "but are marvelous to see that people in this area have a great interest in music."

Mr. Woodburn particularly commended the teachers and school choirs for the quality of tone and the number of participants.

The North Hastings Music Festival is organized and operated by a group of interested parents and citizens.

"You really have to compliment this organizing group," said Mr. Woodburn.

"They don't have the backing of a group like Rotary or Kiwanis . . . they're just truly interested people who are doing a good job."

During the course of the festival, Mr. Woodburn will hear performances by school choirs, rhythm bands, woodwind ensembles, stage bands, tripple trios and ducts as well as solo performances on the violin, clarinet, recorder, mirladiras and woodwind instruments.

Enjoy Music

Enthusiasm for the song and rhythm was evident on the faces of the children involved in the North Hastings Music Festival in Bancroft this week.

Hastings Highlights

Joint Director Considered

MADOC — Clerk Tom Burnside is going to write to the townships of Madoc and Huntingdon to find out their thoughts on a joint hiring of an area recreation director.

Councillor Tom Deline at Madoc council meeting this week, suggested such action be taken, noting there are lots of sports facilities and volunteer help but no one to coordinate it, nor get the grants to which they should be entitled.

Swine Bylaw Debated

MADOC — Providing the proper provincial ministries approve, Madoc council will consider amending a bylaw so that pigs can be raised in a barn in the village, council decided at a meeting this week.

Ted Szumith owns a farm which is partly in the village and an adjacent township. He told council he would like to raise pigs in the Madoc-bound barn, but a bylaw prohibits this, and he needed approval before he could expand his pig business.

Brandt Considers HOME Lots

STIRLING — A few weeks ago deputy-reeve Fred Brandt said that Stirling should seek some residential building under the provincial HOME («Home Ownership Made Easy) plan, but that was the end of the discussion at 11 p.m.

The matter was brought up again at council this week when Mr. Brandt wanted to know how to get HOME lots in the first place.

Councillor Wayne Martin said there are three different plans, and the matter ended there temporarily.

Sexy Innocence, Bottled Trickery

I've been talking this week to some of the fellows in the office about femininity.

Not mine (or natural, you understand. I've just been conducting a small personal survey about the male attitude to females.

And it has yielded some fascinating results. Men, it seems, can be tricked into yearning after women just as easily as women have always thought.

This discussion all started with a photograph of a young woman in a frilly (and low-cut) dress, with gently curled (blended) blonde hair and fringed (artificial) eyelashes. Holding a large lollipop up to her smiling mouth, she looks a little shy, and a little coquettish in her glance.

She's part of a promotion campaign for a new cosmetic preparation — the kind of unsolicited literature that unfortunately crosses the women's desk — and she illustrates what women will look like if only they'll buy the product.

My informal poll shows that although the women around here wouldn't be caught dead in a dress like that, the men all think that this particular girl is pretty hot stuff.

"Virgin?" I asked. And, as frankly as they could, they told me. She looks innocent, naive, untouched, as if she needs taking care of, they told me. Some noted her freckles (an nice and natural, they exclaimed), some commented on her dress (they things are always so . . . feminine, they sighed) and some thought her expression was both virginal and provocative.

In other words, sexy.

Had when I gave them the cosmetic product that accompanied the photo, and asked them to smell it and give me their opinion of whether it was sexy or not, they all, to a man, said, "Well, it's okay, but it smells more like a baby!"

Right on, gentlemen. That's the whole point of this campaign.

Since the free-thinking attitudes of women's liberation have filtered through to the mass of female consumers, the cosmetics industry has been a little worried.

How to capitalize on the non-phoney trend at the same time as keeping women buying? They've tried the honest-back-to-nature approach. The market has been swamped by avocado creams, lemon and herbal goo, essence-of-carrot shampoos and honey-hazelnut sprays.

In defiance, a large number of independent young women gave the whole thing up and turned to the stuff of their childhood — baby powder, baby oil, and baby shampoo.

Stunned and hurt, this cosmetic company has swung into this new trend with a vengeance.

They're turning out baby products especially for women, describing it in their advertising copy as the newest thing to turn women into desirable creatures.

"It's natural! Yet sexy!" they clamor. (As if to be both natural and sexy is next to impossible.)

"It's pure . . . clean . . . tender . . . soft . . . fresh . . . and sexy in its own way . . . and you'll feel just like a baby after a bath."

Well, I'm not about to point out how damaging the whole Female as Infant trip is . . . or how its appealing to men's protective natures, women put themselves down as human beings. No, I won't say a word about how ridiculous it is for grown men to be seduced by women pretending to be helpless.

I'd just like to suggest to the cosmetic people that they stay on this new realistic tack.

Keep on this natural kick long enough, and you'll be able to sell us bottled tap water to spray on our "fresh, clean, natural (yet sexy) selves."

Salvation Army Women Hold Home League Rally

More than 400 women from 17 centres attended the Women's Home League Rally earlier this week held by the Mid-Ontario Division of the Salvation Army.

The women came from such places within the division as Whitby, Fenelon Falls and Canonooque. The one day affair was organized by Mrs. Lt. Col. Harold Sharp.

During the day, two sessions were held in Tabernacle United Church, one in the morning and the second in the afternoon. A lunch was held at the Four Seasons Hotel, followed by a fashion show featuring the latest in footwear.

Slides were presented showing life in Pakistan. The Women's Home League has undertaken a project to raise money to build a combination girls' hostel and medical clinic. In this division about $1,500 has been collected so far for the project.

Books By And About Women

MARY MARTIN'S NEEDLEPOINT
By Mary Martin

Autobiography fans and needlewomen alike will find this colorful and well-illustrated book both interesting and useful. Through the story of her needlework projects the book winds through the show business life of Mary Martin and many of her famous friends.

From a super-ambitious first project — a floor-hall rug — begun during the long New York run of South Pacific to "theatre sampler" depicting the great moments of her career in Broadway and on the London stage, her love of creating with wool and canvas becomes apparent.

Published six years ago, it is more relevant to the craft scene now than it was then — predecessor is undergoing a revival comparable to the great crochet boom of the late 60s.

For those little interesting in "show biz" or Mary Martin's career the book provides a valuable appendix with clear explanations and diagrams on needlepoint. Good explanation of canvas and wool types along with a gauge of stitches make it a useful book; advice about design and color make it an interesting one.

Breast Cancer Questionnaire May Keep More Women Alive

VANCOUVER (CP) — One North American woman in five will suffer the emotional and physical agonies of breast cancer in her lifetime but, despite the high incidence of—and interest in—the disease, very little is known about it.

A Vancouver doctor and a group of women's organizations, headed by the 700,000-member National Council of Women, have decided to rid the cause of breast cancer of their mysterious anonymity by campaigning for an international data-bank to help cut the mystery to its simplicity.

The project, called Keep Women Alive, is the brainchild of Dr. Michael Richards, a pathologist at the city's St. Paul's hospital and the University of British Columbia.

Through his work in clinical pathology, where he performed numerous autopsies on women who had died as a result of breast cancer, Dr. Richards reasoned that before much can be done to stop the disease, more must be known about its causes and so he developed his idea for a national—maybe international—registry.

Every woman in Canada would be encouraged—by media saturation, through women's organizations and doctors' offices—to answer a few complicated questions as painless as intervals in her life. The women would be divided into four separate groups based on age, the number of children they have and whether or not the children were breast fed.

Dr. Richards says that within five to 10 years, researchers would have a massive body of data not now available to answer vital questions about breast cancer.

Dr. Richards' said he has coopted IBM and has an estimated computer cost of 1 million a year, based on participation of two million women.

"The only costs above that would be printing and mailing for the questionnaires, and a maximum of one staff person per province to handle clerical functions," he said.

So far, Dr. Richards says, the project has the support not only of the National Council of Women, but the Catholic Women's League of Canada, the National Council of Jewish Women, Young Women's Christian Association of Canada, Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, the Voice of Women and a long list of other groups.

Recently the Canadian Medical Association indicated its moral support of the program to Kay Armstrong of Victoria the president of the National Council of Women.

Mrs. Armstrong said she hopes there is enough indication of interest before the council's annual meeting June 2 through 6 in Montreal to organize the project's first year.

When she discussed the project at a Paris meeting of the International Council of Women three weeks ago, she said delegates from Great Britain and the United States expressed interest in the idea of making such a registry international.

Mrs. Armstrong also plans to present the project and ask for international cooperation at the council's 4-year conference in Mexico City later in June.

However, the medical research establishment has been much more circumspect in its approach to the subject when Dr. Richards has asked for funding.

Dr. Richards says the apathy of the research establishment is only a typical professional reaction to new ideas—especially if they are simple in concept and relatively inexpensive.

Ann Landers

Sensible Solution? Ann Doesn't Agree

Dear Ann Landers: I am 37 and my wife is 36. We have always had a happy life together, despite 17 years' difference in age.

About 10 years ago I was no longer able to function sexually. My wife was only 30 then, and I knew I wasn't being fair to her. She was not one to run around and chase men and although I did my best, I knew it wasn't good enough.

We have a mutual friend (unmarried) who is exactly my wife's age. I told her a few years ago that I wanted to get together with him once every few weeks. It was all right with me. I like to play pool, so better than prowling the bars or every other Tuesday night this friend comes for supper and stays a few hours while I go to the billiard parlor.

This is a arrangement suits the three of us fine. Nobody is getting talked about and we figure it is strictly our own business since no one is getting hurt and several people are getting helped. Wouldn't you say it's a sensible solution?

I realize that many women with impotent husbands either prowl the bars or go nuts. We think our way is better. Please comment. Available in Texas

Dear Tex: Your solution is going nuts, but if you believe in the Ten commandments, sorry you must be aware that one of them is being broken every other Tuesday night—in your own home.

Dear Ann Landers: May I give a word of advice to the men who, though they have wonderful wives they love and trust, still horse around with other girls—go to lunch with them in the office and hold hands with, hug and sweet-talk other gals—ostensibly.

My wife caught me dancing with no malice in the office Christmas party with a secretary whose hands are on every man within reach. This woman meant nothing to me, but it was terribly upsetting to my wife. Now she wonders what else I've been up to.

That little bit of foolishness nearly cost me my wife and destroyed the mutual trust and dignity that our marriage has enjoyed for 25 years.

Fellows, it isn't worth it. The girl wasn't worth the dirt under my wife's little foot.—Sicked In Florida

Dear Friend: You may be Sicked In Flo Ida, but I'm not Ignorant In Illinois.

Men don't write like that. Women do. You are the wife. I'm printing your letter in spite of the duplicity because there is a message there. But please, honey, don't try to put your words in your husband's mouth.

Dear Ann Landers: I've seen many letters in your column about problem children but never have I heard of anything like this.

My 17-year-old step-daughter is after her father to buy her a house.

She and I never got along. Now she says he will become of legal age in a few months she wants to move into a home of her own and that her father should buy it for her. I've already told him that if he buys this kid a house I'm divorcing him. How he says he will buy US a house first (we're renting at present) and then he will buy her one.

I went back to work a few years ago so we could make some money for our old age. I can't bear to see him take the little nest-egg we have accumulated to buy a house for the pampered child. Your comments would be greatly appreciated.—Fed In Philly

Dear Fed: Your husband sounds as if he is carrying a load of guilt and he hopes the gift will make everything OK. I can't imagine what a house would do for a spoiled teen-ager except make it easy for her to get into a pack of trouble. I hope your husband regains consciousness soon.

Doris Clark

Party Hints from Doris:

Play Games, Serve Juice

Dear Doris: I'm planning to have a party. This will be my first attempt at anything of this sort and I would appreciate any help you could give me.

This will be a very casual party, with kids ranging in age from about 16 to 20; liquor will be served. I'd like some ideas on how to be a good hostess and how to keep the party "alive".

Youthful Hostess.

Dear Youthful Hostess: Good for you for tackling a party. Far too many of our young people miss a lot of fun because they are clueless when it comes to getting a group together to have fun.

Being a good hostess means making every guest feel welcome, it means seeing that everybody is introduced to everybody else, and if you know that two people have similar interests help them to get together.

A good hostess circulates among her guests, chatting with them. Never, never does the hostess indulge herself by merely talking and laughing with her own little inner group.

Some of our would-be sophisticates think it is corny to play games. But believe me, if a party lags there is nothing that can get things going again like a funny game. Most of the ones on the attached 25-cent leaflet (Party Games) are pretty active. They make people forget themselves in tackling a funny — sometimes hilarious — challenge together.

You know, don't you, that it is against the law to even offer liquor to a minor? Youth has far too much pep and interest in living to need artificial stimulation. If you go by me, you will serve orange juice — and maybe save breaking someone's heart by preventing indiscreet behavior.

Dear Doris: No one in the family knows the agony I'm going through. I'm 40 pounds overweight. Being 15 years old and without one single date, I feel so miserable.

Please don't suggest a weight-reducing club because it is too expensive and I'd probably be the only teenager. My Mom and Dad are divorced. All I do is stay home and eat myself sick.

Slim.

Dear Slim: A weight-reducing club isn't more expensive than all those rich goodies you're consuming! And most of those clubs have plenty of teen-age members. First, you've got to stop feeling sorry for yourself and do something about your weight. You can do it — and you are the only one who can solve your problem.

See your doctor. Ask him to tell you what your correct weight is, and ask for a diet sheet. Make up your mind to stick to it, then do it! Instead of sitting home by the fridge, get involved in sports at school, candy-striping at your hospital, and other community activities. You'll soon look and feel 100 per cent better.

Surely We've Paid

You know, maybe Spring is just playing hard to get and that's why she send her big tough brother back last weekend. Well, assuming she's made her point — and who won't be glad to embrace her with open arms? — then you'd better get that car of yours ready for her. And that means a caring tune-up from the expert mechanics at Vader's Car Sales on College St. just around the corner from North Front St. With their expanded facilities, Vader's are ready and waiting for your cars, regardless of make or model. Just call 968-5302 to make your appointment. And you can say Spring sent you.

Those New Hours

In case you missed last week's news about the 1ss On The Bay Tavern in Picton, I'm going to repeat it. I'm not telling myself short, but I don't think that reading my column was on your list of priorities with all that snow. The news is that Ion On The Bay is now open at 12 noon Sundays too. Lunch will be served from until 2:30 p.m. and dinner from 6:00 until 9:00 p.m. Reservation can be made by calling 476-3114. And surely we have seen our one and only glimpse of weekend weather with a last week, so it's time for a reminder! Introduced Ion On The Bay yet, the final arrival of spring should ensure that you will. Let's hope.

Ah Baseball!

It seemed ironic as I drove past the snow banks this week, to hear it announced that the Expos were having their first game of the official season. (It's a good thing it wasn't a home game — that's for the polar bear league). And you know what the tempers are going to be like at your house when baseball and golf are being spoiled by it T.V. not in poor working condition. Superior Glass, 161 Canniton Rd. can help. Superior prides itself on fast and efficient service — and service that's going to keep your set running well for a long time. Someone can't do as less — they're too busy. Call 962-9516 and save your family tranquility.

Now Is Definitely The Time

Okay . . . so we had a spring setback. But that should not have interfered with your calling Bellevlew Glass and Mirror at 968-5731 and placing your request to have estimates on getting aluminum screen doors and windows for your home or a patio door. The phones weren't out of order. And sooner or later, we're going to have summer and sunshine and mosquitoes and flies and hornets. The breezes and sunshine you'll undoubtedly take and the bugs you'll undoubtedly leave. And Bellevlew Glass can make sure that's the case. That is, that they can't and or visit them at 324 Pinnacle St. and give Spring a run for her money . . . or at least for her time.

Warehouse Carpet Sales

If you didn't get out last weekend to Warehouse Carpet Sales, 361 Pinnacle St. to investigate the carpet bargains on same and quality brand carpet remnants, I'll understand . . . the weather did it. Let's hope you don't have a similar excuse this week. Because, and very seriously, you'll be sorry. For Warehouse Carpet Sales have recently acquired a good selection of quality carpeting in sizes from 1½ foot widths to good old 9x12. And some of this carpet is very reasonable priced and in regular widths. So here's your chance to get something good at an equally good price. Visit Warehouse Carpet Sales this weekend, open Friday night until 9 p.m. o' course.

Garden Dreaming

The Sidney Inn, 285 West Metra St., tells me they have more garden supplies in. I think that reading about them in last week's column, in last week's weather, undoubtedly broke your hearts. Who could imagine green with all that white? Well you can ask much less of your imagination this week (so far anyway). And a garden is only as good as the planning and care that go into it. Sidney Inn has onion seed, both Dutch and Spanish sets, and is expecting seed potatoes in soon. Sidney Inn also has lawn and lettuce seeds, plus many other garden varieties. Go and take the pick of the selection early. Just because spring had one set back, you don't have to give it another.

Never Too Many

My friends at Good Roblin Real Estate, 117 Nash Front St. tell me that interest in buying is really picking up. So if you're interested in selling, you'd better call 968-6675 and get your property listed — building lots, farms and homes. This is the time of year to sell, but you've got to do your part and tell Gord Roblin what you've got. One of the capable sales staff at Gord Roblin will help you assess the value of your property, advertise it for you and bring prospective buyers to you. All you have to do is pick up the phone. The Gord Roblin staff will do all the hard stuff. What a team!

More New At Pet Shop

I really like contacting the Tropical Garden Pet Shop, 301½ Front St. — all their news is good news. For instance, this week they have three new Pamerenian pups (Pamerenians are very tiny by the way) and a new batch of kittens, some of which are half Persian. When you buys pets from the Tropical Garden, you get much more than an animal; you get experience and advice on caring for your pet too, absolutely free of charge. The Tropical Garden is not just selling pets, it's selling itself and its business. So it has to do the job properly. You'll see for yourself.

Great Studio 231 Service

Connie Mitchell and her staff at Studio 231, 231 Front St. take the whole matter of customer service very seriously. That's why Connie is now offering queen-size sportswear as part of her spring and summer fashion package. The major item in black now is pant suits. But there are lots more on the way. Queen-size apparel covers sizes 38 to 44. So now you've heard the news. And if you Ms. Readers aren't in this line category, you can tell your friends and relatives who are. You'll be doing them a great service — just as Studio 231 is doing. Thanks.

Wagons Rolling

NOBLETON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Wagon Train got underway again Wednesday after a week's delay, leaving two wagons several horses and a mule behind.

The train had been stalled near Nobleton, about 15 miles northwest of Toronto, by both breakdowns and a surprise blizzard after covering only six miles of its planned 3,000-mile journey to Alberta's Peace River country.

Guard Slain

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Police said a 19-year-old convict, Mario Gauthier, is being held as a material witness in connection with the slaying Tuesday of a guard at the Cowansville medium security prison.

Georges Nadeau, 34, chief paint shop instructor at the prison for seven years, was beaten to death with a hammer as he entered his office in the institution, 50 miles east of Montreal.

Cover Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has ordered Toronto Refiners and Smelters to enclose its lead-processing plant because of pollution of the environment, it was announced Wednesday.

Ira Kaufman, a lawyer for the firm, said it would involve putting a "dome" over the four-acre site and cost more than $1 million.

Ashes Lost

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP) — Ashes of man cremated last fall, mailed to Toronto, are still lost despite a search which has involved the emptying of 250,000 mail bags.

In September, the ashes of Michel Kheshin, 77, were mailed second class from Grimsby, about 40 miles west of St. Catharines, to the Prospect Cemetery in Toronto but never arrived.

New Cadillac

DETROIT (AP) — In the midst of a business slump with United States car sales off 20 per cent, General Motors will put its Seville—the first small Cadillac—on sale May 1 with an expected $11,000 price tag.

Plan New Inn

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Alex Scourides, president of Ravenseur Development Corp., said Tuesday that Holiday Inns is interested in building an 85-room hotel on the Cobourg harbor front.

The proposed site would be a 6½-acre parcel of land owned by Canadian National Railways.

Needs Not Met

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — The provincial government's housing policies are not meeting the needs of young couples, renters or senior citizens, Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said Wednesday.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

THAT'S NO TEEN-AGER CUTTIN' THROUGH! BUT WHAT WOULD A PEEWEE GET IN THE BACK DOOR FOR? EVEN A SPEARED ANGLE?
MAYBE THE MAJOR BRAGGED TOO MUCH IN A BAR AGAIN! REMEMBER THE TIME A HOOD JUMPED HIS TRUNK LOOKIN' FOR GOLD BUT ONLY FOUND AUTOGRAPHED PICTURES?
DON'T TELL HIM, SOMEBODY TRIED TO BREAK IN! HE'D PUFF UP MORE THAN A CANDY BAR WRAPPER!
SOMETHING WORTH STEALING AT LEAST?

Dislikes Shows

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General John Clement said Wednesday that he watches less television these days because he's sickened by what he sees.

"Night after night, heroes and villains alike are run down by cars, shot in the head, stabbed, pushed over cliffs and thrown out of helicopters," he told the annual meeting of the York North Progressive Conservative Association.

Expediency Seen

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Cuts in the civil service announced in the Ontario budget Monday result from political expediency, not a provincial manpower evaluation, says G. G. Norman, general manager of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

He told a union meeting here Tuesday that the Davis government was looking for political support when the cut was announced.

Ontario Airlift Plans Are Scrapped

GENEVA (CP) — The adoption of Vietnamese children contravenes the Geneva Convention governing the protection of Civilian populations, a spokesman for the International Committee of Red Cross (ICRC) said Wenesday.

The 1949 conventions permit providing temporary homes for war children, but forbid "formal and definitive adoption such as is being practised now when everyone wants to import Vietnamese children," the spokesman said.

The conventions laid down certain "guarantees" for receiving and housing children under 15 in a neutral country while conflict lasted—including stipulations that in the case of children orphaned or separated from their families, efforts should be made for their upkeep and education and opportunity be given to practise their religion.

Education is to be provided, where possible, by persons of the same cultural tradition, the ICRC spokesman said.

The parties in the conflict also have to take all necessary measures for children under 15 to be identified.

Won't Copy

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not follow Ontario's example in providing homeowner grants to purchasers of existing houses, Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Vietnamese Adoptions Said Violating Code

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans for a large-scale airlift and adoption of war orphans from South Vietnam have been "virtually scrapped," a spokesman for the provincial ministry of community and social services said Wednesday.

The spokesman said it had become apparent "better negotiations" exist with the federal government in attempting to arrange adoptions on an individual basis than through a large-scale effort.

The Ontario government in co-operation with federal officials and private agencies had hoped last week to airlift about 500 orphans from a half-way house in Saigon.

Waterfront Grants Cut by Province

Provincial government funding for acquiring public access points along the Lower Great Lakes has been reduced, Belleville parks board learned Tuesday.

The board and city council earlier this year recommended the Moira River Conservation Authority investigate property purchase the Herchimer Ave. waterfrontage area of the Bay of Quinte.

The authority has requested $75,000 under the acquisition program.

But J. H. McLeod, the authority's secretary — treasurer recently wrote city hall, that allocation of provincial funds has been reduced from $1 million to $500,000 the parks board was told. Any amounts to be alloted local conservation authorities has not yet been decided.

Mr. McLeod's letter said no further action is contemplated until a specific amount has been allocated the authority.

Board to Let Tenders Despite Lack of Budget

The city's parks board this week decided to go ahead with tendering for two pieces of machinery — even though it is not in its budget estimates — to step up delivery.

The equipment sought is a van for carrying small garden mowers and a self-propelled sweeper for cleaning turf.

Ald. George Zegouras, recreation-arena committee chairman, said he opposed the move. His was concerned, he added, about including new items in departmental estimates before city council strikes its budget.

But, noted Ald. Jean Smith, city council does not strike specific items from the parks budget. It may shave its estimates, but what specific purchases are affected is left up to the board's discretion.

Lloyd Syer, parks director, sought permission to tender immediately. Waiting until the budget is struck would delay bids — and delivery — until mid-summer. The equipment is needed as soon as possible.

Hearing Week Set for May 5-11

The Belleville Speech and Hearing committee has named the week of May 5 to 11 as Deaf Awareness Week with major events taking place in the community.

During May 8,9,10 the committee will sponsor displays at the Quinte Mall. The displays will include demonstrations of special devices used by the deaf, displays by hearing aid dealers and information about early detection of hearing problems.

The Quinte Club of the Deaf is planning a Get Acquainted Dance for May 24. The committee will hold a meeting April 16 at Centennial Secondary School for organizational purposes.

TREES FOR CANADA

'Trees For Canada' is an ideal opportunity for Scouting to do a three-way good turn — for the country, for the boy who participates and for Scouting at all levels.

Each participant — boy or leader — commits himself to plant a designated number of trees. People are asked to sponsor the participant at an amount per tree as is done in a walk-a-thon.

No one can deny the benefit to the boy. His participation in such an environmental project will give him a first hand association with the problems facing the country concerning forest coverage. His present profit is the pride in taking part in a big project which helps develop the country. The growing forest will be a constant reminder to him and others of his participation in a practical, useful good turn during his youth.

This project is also ideally suited to reinforce and enlarge Scouting's program in the outdoors and ecology. It also can be directly linked to star and badge requirements.

Local Planting Saturday, May 3, 1975

BOY SCOUTS OF CANADA

BELLEVILLE DISTRICT.

"Trees For Canada" Is a Canada-wide Project Designed to Give All Members of Scouting the Opportunity to Demonstrate Through Action Their Concern For Their Country.

Trees For Canada Is Also a Fund Raising Project. The Funds Raised Through This Project Will Be Used To Help Further Scouting In Our Community, Meet Other Local Needs and Worldwide Jamborees, Rallies, Cubaramas, Etc.

Our Belleville District Has Secured 30,000 Trees, Which Will Be Planted By the Boys, In Belleville and Near Read.

These Trees Will Not Be Cut for Christmas Trees. They Are To Be Grown to Maturity.

We Need Your Help, By Sponsoring Each Tree. The Boys Will Be Around to See You This Month. Please Be Generous.

One Million Trees In 1975

One million trees will be planted in Ontario this year by Scouts participating in the 'Trees For Canada' project.

In every province and the Northwest Territories, Scouts will be expressing their concern for their country through planting trees. The results of this project will be a more beautiful Canada, a land which is less susceptible to flooding and a future source of vital raw materials.

The 'Trees For Canada' project was launched on a trial basis in Ontario in 1972. A similar program 'Trees For Tomorrow' was undertaken in Manitoba. Both of these projects have proven that Scouts enjoy the opportunity to get personally involved in contributing to the future of Canada.

'Trees For Canada' is a fund raising project. Most of the funds stay in the community where it is raised. Some goes to the International Brotherhood Program 'Operation Amigo'. This is a four year program designed to help five South American Scout Associations adapt the Scout Program to the needs of their boys.

The funds are raised through pledges from people in each community involved. In most communities only one contact will be made with a householder. This, combined with knowing how many trees the Scout will plant, makes it easy to determine how much to pledge.

One million trees will reach their maturity when the Scouts who planted them have children of their own. 'Trees For Canada' is a project concerned with tomorrow. A tomorrow which will be better because communities supported the Scouts in this project today.

Lighting A Priority

Lighting of the baseball facility at Centennial Park in west Belleville is a priority, and "every effort" will be made to have it installed by 1976 at the latest, A.M. George Zegerac, chairman of the city's recreation-arena committee said this week.

His remarks, at a committee meeting, followed discussions last month with a representative of the city's Minor Baseball Association.

Other parks and recreation staff comments on Centennial facility:

— Using washroom and dressing room facilities at the nearby Dick Ellis Rink gave the "best overall advantage" for all sport programs in the recreation complex.

— A water outlet will be installed behind the baseball backstop.

Health Unit Waits Word On Funds

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit is still awaiting word from the provincial ministry of health on the amount of money it will receive to conduct its proposed family planning program.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health, said Monday the health unit has drafted its program but modifications might be necessary if insufficient funds are available from the Ontario government.

However, he noted the province is committed to pay the total cost of the program which will mean no financial obligation on the part of municipal taxpayers in the two counties.

Dr. Lenk related the program developed from two health ministry philosophies. "The general philosophy is the population explosion around the world," he said.

He added, "in particular, they want to give people a chance to plan their lives . . . and not to be haphazard" more .

Dr. Lenk elaborated with the example of a newly-married couple, perhaps entering the working world for the first time or still attending a learning institution, attempting to budget their finances for the first few years of their marriage.

The program will assist them in avoiding untimely pregnancies, he explained.

Should the government offer to pay the maximum cost, Dr. Lenk has one definite view on one part of the program. "I certainly would be for free issue of contraceptive drugs and instruments," he commented.

As for introducing a separate program into the secondary school system, Dr. Lenk said the health unit will not approach board of education authorities until it has a concrete plan.

However, he pointed out the health unit would favor as much school involvement as possible in the general program.

Car Lands In Ditch

BRIGHTON — A Trenton man is in hospital with pelvic injuries after his car smashed through several barricades and plunged into an open excavation ditch on Main St. here Tuesday.

In satisfactory condition in Trenton hospital is Leslie Stewart McNeil, 31, of 1 Marmore St.

Brighton provincial police say the McNeil vehicle was eastbound on Main St. when it missed a detour and dropped into a ditch, smashing against an exposed concrete man-hole form.

No End in Sight to Week-old Belleville Transit Strike

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Striking transit commission workers will begin receiving strike pay once their regular pay runs out, a spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CBRT) said Wednesday.

Transit employees were told before they took a strike vote that there is no provision in their union for autonomic strike pay.

Hugh Kerr, local president of the union, "said the administration isn't too good but there's not much we can do about it."

Jack Thomas, representing the CBRT, said the union represents some 30,000 train employees and it would be impossible to provide them all with strike pay.

"However, because the transit local is so small in size — only 23 members — the union will give them strike pay once they have no more pay coming from the commission," said Mr. Thomas.

Transit workers have been off their jobs since last Friday with wages as the central issue in negotiations.

The union has demanded an across-the-board increase of one dollar an hour. The commission stood by a counter offer of an immediate 75 cents-an-hour hike, followed by a 15-cent-an-hour raise effective in June.

"We'll have enough money to give the boys strike pay until hell freezes over," said Mr. Thomas.

He could not say exactly how much pay each man could expect.

Mr. Kerr said "in the best of my knowledge none of the men have found part time jobs so far — mainly because of working wives."

There has been no sign of renewed negotiation between the union and the commission.

Provincial Team Defends Validity of Bridge Study

AMELIASBURG — The Bay Bridge relocation study is no public relations scheme designed to support a political decision already taken, provincial government planners said Wednesday night.

But a public credibility gap is not unusual at the outset of such studies, indicated one of the officials in charge of the transportation and communications ministry project.

The assurances of validity came after the study team fielded gathering initial local reaction to a new highway link across the Bay of Quinte.

The end to the first phase of the four-part study — expected to take 15 months — came at a crowded meeting in the township hall here.

More than 100 persons packed the building to query the ministry team assigned to discover the best site and type of facility to replace the present Highway 14 Bay route — the year-old swingbridge now channelling traffic between Prince Edward County and the Belleville mainland.

One township resident said if he wanted to build a bridge he would conduct a study and present it in such a way to prove his point.

"Is that what's happening here?" he asked.

"No," retorted ministry environmentalist Peter Fintield. "It's as simple as that."

Mr. Fintield agreed in an interview later he took the question to imply the site of the new link already would have been decided.

"I think the very fact this is an open study all the way through disproves that," he said.

Ignacio Ardizone, ministry area manager in charge of the study, said in such studies "initially we get a great deal of credibility gap. It's difficult (at first) to make people believe we're coming in with an open planning approach and we want input."

The crowded response here was in contrast to a sparsely attended meeting on the Bay's north shore Tuesday when less or can be a "pretty hair-raising experience" crossing the narrow, old bridge. Cars sometimes have to back off to allow such machinery to pass.

But Belleville's North Front St. is a "hazardous place" in which to steer such equipment, said Mr. Cairns.

Bridge Size Hampers Equipment Movement

AMELIASBURG — It's one thing to drive the Belleville-Rossmore swingbridge and north through city traffic in a car.

The frustration grows however, when the vehicle you're steering is a big, broad piece of farm machinery.

The woes of such a challenge were outlined — by a farmer — to a public meeting in the township hall here called to discuss a provincial government study on replacing the old bridge.

Alfred Cairns, who farms on the township's second concession, noted farm implement dealers are mainly located in Belleville's north end.

Manoeuvering machinery in need of servicing by the dealer can be a "pretty hair-raising experience" crossing the narrow, old bridge. Cars sometimes have to back off to allow such machinery to pass.

But Belleville's North Front St. is a "hazardous place" in which to steer such equipment, said Mr. Cairns.

Winning Smile

Local craftsman, Donnah Cameron Finnegan has plenty of reason to smile. A porcelain bowl created by her was chosen best piece of craft entered in the juried art and craft exhibition which opens today at Corby Library and runs until April 26. The visual arts display is part of the Quinte Arts Council's Artfest '75, a month-long display of the arts of the Quinte area.

Stolen Van Found

TRENTON — Brighton Provincial Police today continued to investigate an abandoned van that was found on its side heavily damaged on the old Wooler Rd. Wednesday.

Police said the vehicle, belonging to Leslie Ile, of 190 Dundas St. E. was reported stolen Wednesday.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated by police at $4,000 and was termed a write-off.

Duffy Critical of EMO Cutback

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Wednesday's announcement by acting provincial solicitor-general John Clement that the province plans to phase out its participation in the emergency measures branch came as a "complete surprise" to Quinte Emergency Measures Organization co-ordinator Angus Duffy.

"In fact, I had a call just yesterday saying it was the intention of the government to continue its support until the end of this year," Col. Duffy said.

Mr. Clement, in Toronto, said the government plans to develop task forces, consisting of senior representatives of provincial ministries involved in alleviating such emergencies as major floods, forest fires, air crashes, epidemics and similar disasters.

"This concept will provide similar services as those formerly co-ordinated by the emergency measures branch.

"Therefore it has been decided by cabinet to gradually phase out the emergency measures branch over the course of the coming year," Mr. Clement said.

At present EMO financing is split between federal, provincial and municipal governments. The municipal share is 10 per cent.

To keep operating, Col. Duffy says, municipal financing would have to be increased to 10 times its present level if other funding is not provided.

Preceding opinions were similar; Whether the new link should service through traffic to the Highway 401 expressway, or be designed to help local commuters to and from the city.

Said one township resident: "The entire project "boils right down" to cost and people — those who work and shop in Belleville.

Retorted another: "It's ludicrous to funnel it (traffic) . . . into Belleville. . . . It's already bottlenecked."

Such opinions and suggestions the study team now adds to data already compiled in contact with other agencies, local councils and shop in a project first ordered last October.

It followed the August announcement by Transportation and Communications Minister John Rhodes that a new traffic route would have the ancient swingbridge and causeway.

Next on the team's schedule is an early survey of origins and destinations of traffic on the old crossing — at a time when vehicles approach a peak of 12,000 daily. Volume of traffic using the route which the aged bridge must open also will be studied.

Bridge Talk

Seymour Hamilton, Ameliasburg farmer, engages in serious discussion over new Bay of Quinte route for Highway 14 with Ignacio Ardizone, transportation and communications ministry manager at Ameliasburg meeting Wednesday night. Mr. Hamilton was among about 100 who packed township hall to hear presentation on bridge study by ministry study team.

Doctors Fear Hypertension Reaching Epedemic Level

By RON CARBON
Staff Reporter

Time Magazine calls it the "quiet killer" and a group of doctors at Belleville General Hospital Thursday night called it a "common disease" that affects one out of 10 city residents.

High blood pressure, known medically as hypertension, affects about two million Canadians and most medical authorities now consider it to be at an epidemic level. About 150 people heard five doctors discuss the incidence and treatment of the disease at a public seminar sponsored by BGH.

"Of the 10 per cent of the population who have high blood pressure only one-half are aware of the problem and only one-quarter receive adequate treatment," said Dr. Paul Armstrong, director of the coronary care unit at Kingston General Hospital.

For this reason, said Dr. Armstrong, public education is the only answer to bringing this disease under control. High blood pressure is the leading cause of heart attack, strokes and kidney disease. It kills thousands each year.

Dr. Armstrong, also a professor at Queen's University, said the causes are unknown but there are several factors, including over-weight, stress, salt, lack of exercise, and heredity, which can affect the disease.

He also said blacks are more prone to high blood pressure than are whites. Sex also plays a part. Men are affected by the disease at earlier ages while women tend to be affected in later stages of life.

Belleville internist specializing in cardiology, Dr. Conrad Koehler said people with high blood pressure usually have to remain on medication for indefinite periods. He said the disease is controllable but that it is seldom completely cured.

"The physicians and the public have a responsibility to accept it's not going to go away — it's a life-long proposition," added Dr. Armstrong. High blood pressure normally does not have any symptoms but is easily detected during a medical examination. All the doctors urged people to have their blood pressure taken.

Dr. Robert Steele, a professor of epidemiology at Queen's University, said "effective treatments can dramatically reduce deaths". He also said environment can play a factor in high blood pressure.

A Belleville family physician Dr. Donald Dochrill suggested that BGH should develop a type of service whereby people could have their blood pressure tested without having to complete medical examination.

100 Artists on Display At Artfest Corby Show

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Artfest '75, the month-long festival devoted to the arts in the Quinte area and sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council, shifted its attention to the visual arts Wednesday night with the premiere of an art display at Corby Library Gallery.

The display was officially opened by Mayor Robin Jeffery at a wine and cheese party. It opens to the public today and continues until April 26.

Something new this year besides the change from Ben Bleecker exhibition is the fact that the library gallery will be open Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. during the 26-day event.

Perhaps the best piece of art in the exhibition was a work done in conte called Coffee Break by Marcus. Best craft piece in the exhibition was a porcelain bowl by Donnah Cameron Finnegan.

On display at the gallery are 54 pieces of art from oils to water colors chosen by the two jurors out of 151 entries. In the crafts section, ranging from macrame to pottery, 32 pieces were chosen out of the 100 that were entered. A total of about 100 artists and craftsmen are represented in the display.

Thurlow May Curb Speed Limit

Thurlow Township council is considering lowering the speed limit on a stretch of road in the township running from the village of Foxboro to an area near the railway tracks. Although no clinic is posted, the usual limit in such areas is 50 miles per hour and council is considering bringing it down to 35 miles per hour.

Reason for the move prompted by council Wednesday is a proposed new school and the number of senior citizens in the area.

In other township business, council heard a representative from contracting firm ask for approval to build a three-bay garage on Highway 14 near Thompson's Furniture Warehouse.

The garage to be 3,000 sq. ft. in area would go to council for approval, who would then refer it to the ministry of housing for the final say on the matter, taking into account such issues as health factors involved in such a project.

A visitor during council's afternoon session Wednesday was Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings who stopped in for a brief visit on his way to Peterborough.

Mishap Costly

WAUPOOS — A Belleville motorist escaped injury Wednesday night in a single-car accident on the Waupoos Rd.

Thomas Field, 46, of RR7, Belleville, was unhurt following the mishap which caused approximately $1,000 damage to his car.

Police said details of the accident will remain sketchy shortly before 10:30 p.m. are not yet available.

Most Parents Backing School Dental Program

The ongoing fluoride treatment program for Grades 1 and 2 in Quinte area elementary schools conducted by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit is receiving successful acceptance from parents, says Dr. Dennis A. Warrick, director of dental services.

He told the health unit board Wednesday clinics have been held in five Trenton schools so far and at the health unit's Picton office, the latter by appointment only. Trenton does not have a fluoridated water system.

A total of 12½ clinic days were held and 400 students treated.

Dr. Warrick said the health unit will continue clinics by appointment in municipalities with fluoridated water.

He noted co-operation from the boards of education.

"We're really thankful for the assistance in this program," he said, pointing out board vans were used to carry equipment.

Dr. Warrick said there were a few negative responses. "There are one or two in each school alone with a sarcastic note from the parent," he remarked.

Smith Gets Nomination

Ald. Jean Smith of Belleville City Council has been nominated by Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit Board for an executive position on the Association of Ontario Boards of Health.

Members voted Wednesday to nominate Mrs. Smith to the association's board of directors.

If elected during the association's annual conference in London, Ont. from April 20-22, she will be the second consecutive board member to sit on the executive.

Present member is Enos David of 7 Eastwood Park Dr. in Belleville who is chairman of the association's education committee. He was not reappointed to the board this year, making him ineligible for re-election.

Fluoride Working

Results of the current fluoride treatment program being conducted in Quinte area elementary schools by the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit show a 40 per cent reduction of tooth decay but this does not approach the benefits from a fluoridated water system, says Dr. Dennis A. Warrick, director of dental services.

He told the health unit board Wednesday there is a 67 per cent reduction among people consuming fluoridated water. Belleville and Picton have fluoridated water systems while Trenton does not, he noted.

Dr. Warrick said the program reaches each child once a year but this is not sufficient. "A child should be done every three months but there's no way parents can afford it," he commented.

He said as an alternative the health unit aims for an average number of treatments per year, depending on the ability of a child to resist tooth decay.

First Aid Outlined

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit has compiled and printed its first booklet on first aid procedures designed for use in school.

Clifford R. Coston, Business administrator and secretary-treasurer, told the health unit board Wednesday compilation and typing, about a week's work, was accomplished entirely by staff members. Cost for printing by the Hastings County Board of Education was $1,000.

The booklet will be distributed to schools, the Children's Aid Society and Victorian Order of Nurses in the two counties.

Health Unit Awaiting Approval of Budget

Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit board members are crossing their fingers, awaiting provincial ministry of health approval of their 1975 budget which they hope will alleviate a public health nurse shortage.

Clifford R. Coston, business administrator and secretary-treasurer for the health unit, told the board Wednesday the ministry cannot approve any health unit budgets from across Ontario until final salary negotiation figures between health units and their nurses have been received.

In a later interview, Mr. Coston explained those figures must be submitted in the form of a supplementary budget. The health unit here is currently in the middle of salary negotiations with its nurses.

He elaborated there are actually three budgets — A, B1 and B2. He said A and B1 are global budgets which include all salaries and expenses required to operate the health unit.

B 2 is the crux of concern, he said. The province said this budget involves new programs and additional staff.

Early-morning Blaze Guts Home

An early morning fire Wednesday gutted a two-storey home on Victoria Ave., leaving a mother and her two teen-age sons homeless.

City firemen were called to 41 Victoria about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday morning when fire broke out in the basement of a home, owned by Mrs. Don Whalen. Fire Chief Leo Culhane said Mrs. Whalen and her two sons, asleep upstairs, were aroused by smoke and managed to escape without injury.

Chief Culhane said the fire moved from the basement to the first floor quickly and by the time the fire was under control about 3 a.m. it had reached the top-half of the house. He said there was extensive damage to the interior and contents of the house. There was no estimate of damage.

"Guesspert" Likes These

Following up on Tuesday's first-round National Hockey League playoff predictions, I offer the balance of my fearless forecast.

Upon completion of the first round, teams remaining, listed according to points on the regular season, will be: Philadelphia Penguins, New York Islanders, Vancouver Canucks and Chicago Black Hawks.

Remember, now (said Peter Puck —ugh) the team with the most points meets the team with the fewest.

And that matches Flyers and Hawks, Sabres and Canucks, Canadiens and Islanders, and Kings and Penguins.

It's Flyers over the Hawks in five games; Sabres over Canucks in five; Canadiens over Islanders in six, and Kings in seven over Penguins.

That brings us to the semi-finals where it's Flyers defeating the Kings in six games and Sabres sweeping Canadiens in seven.

And here we are in the final series and it's only about four months to the start of training camp and the 1975-76 campaign.

It's in the bag.

Flyers will repeat as Stanley Cup Champions, getting by Sabres in six games.

Now, I just had the courage of my convictions,I'd make a fortune — or lose one.

Anyone who is serious about making predictions, deserves the title "guesspert." There's nothing expert about it.

BLADES — Ken Stafford at Belleville Utilities Commission, sets the record straight concerning his Trenton entry in the Belleville Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament.

Coach Stafford points out that it was Mike Peterson in goal for his club in the 4-2 defeat of Niagara Falls.

In a tournament report, the other half of the fine Trenton goaltending duo, Al Marchand was mentioned. Marchand was between the pipes for the club's other tourney start and was solid.

It seems goaltending excellence runs in the Peterson family, Mike's brother, Steve, was a standout for Trenton Major in the recent Golden Hawk Midget Tournament.

Jake Berkinshaw, convener of the midget division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, suggests that one of the problems affecting the calibre officiating in the sport, is a lack of interest among young people.

He is not alone when he says more young men who were benefitted from being part of the minor hockey setup should "give something back" — by giving officiating a whirl.

Of course, hockey is not alone in this respect. Too few graduates of minor programs return to the associations as executive members, coaches, managers, or game officials.

It's time more young people got the message and became involved.

Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association have named Trenton Minor Hockey Association product John Garrett, the club's most valuable player for the 1974-75 season.

In goal for 56 of Saints' 78 regular season games, Garrett chalked up a solid 2.38 goals against average. He recorded a pair of shutouts.

That 2.38 average gave him sixth place in the list of top goalies but the race was so tight, he was just a shade away from finishing second.

a position held by Houston Aeros' Wayne Rutledge with 2.34. The leader was Boston's Ron Grahame who boasted a mark of 2.30.

Cowley Upsets Brown In Men's Club Final

Das Cowley upset Dave Brown's foursome Sunday night to win the 1975 Quinte Curling Club Men's crown. Cowley won on last rock with a frenzy draw to the button.

The competition, which began last week, consisted of the top eight rinks in Regular and the top eight in Competitive curling from the 1975-75 season.

In Regular curling skips, leads, seconds and vice-skips play as individuals rotating to different rinks throughout the season. They collect points on an individual basis and then at the end of the season the top eight skips, leads, seconds and vice-skips are put together in eight different rinks.

Competitive curling, on the other hand, has the same four curlers playing together on the same rink for an entire season. Then the top eight rinks are put in the playoffs. Competitive rinks are given a slight edge over Regular rinks because of the length of time rink members have curled together.

After the top eight Competitive rinks played off, Brown had finished first. Cowley came first in the Regular Bonspiel. The two then faced off for the club title.

Cowley's underdog rink consisted of Bob Graham, Dick Lumbers and Ron Krause. Lumbers is only a second year player and Krause just completed his first year.

The consolation men's championship went to Finlay McCorquodale's Competitive rink. McCorquodale also skipped the consolation champion rink in the mixed-club bonspiel. Glen Watson, Bob Anderson and Bob Smith made up the McCorquodale rink.

Phil Dyble skipped the consolation runner-up. His rink members are Ivan Hilborn, Ron McLean and Murray McLean.

Stanley Back On Right Track

Knocked slightly off keel on their cruise to the playoff championship of the Gas House Hockey League when they dropped a 5-4 decision to Belleville Generals, Monday night, the Stanley Structures' skaters righted themselves, Wednesday, at Memorial Arena.

Playing in the fourth game of the league's eight-point final series, Stanley posted a 5-2 win to move to front 3-1 in games. Monday's setback was only the second of the season for the pennant winners.

Goals by Wayne Levegue, Hans Harrington, Wayne Stearns, Ray Summers and Mike Keegan moved Stanley's to within two points of the championship. The club can wrap it up, Monday night.

Levegue and Stearns also picked up a pair of assists each with single helpers for Charlie Rowbotham, Harrington, Keegan and Bob Mulvihill.

Dave Skelton and Hyalie Bryant replied for Generals with defencemen Gary Geyer in on both scoring plays. Steve Trudeau and Pete Delanty each earned one assist.

Gray Scores TKO

HULL, Que. (CP) — Clyde Gray of Toronto scored a third-round technical knockout Wednesday over Songbird Williams of Memphis, Tenn., in a professional welterweight boxing match.

Gray, 152 pounds and defending Canadian and Commonwealth champion, now has won 21 of 24 professional fights.

Williams weighed in at 147 pounds for the scheduled 10-round bout.

OFL President Resigns

HAMILTON (CP) — The governors of the Ontario Football League have accepted the resignation of Matt Blair as league president, it was announced Wednesday.

Blair told the governors Monday that personal commitments do not allow him the time he feels should be devoted to the presidency.

McFarlands Reunited for Saturday Goegan Memorial Night

Belleville, home of the World Champions.

That's the way it was in 1959 when Belleville McFarlands captured the World Amateur Hockey Championship.

Ads, that's the way it is today, since many of the players on that championship club have made their homes here and continue to make contributions to the city in sports and in many other community endeavors.

Saturday night at Memorial Arena, those former McFarlands will be joined by others from across the country, in a tribute to the late Flori Goegan.

After his days as a defenseman with those great McFarland teams of the 1950s, Goegan became player-coach with the Syracuse, N.Y. Stars, a team which played a regular schedule of weekend exhibition matches with all comers.

Teammates with Flori on that club were Belleville players Ralph Plaus, John Baker, Doug Murray and Jack Hughes.

The Syracuse squad will be reunited, Saturday, and will supply the opposition for the Macs, in a benefit game scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. start.

Expected to be in McFarlands' lineup are goalie Gordie Bell, a standout in the club's march to the Allan Cup in 1958 and again the following year when the team took the World Hockey crown in Czechoslovakia; Jean Paul Lamirande, named the top defenceman in that World Tournament; Floyd Crawford, Jean Paul Payette, Lionel Reilly, Dave Jones, Keith MacDonald and Lou Lambie.

Recurring to the scene of former glories will be Joe Lepine, Minnie Ménard, Don Barclay, Roy Goldrich, Johnny McLellan, Keith Montgomery, Goose Gosselin, Bobo Bobetic, Pete Conacher, Jean Paul Payette and John Mureich.

Lepine is now a resident of Ottawa; Ménard will be coming in from Des Moines, Iowa; Barclay (the club's spare goalie-trainer who was known as Turk) resides in Brandon; Goldrich is coach of the Nipissing Kansas City Scouts; McLellan is assistant manager of Toronto Maple Leafs; Montgomery hails from Lindsay; Gosselin and Bobetic are in Belleville; Conacher resides in Toronto.

Proceeds from the game will go to a fund to be used to further the education of Goegan's sons.

Tickets are $1 each and may be purchased at the Red Barn, Reading and Greeting Shop, McKnight's, Variety, Murray's Food Market, or from any former McFarland player.

BCI Continues to Dominate Bay of Quinte Gymnastics

MADOC — Other high schools in the Bay of Quinte area haven't given up aiming for the district honors in girls' gymnastics but they must be getting accustomed to seeing Belleville Collegiate Institute (BCI) walk off with the crown.

Since Sue Davie began combining instruction in gymnastics with her teaching duties at BCI, five years ago, the city school has owned the Bay of Quinte title. With Mrs. Davie in charge, BCI is five for five.

And when the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Athletic Association competition takes place, April 18 at Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School in Peterborough, BCI will be trying for its fourth championship in a row.

As a team, the BCI girls finished the Bay of Quinte competition at Centre Hastings Secondary School here Wednesday, with a point total of 79.30.

Moira Secondary School, coached by Valerie Paddon and Donna Patterson while settling for second place, gave the winners a battle, scoring 76.68 points. It's an annual rivalry.

"We've been close but not quite for the past four years," offered Mrs. Paddon.

"We'll be there next year and things may be different."

Third place went to Bayside Secondary School with 72.80 points.

What makes a champion?

Coach Davie doesn't have any magic formula for success.

"It's lots, and lots of hard work," she explains.

The Spartan approach pays off but Mrs. Davie admits there is still time for fun and the girls enjoy the training as well as the competition.

"It helps to have a tradition of winning," comments Mrs. Davie.

BCI gymnasts took top honors in all round senior where Holly White was in command, and in all round elite with Wendy Donovan showing the way.

Moira captured first place in all round novice, Michelle Harrison, and intermediate, Leslie Claney.

Second and third in novice were Lynda Farnsworth, Moira, and Nancy Trumbley, East Northumberland Secondary School.

Isliersedaie, Ann Dadson, BCI and Susan Cooney, Bayside.

Senior, Sandy Guay, Moira, and Ann Douglas, BCI.

Player Shrugs Off Miller

Gary Player – In the Running

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary Player shrugged off the challenge of golf's newest whiz-kid boy, Johnny Miller, and prepared for another faceoff with Jack Nicklaus today in the 39th Masters tournament.

"I could win this tournament," the 39-year-old South African said as if to quell speculation that the season's first major championship shapes up as a Nicklaus-Miller shootout at Augusta National.

"If you have a favorite charity, I will bet you $500 I was 30 strokes better than Miller—maybe as much as 40—in the four majors last year." Player said. "I feel that the best judge of a player is how he does in the four big championships. That's how history will judge us all."

The informal comment in the players' dining room after Wednesday's final day of practice sent researchers thumbing through the record books and sure enough, Player would have won his bet.

Based on performances in the United States and British opens, the Masters and PGA, which represent the grand slam, the part-time farmer from Johannesburg was 30 stroker better than Miller and six better than Nicklaus.

"Actually, I would have preferred Player's record over that of Miller 'ast year because Gary won two majors," Nicklaus said. "But you must remember that Miller was just trying to establish himself on the tour, and he did."

Miller won eight U.S. tour titles and a ninth in Japan, leading the money winning list with $353,021 and gaining Player-of-the Year honors. Besides the Masters, Player won the British Open and the Danny Thomas tournament at Memphis.

The value of major crowns was the subject of brisk discussion as 76 players, including 18 foreigners and seven amateurs, teed off today for the four-day, 72-hole test. Rain was forecast.

Player, with eight major championships, is breathing down the neck of Nicklaus, who has 14 major titles and 12 if you throw out the two national amateur crowns he won.

Miller, despite his impressive collection of titles last year and his three quick wins on the Pacific Coast winter tour this season, has only one—the U. S. Open, won in 1973 with a record 63 finish.

Nicklaus' glistening cache includes four Masters, three U. S. Opens, two British Opens and three PGAs. Player has three British Opens, two Masters, two PGAs and a single U. S. Open.

Nicklaus says his primary objective in golf is to win all four of the major in a single year for an unprecedented grand slam.

Big Third For Flyers

STAN MIKITA

PHIL ESPOSITO

Mikita's Method: Pray a Lot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita has an idea about how Chicago Black Hawks, perennial contenders for the Stanley Cup, can stay alive in their playoff series with Boston Bruins.

"We have to pray a lot, and hope a couple of them get run over by a steamroller."

Mikita and the Hawks must win tonight or be knocked out by the Bruins, who took a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three first-round National Hockey League playoff series by routing Chicago 8-3 in Boston Tuesday night.

The Hawks, with the home-ice advantage tonight, will try and figure a way to stop Boston's Phil Esposito, who broke out of a scoring slump with three goals Tuesday night against his brother, Tony, the Chicago goalie.

Phil thought his brother, who was in goal in 70 of Chicago's 76 games during the regular season, definitely was not up to par.

"Why don't you tell my brother to start eating? he said. "They never even hit him a hard one."

Chicago is one of four teams whose NHL seasons could end tonight.

New York Rangers must win on the road to stay alive against New York Islanders in their commuter series; Toronto Maple Leafs hope to even their series against Los Angeles Kings at Maple Leaf Gardens, and St. Louis Blues will be at home in their effort to even things with Pittsburgh Penguins.

The upstart Islanders apparently didn't know they were supposed to fold under the pressure and bow to the playoff-seasoned Rangers.

"I'm proud of my kids," said Islanders coach Al Arbour after three third-period goals produced a 3-2 victory over the Rangers at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night. "It was their first playoff game in the Big Apple, so to speak, and they handled it well, exceptionally well."

Mile in 2.09.8

OTTAWA (CP) — Posey Town, owned by Gilbert Gallipeau of Gatineau Pointe, Que., and driven by Ferdinand Terrenc, of Lacerne, Que. stepped off the mile in two minutes, 09.8 seconds to win the featured race at Connaught Park Wednesday and return $6.80, $3.60 and $3.80.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Fighting Saints upset New England Whalers and San Diego Mariners rallied against Toronto Toros in World Hockey Association playoff openers Wednesday night but neither of the victors was expecting its series to end early.

"Sure it was nice to win the first one on their ice," said Saints coach Harry Neale after his club's 8-4 win over the Whalers at Hartford, Conn.

"But they'll be back. I expect this series to go a long way and both teams are capable of winning on the other team's ice."

In San Diego, the Mariners rallied from behind a 2-1 deficit to take a 5-3 win and Mariners winger Rick Smith said: "This is a big win for us since you have to take advantage of the home ice while you have it. I thought Toronto played a very tough, hard-checking game and it won't be any easier Saturday night."

After the second game Saturday night the teams move to Toronto for the third and fourth games Monday and Wednesday in the best-of-seven quarter-final.

The Whalers-Saints series resumes Friday in Hartford.

The other two quarter-final series are in play tonight with Phoenix Roadrunners at Quebec and Cleveland Crusaders visiting Houston Aeros.

Quebec Nordiques won the first game of their set against Phoenix on Tuesday, Tuesday's game at Houston is the opener of that series.

The Saints never trailed in the game Wednesday night, but the Whalers tied it twice.

Gord Gallant and Bill Butters scored to give Minnesota a 2-0 lead, but Ron Climie and Larry Pleau matched those goals for New England before the first period ended.

Wayne Connelly's power play goal gave Minnesota a 3-2 edge early in the second period but that was erased 25 seconds later by Pleau's second goal of the night.

Gary Gambucci and Mike Walton scored for the Saints in the second period before New England's Wayne Carleton reduced the edge to 5-4.

Connelly scored what proved to be the winning goal midways through the final period, John French's goal with 36 seconds left brought the Whalers closer, but not close enough.

Toronto, with goals from Lou Nanne, Vaclav Nedomansky and Gavin Kirk, took a 3-1 lead midway in the second period but two goals by Ray Adduono tied it up before the end of two periods.

The Toros slowed down in the final period and saw Wayne Rivers break the tie at 6:13 and Andre Lacroix add a power-play goal in the final minute.

Some of the Toronto players were restrained by Toros general manager Buck Houle. Meanwhile, Joe Hardy of the Mariners and Tony Feather-stone started fighting as the ice. Order was restored and the penalties were assessed.

Rangers Record Second Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Rangers, manager Billy Martin's pick to dethrone Oakland A's as baseball champions of the American League West, are going about it in strange ways, such as rally-killing baserunning, costly errors and, most of all, losing.

The Rangers made it two homers in a row when they bowed to Minnesota Twins 3-2 Wednesday night. Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago White Sox rallied for three runs in the ninth inning and defeated the A's 7-5, Kansas City Royals edged California Angels 7-6 on Hal McRae's RBI single in the ninth and Milwaukee Brewers beat Boston Red Sox 2-1.

Minnesota capitalized on two Texas throwing errors and Tony Oliva's second home run in as many games to edge the Rangers, who had a 10-3 record last April but are 0-2 in 1975. "I guess you can say we're off to a slower start," said pitcher Jim Bibby.

Eric Soderholm's sacrifice fly in the second inning and Oliva's homer in the fourth gave Minnesota a 3-0 lead. The Twins' second scored proved to be the winning run in the ninth. Soderholm singled with two out, stole second and continued to third on catcher Jim Sundberg's wild throw. Steve Braun followed with a routine grounder back to the mound but Bibby threw wildly to first, and Soderholm scored.

Texas chased Joe Decker in the sixth on two-out singles by Willie Davis and Jeff Burroughs and walks to Mike Hargrove and Jim Spencer, forcing in one run. Tony Oriles' single, Toby Harrah, forcing Burroughs home, but ended the rally by retiring Dave Nelson on a grounder.

Davis singled with one out in the ninth but was nailed trying to steal.

Pat Kelly's pinch triple off relief ace Rollie Fingers with two out in the ninth inning drove in Ron Santo and produced runs for Chicago after an intentional walk violated the book by putting the winning run ahead.

Jorge Orta started the uprising with a double off Paul Lindblad, who came on to quell a three-run Chicago rally in the eighth after successive singles by Bill Melton, Ken Henderson, Byron Johnson, May and Bucky Dent.

Fingers retired the next two batters as Orta remained at second, but Henderson was purposely passed and Kelly tripled.

McRae drove in the winning run for Kansas City with his fourth hit, a run-scoring single with out in the ninth inning and then threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the bottom of the ninth.

Amos Otis drew a one-out walk from reliever Chuck Dobson ahead of McRae, who had two singles, a double and a home run, greeted Orlando Pena with a

George Scott and Robin Yount drove in two runs apiece for Milwaukee. Scott "gave the Brewers the lead in the third inning with a two-run single off loser Bill Lee and Milwaukee added for three more runs in the fourth on Sixto Lezcano's double, singles by Darrell Porter, Pedro Garcia and Yount, and Bob Coluccio's sacrifice fly.

Argos Sign Hunsperger

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Wednesday they have signed defensive tackle Garrett Hunsperger, formerly with British Columbia Lions, to a three-year contract.

The 6-foot-3, 225-pound import was picked up by Argos on Canadian Football League waivers after the Lions released him following a B.C. Supreme Court decision in February ordering Hunsperger to pay $38,500 in salary and damages.

Hunsperger now is on bail pending his appeal of a two-month jail sentence on two charges of assault causing bodily harm arising out of incidents in B.C. last spring.

9 to 1 Wins Ruthless

NEW YORK (AP) — Nicosia, a $4-to-1 shot, outran Finalon in the stretch to win the $58,250 Ruthless Stakes for three-year-old fillies at Aqueduct Park Wednesday.

Running as an entry with Cut Class, Nicosia passed Finalon on the outside at the eighth pole and went on to win by three-quarters of a length. The time for the 1¼ miles was a slaken Fortune and Nobiesita.

record 1:49 3-5.

Nicosia paid $21.80, $8.00 and $5.40. Finalon returned $4 and $2.80. Something Regal finished third, 3¼ lengths behind the runner-up and paid $6 to show.

Never of Love finished fourth in the field of 13. Gallant Trail was fifth, followed by Maiden Bell, Funny Cat, Cut Class, Impetigeah, A Charm, Isle of # Forsch Faces Minimum No.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Forsch took only one hour and 38 minutes Wednesday to stop Montreal Expos with a two-hit pitching performance in a 4-0 St. Louis Cardinals National League baseball win.

"Everything felt real good," said Forsch, who faced the minimum of 27 batters. "I felt just as strong at the end as I did at the beginning."

Both the hits that Forsch allowed were erased on double plays. Thus the 6-foot-4, 205-pound pitcher was able to keep from working up a sweat in his first start of the year.

"I think it compares to the game I threw last year against the Expos toward the end of the season," said Forsch, who pitched a three-hitter against Montreal last Sept. 30 and had a no-hitter for seven innings.

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and Houston Astros beat Atlanta Braves 10-5. San Diego Padres' season opener against San Francisco Giants was rained out for the second day in a row.

Forsch, extending his winning streak to five games over two seasons, allowed just one hit to the Expos in the first six innings, an infield single by Barry Foote, Gary Carter then hit into a double play.

The only other hit off the Cardinal pitcher was a single in centre by Gary Scott leading off the seventh. Scott was wiped out when Foote hit into a double play. Between the second and seventh innings, Forsch retired 12 straight batters, most of them on fastballs.

Forsch got all the support he needed when the Cardinals scored two runs in the first inning on an RBI single by Reggie Smith and a sacrifice fly by Ted Simmons. Simmons drove in his second run of the game with a double in the seventh inning and Ted Sizemore's RBI hit in the eighth wrapped up the St. Louis scoring.

Darrel Chaney and Dave Concepcion hit one-out singles in the ninth inning off relief ace Mike Marshall to lead Cincinnati to its second straight victory over Los Angeles, the defending National League champion.

Down 3-0 at one point, the Reds rallied with a run in the sixth on a double by Ed Armbrister and a single by Joe Morgan, then scored again in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Chaney. Marshall came into the game when Dodger starter Andy Messersmith faltered in the seventh.

Cliff Johnson and pitcher Ramon Hernandez each knocked in two runs in a six-run

Love Leads Bulls Over KCO Kings

Chicago's Bob Love fired in 38 points and his team-mates held Kansas City-Omaha's Nate Archibald to 13 as the Bulls gained a 95-90 victory over the Kings Wednesday night in the opener of their National Basketball Association playoff series. It was the only NBA game played Wednesday. The best-of-seven quarter-final ... resumes Sunday afternoon at Kansas City.

In Wednesday's ... American Basketball Association games, Utah Stars took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series with a 125-106 win over Denver Nuggets and the Spirits of St. Louis tied their best-of-seven quarter-final ... by beating New York Nets 115-97.

With Love blazing away, the Bulls led by as many as 14 points. The Kings' swift little Archibald was limited to well below his 36.5 season average, mainly under the tight guarding of Norm Van Lier.

No Truth To Rumor

SAN DIEGO (CP) — Forget about Russian stars Valery Khrlamov and Alexander Yakushev joining Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

General manager Buck Houle of the Toros said Tuesday that he doesn't know anything about a report from Munich which said his team has made an offer of $1 million through the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation for the players.

"I don't know anything about it and neither does Johnny Bassett (president of the Toros)," Houle said. "In fact, the first I heard about it was when Mr. Bassett asked me what it was all about. Wish it were true, though."

Romantic Pianist Looks Like Tight End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Garrick Ohlsson looks more like a tight end for a pro football team than a young man often credited with restoring 19th-century romanticism to piano playing.

Standing six feet four and weighing in the range of 240 pounds, Ohlsson's offstage affects colorful slacks, turtleneck sweaters and sports jackets. He has a shock of dark brown hair and a beard.

"I consider myself extremely lucky," he said in an interview. "I feel my calling is to play the piano for people. I consider my career a spinoff from my inner commitment to music."

Now 28, Ohlsson has been committed to music since he was eight and growing up in White Plains, N.Y. His mother played the piano a bit and thought it might be nice if young Garrick took lessons. "I was hooked," he says. "I was a maniac after the second week. It was hard to stop me from practising."

Ohlsson has performed with most of the major orchestras of the world since winning the Warsaw International Piano Competition in 1970—the first American to do. Earlier he had won the Busoni Prize in Italy and the Montreal Piano Competition.

"My career at that point was developing nicely," he says of his decision to enter the Warsaw competition, "but I thought it would be helpful to win a competition to give it an extra kick.

"In America either you play the piano in the basement of the YMCA or you play at the Kennedy Centre or Avery Fisher Hall. I obviously choose the competition route because it was the line of least resistance."

He says he expects to play 60 to 70 concerts and recitals this year—fewer than he did in the year after his Warsaw triumph—but still a fairly hectic schedule "when you figure in travel time, rehearsals, receptions, interviews and a little sleep."

He found a recent appearance with the National Symphony Orchestra something of a luxury because it involved playing the same Chopin concerto four times, and he was able to stay put for nearly a week.

"I heard the Boston Symphony last night," he said, "and I don't know which I last heard a symphony concert at which I wasn't playing. And when you play you don't hear much else that's going on."

Ohlsson has also found time to do some recording, appearing three times on the Dick Cavett show, do a television special with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra play at a White House state dinner in 1970 and appear in an ad endorsing a scotch whisky.

He has not found time to get married—"so far, I don't know how long that's going to last." Is there someone special? "Let's just say I am enthusiastic about it."

Ohlsson has made two Chopin recordings for Connoisseur Society, one of the Piano Concerto No. 1 in E Minor with the Warsaw National Philharmonic, the other containing a sonata, a polonaise, a scherzo and an etude.

For Angel he also has cut two Chopin albums, the complete polonaises and four scherzos combined with Fantasia in F Minor. Angel has plans for six more albums in the next two years.

The pianist says he practises daily and also studies exclusively although not now in an organized way. One obsession is to listen to all the old recorded piano music he can find.

"Music is as much of a tradition as poetry was in the Greek classic days," he says. "I'm insanely curious about the passing on of the musical tradition.

Critics across the country praise Ohlsson's playing and he took understandable pride in reviews of a recital in New York in January. The music critic of the New York Times, Harold C. Schonberg, who had panned him two years earlier, wrote that he was right up in the rank of major pianists . . . He can be a musical giant."

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) You're going to make a sudden change in direction. A self-interest you've been vigorously pursuing will no longer appeal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It will be difficult to get a handle on things today. Much of what you desire to do will be beyond your control.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be careful how you treat friends today. Thoughtless actions could terminate a good and long-standing relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pay extra heed to things reflecting on your honor and reputation. Your actions are being observed by hostile eyes.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22) Now is the time to discard worn-out ideas that haven't accomplished the results you had hoped for. Think of new approaches.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22) Don't rely on resources of others. One who promised to help you won't be able to, now through no fault of his own.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 22) One who is usually a staunch ally will behave in a very non-quiescent manner today. Be forgiving. His defection is temporary.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22) Pace yourself sensibly at work-today. Don't tackle tasks exceeding your talents or present capabilities.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23-Dec 21) Be on your best behavior socially or you may act so as to cause others to hold you in low esteem.

CAPRICORN (Dec 23-Jan 19) You have a tendency today to mind others out if they don't comply readily with your ways. It could cost you a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb 19) Be careful while travelling today. If driving, keep your eyes and mind on the road. Don't daydream or talk incessantly to passengers.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20) Continue to be extra cautious and watchful in financial dealings. Count your change. Get receipts of all transactions.

Opening lead — Q ♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Lancelot, the peerless knight and bridge player, looked at his collection of aces, kings and queens with almost as much awe as if he had found the Holy Grail. Then he looked over at Dinadan, his partner, and decided he had better make sure to play extremely if the hand worked out that way. He opened five notrump.

Dinadan wasn't sure what that bid meant but he thought his kind of spades justified a raise to six.

West opened the queen of spades. Lancelot won with his ace in order to keep dummy's one entry alive. Then he cashed his top red cards. East discarded a couple of small spades.

Now came the top clubs. West had to throw the 10 of spades in order to hang on to his red jacks. Now Lancelot led his last club, the deuce. West had to make another discard. It had to be his last spade. He could not spare a red jack.

Lancelot was now able to discard dummy's king of spades. East won with the jack of clubs and had to lead a spade. Lancelot's nine and seven had become a winning finesse over East's eight and six.

Only One Norse Camp Discovered

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP)— Despite numerous reported Viking sites in North America, only one—L'Anse Aux Meadows in Newfoundland—is genuine, says Scandinavian archeologist Birgita Wallace.

The archeologist from the Swedish Museum in Pitsburgh told the eighth annual meeting of the Canadian Archeological Association that supposedly Norse sites in Minnesota, Northern Ontario and the Eastern United States all are hoaxes or misinterpretations.

She predicted that no Viking sites will be found in North America outside of Newfoundland and Labrador, where the climate and geography approximate those of Viking sites in Greenland and Iceland.

The site at L'Anse Aux Meadows on the north coast of Newfoundland was found in 1960 by Norwegian explorer Helge Ingstad and it was subsequently dug by Ingstad and his wife and by the national historic parks and sites branch of the federal government. The site became a national park in 1972 and excavations continue.

Miss Wallace, who helped excavate the site last summer, said there is no doubt that L'Anse Aux Meadows is a genuine Norse site. It is situated in an area of field and bog containing bog iron and there have been attractive to the vikings who were cattle and pig breeders and used bog iron extensively for manufacture of tools and weapons.

It contains the remains of a sod house similar in both building technique and layout to structures of the Viking period in Greenland, she said. The house was made of layers of sod in a brick-like pattern and contained three main parts: forms along the side walls and central hearths.

An iron smithy was found some distance from the house structure, similar to other Viking sites in Iceland.

Artifacts found include a soapstone spindle whorl of the type often found on Viking sites, a clear glass bead difficult to date but common to the Viking era and a bronze pin.

She said evidence from the site indicated about 40 to 50 people lived on the site for 10 years or less. The sagas say the Vinland explorers were driven away after a few years by attacks from the native population.

Davis Predicts Another Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be no increase in the price of oil or natural gas at the conferences on energy and the economy which concludes today, Ontario Premier Willis m Davis predicted Wednesday.

He emerged from a dinner meeting with the nine other provincial premiers and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and said the conference was stalemated.

Mr. Davis, who is opposed to any price increases, said he expected another conference would be called within the next two months to again discuss the question.

"The former understanding (a price of $6.50 a barrel for oil negotiated last year and which continues until the end of June) will probably continue," Mr. Davis said.

The Ontario premier also stated flatly that Ontario's position at the next federal-provincial conference would not change unless there was a dramatic upturn in the economy.

At the opening session of the conference Wednesday, Ontario flatly rejected any suggestion of an increase in the price of oil and natural gas. The federal government, Alberta and Saskatchewan favor an increase.

"We think the position we are taking is in the national interest," Mr. Davis said in an interview.

He was asked if he felt Ontario was fighting a rear-guard action in battling against an increase in oil and natural gas prices.

"The price of oil still hasn't gone up," he replied.

Mr. Davis also was asked about a reported statement by federal Energy Minister Donald MacDonald that it might be in the province's best interest to negotiate a settlement because an imposed settlement might be higher.

"If the energy minister imposes a price "that is higher than he feels could be negotiated he is not acting responsibly," Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis concluded that he had given up hope that the province's position on holding the line regarding oil prices would be accepted by the federal government and the other provinces.

Pressure on Food Prices Still Exists

OTTAWA (CP) — Food cost increases have moderated in the last three months but strong upward pressures remain, the food prices review board said Wednesday.

The board's seventh quarterly report, for January-March said the "strong upward momentum of food price inflation has still not yet been broken."

It said the farm sector, where take-home prices have levelled off, may well be looking at the wage gains of industrial workers in assessing what they should be getting, rather than continuing to rely on past levels of farm income.

The report amounted to some hedging on what will happen to food prices, compared with most recent board forecasts.

A grocery industry meeting in Toronto earlier this week heard suggestions of declines in prices for a number of basic foods ranging from oils to sugar and coffee.

The last quarterly report in December forecast a climb of at least 16 per cent in 1975 unless there were reductions in consumer spending and income demands.

The latest report, cautioning against over-optimistic expectations for future prices, said sharp declines in beef and sugar, and to some degree in potatoes and eggs, caused a decline in food costs in the January-March period.

But at the same time, prices rose substantially for milk, pork, bread, processed vegetables and fresh fruit.

Rest Harmful If Bones Broken

TORONTO (CP) — New ideas, which are expected to revolutionize the treatment of broken bones, are being studied at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Dr. Robert Salter, surgeon-in-chief at the hospital, told the Clinical Research Society of Toronto that studies with rabbits overturned the teaching of more than a century that rest is essential to healing.

He said the need for motion, rather than rest, has been proven in testing with rabbits. When rabbits were totally immobilized, joints never healed properly, he said, but when the knee joints of the animals with damaged knees were kept in motion they healed much more rapidly.

He said constant motion apparently stimulates immature cells to bone marrow to differentiate into proper cartilage.

Argument Described Over Hunt for Plane

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A radio operator said Wednesday a lawyer for Pacific Arctic Oils Ltd. advised him not to testify at an inquest into a missing aircraft in which 20 persons were killed.

The operator, Roderick Brooks, also told the inquest of a disagreement with a reporter over whether a search should be started for the aircraft.

Brooks, 20, said Donald Brenner of Vancouver, counsel for Pasarctic, whose engine-less Lockheed Electra aircraft crashed Dec. 29 into the sea ice off Melville Island near Resolut, N.W.T., in the worst air disaster in arctic history, warned him he might become involved in civil suits if he appeared.

Mr. Brooks, who quit the company two months ago, said he argued with another Pasarctic employee, Len Sherrald, in an attempt to have a search started quickly.

Only co-pilot David Hatton and flight engineer Gary Weyman survived the crash.

Crown Attorney Ed Brogden said attempts to obtain testimony from the two survivors is continuing. Mr. England, who adjourned the inquest in frustration last week when key witnesses were not available, has asked that witnesses be forced to testify in supreme courts of the areas in which they live.

The radio operator, who said he did not hold a radio operator's licence when employed by Pasarctic, quoted Mr. Sherrald as telling him "not to worry about it" — which Mr. Brooks grew concerned about the late arrival of the aircraft.

Mr. Sherrald was in the radio tower when Mr. Brooks heard a radio transmission saying the Electra, which used the call letters CF-PAR, was six miles out on final approach.

When Mr. Brooks grew concerned, he said, Mr. Sherrald told him the report said the plane was 60 miles away—not six.

One-half hour after the scheduled arrival, Mr. Brooks called Mr. Sherrald again, he testified.

"After a few minutes of arguing, I managed to convince Mr. Sherrald that even if it had been 60 miles out, it should have been here anyway," said the witness.

"At near as I can recall, he didn't want to believe something of this magnitude had happen."

Mr. Brooks testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act and the Territorial Evidence Ordinance, which give him immunity against incriminating himself or becoming party in a civil action which might arise from his testimony.

MPs Move Quickly To OK Billion Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is wasting no time in its move to increase MPs' salaries.

The bill designed to raise their pay and allowances by one-third was to go before the miscellaneous estimates committee Thursday. It received Commons approval in principle Wednesday.

"I don't see why we should delay the bill," said committee chairman Fernand Leblanc, an accountant who represents the Montreal riding of Laurier for the Liberals.

If the second reading vote is any indication, detailed study will be anything but "smooth. The vote was 166 to 27 with 17 Progressive Conservatives and one Liberal breaking party ranks to vote against the bill with nine New Democrats.

Three NDP members also broke party lines to join the rest of the Liberals and the Conservatives in supporting it.

The committee had two meetings scheduled today—one at 9:30 a.m. EST, the other at 8 p.m.

And there will be another Friday morning at 9:30 a.m. "It's a more hectic week if necessary," Mr. Leblanc said.

The proposed legislation would raise Commons members to at least $24,000—$12,000 salary and $12,000 in tax-free allowance—retroactive to last July 8. The present level is $18,000—$12,000 salary plus $6,000 allowance.

The bill that goes before the committee today actually would increase incomes 33 per cent. But the government reduced that any increase should be delayed until 1978.

Mr. Broadbent said the proposed increase does beyond maintaining what he says is a decent standard of living. He recommended Parliament leave the present $6,000 allowance alone and increase the basic salary by the amount the consumer price index has risen since the last raise in October, 1970. This would be between 28 and 30 per cent.

"There is high income brackets should hab further increases beyond what is necessary to maintain their standard of living," he said Wednesday.

He said the only way to achieve an equitable distribution of income "is for those with very high incomes to say 'we've got to stop.'"

More Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal student summer employment program is getting an additional $13.4 million, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday.

The details will be given shortly but I can say it will include a substantial increase in the Opportunities for Youth (OFY) program," he told Ed Broadbent, New Democrat parliamentary leader, in the Commons.

Phase-out Of EMO Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Joint action by government ministries in time of emergency will replace the need for a provincial emergency measures branch, acting solicitor-general John Clement said Wednesday.

The concept under the development of task forces consisting of senior representatives from provincial ministries involved in alleviating such emergencies as major floods, forest fires, air crashes, epidemics and similar disasters," he said.

"This concept will provide similar services as those formerly co-ordinated by the emergency measures branch.

"Therefore, it has been decided by cabinet to gradually phase out the emergency measures branch over the course of the coming year."

Price and Pay Restraints Urged

Premiers Endorse Voluntary Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — Although they couldn't agree on an oil price rise, delegates to the federal-provincial conference on energy and the economy that ended Thursday did fall in behind Finance Minister John Turner's proposals for voluntary wage, price and rent controls.

The three-to-four-year program Mr. Turner presented to provincial premiers and finance ministers was coupled with a warning that the economy will continue to slide unless inflation is brought under control. National production already is being hurt because of inflation, fuelled largely by higher wage demands, he indicated.

The government wants an agreement on targets for a staged reduction of the inflation rate. Wage increases, as well as professional fees and rent increases, would be tied to these targets.

Industry price rises would be limited to those needed to recover higher costs.

Overseeing wage and price rises would be monitoring boards. Mr. Turner insists these would not be a revival of the 1968-72 experiment with a prices and incomes commission, which foundered after labor refused to agree to restraints.

Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer summed up the feeling of several premiers, commenting: "I'm satisfied that while there's reason to be skeptical, nevertheless it must be tried."

He called for a three-year effort to make the program work.

But with tentative support for this initiative, Mr. Turner was left to decide whether the government can proceed with its announced May budget.

The two-day conference's failure to agree on future oil prices above their current $8.50 a barrel level makes it hard to frame budget proposals. Mr. Turner said he could proceed, but he would have to make assumptions about any oil price rises that might be agreed to later.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said after the conference that the cabinet will have to decide whether to proceed. He said the provinces have used up federal budget assessment as a boomerang, and won't agree to oil price changes because they want to know the budget proposals.

Meanwhile, the cost to the federal government for subsidizing eastern oil refineries to keep consumer prices down there is mounting. As U.S. exports are trimmed back to zero by 1980, revenue from the higher export prices for this product drops.

So federal payments to eastern refiners to continue the subsidy will rise from between $250 million and $400 million in the current fiscal year that started April 1 to between $450 million and $600 million in the 1976 fiscal year.

Ottawa had favored letting domestic oil prices rise higher, closer to parity with prevailing world prices of about $12 a barrel. Ontario and Nova Scotia stoutly resisted any price change.

Mr. Turner said the government will schedule intensive discussions over the next few weeks to flesh out the details of the wage-price restraint program. There have already been 20 meetings of federal ministers and representatives from all economic sectors.

Commitments have neither been sought nor obtained from any group to agree to restraints, he said.

Food Cheaper But Index Up

OTTAWA (CP) — There was a drop in average food prices last month for the first time in a year and a half, Statistics Canada reported today.

The consumer price index went up, as usual, but the five-tenths-of-one-per-cent rise was the smallest increase since the fall of 1973, except for a similar increase in January.

The price index in March was 11.3 per cent above a year earlier.

Main factors in the index increase in March were petroleum, cars and clothing.

"Fuel oil prices, moving up for the first time since last June, as well as increasing gasoline prices in most parts of the country, accounted for about one-fifth of the nine-tenths of one per cent rise in the index for all items other than food," the agency report said.

"Higher clothing prices, some rebounding from sales in the preceding month, contributed to a similar extent.

"New car prices also rose between February and March with the termination of manufacturers' rebates on selected models, and higher quotations were recorded for all major and small appliances surveyed."

The all-item index was at 178.9 in March. Stated another way, this meant that a basket of consumer items that could be bought for $100 in 1961 cost $178.90 last month, $178 in February and $180.80 in March of last year.

The purchasing power of the 1961 dollar now is 56 cents.

Ontario Satisfied

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario is "satisfied" with the stalemate over oil and gas prices which developed at the federal-provincial conference on energy and the economy, Premier William Davis said Thursday.

"All I know is that there hasn't been an increase in the price of oil as of April 10," the Ontario premier said at the end of the two-day conference.

He emphasized in an interview that Ontario will continue to be adamant in its opposition to price increases as long as inflation and high unemployment are problems.

Nixon Backs Stand by Davis

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Energy Board should be given the power to control gas and oil prices in Ontario if stalemate at price increases results from the federal-provincial energy conference being held in Ottawa, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday.

Mr. Nixon said he agreed with the position being taken at the conference by Premier William Davis but said the premier should have taken a similarly hard stand at the previous energy conference, in January, 1974.

West Riverbank Park Is Given Ontario Grant

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The provincial government has made a $75,000 grant available for development in Belleville's West Riverbank Park.

The grant brings to $100,000 the provincial funds piloted the development in recent years and is the total sum originally requested by the city for the project.

The funds are made available under the Parks Assistance Act, which means the city must contribute an amount equal to provincial funding.

The original $100,000 request was first filed from city hall two years ago and the natural resources ministry allocated $25,000 at that time.

To date, about $6,000 of the first grant has been spent, said Lloyd Syer, parks director. This year's parks budget calls for spending another $38,000 — with the city paying it half share.

About 87 acres of the park — with 2,000 feet of waterfrontage on the west bank of the Moira River in north Belleville — already have been made available for public use. The total development will be about 100 acres.

Plans for work this year include some service road construction, grading, seeding and tree-planting.

Availability of the additional grant was announced from the office of Correctional Services Quinte.

Oil Parley Failure From Start

OTTAWA (CP) — "It failed before it began," admitted Prime Minister Trudeau at the close of the two-day federal-provincial conference on domestic crude oil and natural gas prices.

Mr. Trudeau, who joined the producing provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan in opposing higher prices than the current $8.50 a barrel, blamed uncompromising stands taken by premiers who said no increase should be made at this time.

The premiers left town giving Mr. Trudeau authority to seek a compromise in individual talks with premiers.

At a news conference Mr. Trudeau expressed optimism that a price agreement can be made before the current agreement expires on June 30.

He said Ottawa would not set a price on its own unless it got abundantly clear that premiers would continue miles apart on the issue.

Ottawa would have the right to unilaterally set prices under the petroleum administration bill now being considered by Parliament.

But, Mr. Trudeau's statement left open the possibility of at least an informal get-together of first ministers before the June deadline.

Parking Near Plaza Banned

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Parking of cars along the East Dundas St. flank of the Belleville Plaza will be banned.

The ban — following complaints to city hall about cars owned by employees of the adjacent Unemployment Insurance Commission regional office — will be partial, for now.

City council's traffic committee Thursday agreed with a report from Police Chief Douglas Crosbie that the plaza's Dundas frontage be a prohibited parking area.

The committee two weeks ago was told by Mayor Robin Jeffery she had received complaints from shoppers that the parked vehicles obscured vision on the plaza's two Dundas exits. The committee ordered a study of the problem — which stemmed from a controversy last November after the shopping centre's management decided to charge UIC workers of using its property as a workhours parking lot.

Chief Crosbie suggested that only the section of frontage leading to the plaza's east exits be posted with warning signs at present. If signs are then parked in the unmarked zone, it also will get signs.

U.S. May Pay More for Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet is considering an increase of between 50 and 60 per cent on the price of natural gas exported to the United States, government sources confirmed today.

Although no final decision has been taken, the cabinet is understood to be looking at increases to $1.50 or $1.80 a thousand cubic feet from the current price of $1.

Ford May Get Leave For Armed Evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders predict rejection of President Ford's request for $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam but indicate likely approval of limited authority for United States troops to evacuate endangered Americans and Vietnamese.

Even before Ford spoke to an unusually silent joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives Thursday night, key congressmen were saying there was no chance that additional arms would be voted for South Vietnam.

"Congress will never vote for military aid," said House Democratic Leader Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts.

"Further military assistance would only prolong or merely postpone an ultimate Communist victory," said Senator John McClellan (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the appropriations committee and until recently a strong supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Ford coupled his request for the additional military aid, more than double the $300 mil-

South Vietnam Troops Repulse Strong Attack

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops withstood a third day of assaults against a provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon today and met attacks on two district capitals to the south, the Saigon command reported.

The command said the North Vietnamese—who began attacking Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province, Wednesday—hit the eastern and southeastern edges of the city today.

The Viet Cong said the Communist-led forces gained control of the market place, the provincial headquarters, an engineering base and the eastern part of the airfield. But the Saigon command said the invaders were driven out.

lion for arms and ammunition he has been successfully seeking for South Vietnam since January, with an appeal for a $250-million initial installment for food, medical supplies and other humanitarian aid for the hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese refugees.

In contrast, he made no renewal of his $225-million aid request for neighboring Cambodia, saying "it may be too late" already to prevent the fall of that embattled country to Communist insurgents.

Phnom Penh Airport Protected

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian government ground forces and planes using advanced United States fire bombs bailed a 296-man Khmer Rouge force that battled to within two miles of Phnom Penh's airport.

Military sources said "the government's defence lies strengthened somewhat" after the air force dropped fire bombs on insurgent forces that penetrated to within mortar range of the airport, the capital's last supply line.

Old Lincoln Jail for Sale

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Imagine chewing chicken in the same courtyard where Sydney George Chambers was hanged Dec. 15, 1944, for the murder of a nine-year-old girl.

The Lincoln County jail is up for sale again and owner Jack Birnie says the 113-year-old, three-storey jail building is ideal for conversion to a restaurant or discotheque.

Just think of waiters dressed in striped uniforms, cooks with iron cannonballs strapped to their legs and customers sipping wine from bent tin cups they use to bang tables and bars for attention in the best late-movie tradition.

Or dancing next to the trapdoor where Chambers dropped to his place in Canada's last only man ever hanged at the jail.

Mr. Birnie bought the jail and the acre of land last May for $75,000 and it now is for sale at $175,000. If there are no buyers, he says he will go ahead with a restaurant himself in a few years.

For now, the owner and operator of a dental laboratory in the city owns the only jail in town.

The lurkless Chambers admitted to police in a statement that he killed the girl, who disappeared on Christmas Eve in 1944 and whose body was never found, but later denied it and asserted his innocence right up to the end.

His body was buried in the courtyard and exhumed and reburied in a cemetery in September, 1972. It remained there until the Niagara regional government decided to sell the Lincoln County facility and the Welland County jail after they were replaced by a regional centre.

Pollution Controller Sniffs Out Disasters

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Belling sniffs out disasters.

He also predicts them as part of his job as contingency planning and development officer in the pollution control branch of the Ontario environment ministry.

He keeps track of the number of chemical spills and leaks during the year in Ontario and tries to plan ahead to avoid such incidents.

His recently-completed statistics for 1974 show 523 reported chemical spills.

Some of his observations have led jokers in the ministry to refer to him as the prophet of doom.

In March, 1974, he recommended a closer look at the danger to shipping in the St. Lawrence River and lower Lake Erie. In April, the tanker Imperial Sarnia went aground in United States waters near Brockville. Ont., leaking 100,000 gallons of oil. Some of that oil reached Canadian shores.

Last June, he sent a memo to ministry regional offices saying that his study showed railways were less safe than other means to transport hazardous materials.

On Jan. 9, a Canadian National Railways train left the tracks at Paisley about 20 miles southwest of Owen Sound, spilling about 50,000 gallons of bunker fuel oil, study.

From his office in downtown Toronto Mr. Belling can see trains as they criss-cross the city at 30 m.p.h. at more and more frequent intervals transporting dangerous chemicals.

His report shows most 1974 Ontario spills involved petroleum products—a total of 264 incidents accounting for about 700,000 gallons spewed out on the countryside.

The largest was caused by an oil pipeline break near Sarnia May 1. About 44,000 gallons escaped into a small drainage ditch.

The remaining 131 spills concerned such nasty substances as acids and caustic alkalis.

Mr. Belling said statistics show about 29 per cent of all spills are caused by equipment failure and another 23 per cent by human carelessness.

But it is easier to blame a faulty valve than yourself and some reliable workers have told him "the equipment failure rate is dead wrong; we can attribute almost all these cases to carelessness."

He said when a spill takes place, speed means money saved. A barrel of oil worth $10 can cost up to $100 to clean up and $200 if it is not done immediately. In some spills, costs have been followed to $600 a barrel.

Mr. Belling is getting ready for a rash of calls this spring reporting green creeks and streams along the Great Lakes.

The green substance is used to combat sea lamprey eels and is not a threat.

But he said the public's reaction is appreciated because it shows they are alert and ready to report any seeming chemical spills.

In 29 cases during 1974, the cleanup crews were first summoned by a citizen.

Tour of Battlefield May Locate Missing Color

By CASH MACAFFY
Staff Reporter

The mystery of the missing regimental color of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment could be solved later this month when an official pilgrimage is made to Second World War battlefields and cemeteries in Italy.

Col. Angus Duffy, wartime regimental sergeant major of the Hastie Pees and post-war commanding officer, recalls the color on a flag upon which the regiment's battle honors were inscribed — was stolen from the officers' mess in the Belleville armory in 1958.

"At first we kept it quiet, hoping the thief would return the flag. Then we began getting letters, unsigned, saying the color would be well looked after and would be returned to its proper place. The Boot — meaning Italy.

"When we heard no more and the color wasn't returned, as CO of the regiment I called a special parade and declared the regiment had been disgraced. As a token of this, I swore never again to wear my cap badge until the color was returned to the regiment, and I never have."

As a member of the pilgrimage returning at Italy this month, Col. Duffy will be wearing his beret — with no cap badge.

"I'm now convinced whoever took the color was a member of the regiment, probably over-emotional as a result of his wartime experiences," Col. Duffy said.

"If the color is still in Canada, I would be delighted to deliver it to Italy and install it in the church at Orsieva. Or perhaps we might come across it on our Italian pilgrimage."

Under the auspices of the federal department of veterans' affairs, the pilgrimage will be led by veterans' affairs minister Daniel J. MacDonald, himself a veteran of the Sicilian-Italy campaign.

Also involved in the party, which leaves April 19 and returns May 2 will be representatives of the units of the First Canadian Corps that liberated Italy. Representing the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be Col. Duffy and Basil Smith, of Carrying Place. The 4th Field Company, Royal Canadian Engineers will be represented by Hap Charinee, of Belleville, Ken Bradford, former principal of Loyalist Collegiate, now a resident of Alberta, will represent the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Also on the tour will be about 100 schoolchildren, boys and girls, who will get a firsthand look at Canadian military history.

Back to Battlefields

Angus Duffy, wartime Regimental Sergeant Major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and its peacetime commanding officer, will be one of a large group of Canadian veterans revisiting Italian campaign battlefields later this month. The department of veterans' affairs is sponsoring the trip, which also includes about 100 schoolchildren.

Pilot Project Aiming at Troubled Students

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A pilot project that reaches out to heal the social wounds of students while attempting to meet their academic needs is being planned for Quinte Secondary School next fall.

The project, now dubbed "The Little Red School House," will be headed by a community based team that will attempt to break down social problems that hinder some secondary school students. The project will be directed at those students who find they cannot cope with the conventional classroom.

The community contact team will be made up of two groups. The inner team, forming the core of the project, will consist of a teacher-counsellor, a school nurse, an in-class teacher and an attendance counsellor. The second team, referred to as advisory personnel, will be on standby to back up the inner team with a variety of skills and resources.

"If this project can save just five students a year then it will pay for itself," said Frank Chapman, vice - principal of Quinte Secondary School and a planner with the project team. About 18 teachers and guidance personnel met at the high school Thursday to iron out preliminary details.

Mr. Chapman said the pilot project will offer an alternative to students who through family or social problems can not complete their education. He also said that teachers must watch "to heal the social wounds before they can expect students to achieve academically."

Jack Dixon, a teacher-counsellor and a member of the inner team, explained the concept. Inner team would be involved with the family or by what ever means possible to solve social problems. He said teachers are becoming increasingly aware that many academic problems are caused by family or out-of-school situations.

The committee, investigating this alternative, will apply to the ministry of education for a grant under the community programs. The maximum grant under this plan is $10,000. Some additional funds for the project could come from the alternatives in education fund of the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Chapman said the project may only involve five or six students initially. Several other Ontario schools, in Toronto and London, have similar projects under way.

Committee members also expect to include the seven elementary schools, belonging to the Quinte family, as part of the preventive work by the contact team. Mr. Dixon stressed the need to develop preventive programs.

Ellis Critical Of Policy Timing

OTTAWA — Timing of the announcement of new federal dairy policies recently encouraged premature price hikes and hoarding, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings says.

He called on Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan to make all such future announcements in the Commons.

Recent announcements on dairy policy were made outside the House by the minister, he said.

Despite previous questioning in the Commons the minister waited until the Easter recess to make his statements outside the Commons, he said.

He called the statement deceptive in terms of returns to farmers. It also encouraged "premature price escalation to the consumer" and "profiteering by those financially capable of doing it."

The policy he said should have been announced at least two months earlier so that the industry had time to review and suggest revisions.

Despite the fact Mr. Whelan had announced a review of the industry a year ago, the minister did not consult with industry or dairy farmer, Mr. Ellis said.

Until the government fulfils its commitments to farmers, beef number will decline and overall annual production continue to drop.

Mr. Ellis said the government also has ignored problems caused by specialty cheese imports, affecting industrial milk production.

In December 1974 imports of processed cheese totalled 3,552,000 pounds while exports during the same month were only 425,000 pounds.

Chamber Not Anxious To Run Dock Facility

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town officials are still waiting for response to a tender call for a Canadian government dock operator after talks with the Trenton Chamber of Commerce failed to produce an agreement with the group over dock operation this summer.

A tender call, to close in five days, has produced some interest but no firm commitment from a Trenton group or individual to operate a canteen and gasoline bar at the dock.

Chamber manager Jack Wilson said Thursday recent talks with town council ended when the town indicated it plans to tender for an operator.

The chamber was given the opportunity to first refuse to operate the dock. Over two years ago, the Trenton organization ran the dock service for three consecutive years.

During this year's talks, said Mr. Wilson, the chamber indicated it was concerned over a number of new charges to be levied at the dock and the operation's profitability.

"We haven't said we would run it," he said "We wanted council to investigate other charges at the dock, so we got a letter saying that it would be tendered."

Cost of operation was a prime factor in the talks, said Mr. Wilson. "There's no way we'd go into it if we'd go into the red."

Concern over the dock operation's profit picture is closely tied with operating deficits the Chamber is forecasting for this year. In 1974, the Chamber went into the red.

Mr. Wilson said that at the minimum wage, both those of the provincial and federal governments, it would cost the chamber at least $48 a day to provide staff to man the gas pumps and small canteen.

Other services, such as power, water and sewer disposal, are provided and paid for by the town. An operator would sell gasoline, bought through the town, and run the canteen from May 17 to September 15.

Chamber involvement in the dock operation will likely continue in the form of assistance to incoming boaters. Information about the town and location of various business has been, and will continue to be, provided by the group, said Mr. Wilson.

Legion Cannons May Have Guarded Canada

PICTON — Twin cannons mounted on the front lawn of the Picton Legion Hall may have been used in historic battles says Jack Weisman, president of the Prince Edward Historical Society.

Mr. Weisman, a well — known Prince Edward gun collector, hoped he learned something of the cannons' history from an old issue of the Picton Gazette.

The guns were reported purchased by canning factory magnate Wellington Boulter to grace the grounds of the old Picton collegiate.

When this building burned in the 1940's the cannons were removed and re-erected on the Legion lawn.

One of the cannons was supposed to have been used during the battle of Queenston Heights and the other at the Battle of Windmill Point.

Music Man

Music Box Generates Interesting Collection

By MARG BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — When Frank Foley of Belleville opened a birthday gift from his wife several years ago, he lifted the lid on a Pandora's Box playing a pied piper's tune.

The unusual gift of a small music box triggered her husband's curiosity and has led him across Europe in search of collector's items.

"I became so fascinated that I started this," said Mr. Foley indicating a display of music boxes prepared for the Prince Edward Historical Society's annual meeting.

"The charm of music boxes is hearing tunes the world has forgotten," he told society members.

Mr. Foley, one of about 25 serious collectors in the world, says each music box has its own personality because of the quantity of hand workmanship in its creation.

"You can almost get an indication of the workman's soul," he remarked.

The collector said the mention of music boxes frequently prompts inquiries "tiny powder-puff things" but such machines were only the beginning.

"The fun of a music box is not only listening to it but watching it work," he explained.

To illustrate his point Mr. Foley played his "real fun" music box featuring a wooden block simulating a drum, tiny bees and butterflies and castanets.

Another machine prized by the collector is a barrel organ or Hurdy Gurdy, one of the oldest in his collection, that dates back to the early 1800s.

The organ features Pan pipes which are loud and shrill and is the type of machine used by organ-grinders who made their living on the streets.

It was made in Berlin by Cocchi, Bacigalupo and Graffina.

Another favorite of the collector's display was a Concert Roller Organ that sold for 96.75 in Sears-Roebuck catalogues of 1908.

Among his latest acquisitions is a fairgrounds organ bought in Vienna. Mr. Foley says he now is primarily collecting larger machines such as this. .

The collector retired from the Foley Foundry in Belleville in 1972 and since that time has spent much time studying his hobby.

He was invited by the Belgium government to spend a summer at the Royal Museum in Brussels to evaluate and catalogue its collection of 120 music boxes.

Although he has collected many machines since the first given to him by his wife, "Pandora's Box" remains in his home on the plane to remind him of his discovery of the worl of music boxes.

Nicol Critical Of New Budget

PICTON — Jan Nicol Prince Edward-Lennox NDP candidate in the upcoming provincial election terms the budget announced April 7 by the province's Progressive Conservative government "an attempt to woo votes rather than check inflation."

The Conservatives, Miss Nicol said, "consistently introduce watered-down versions of NDP programs because they know they are popular."

Miss Nicol approved of protection for farmers against loss, but only as a first step in an agricultural stabilization program.

The NDP candidate also approved of the reduction in sales tax, pointing out that the NDP has always opposed this form of taxation that taxes everyone at the same rate, regardless of income.

What We Think

an engineer's view of current affairs

Nationalism and Canadian Engineers — It seems that Canadians talk incessantly about foreign control. Some claim it has become a national obsession. Perhaps it has. It would be a dangerous assumption, however, to assume that Canadians will continue to talk indefinitely and do nothing about it. The quest for a distinctive Canadian identity is a matter of real concern, and for professional engineers the quest extends to a search for a Canadian engineering identity also.

As a leading industrial nation, Canada is heavily dependent on technology and I feel very strongly that Canadian engineers have a duty and a responsibility to contribute their input. The fact is, however, that industry in Canada invests a smaller share of its total national product in R&D than most industrialized nations. Seventy-five per cent of Industrial Research and Development establishments employ five or fewer scientists or engineers.

In 1972 the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario appointed a nine-man Committee to investigate the increasing tendency to employ non-Canadian engineers and engineering in Canadian projects. In its report to the Council it was indeed confirmed that the concern had a basis in fact. Data available from federal government sources indicated the probability that payments to non-residents for professional fees in 1969 represented some 10,000 engineering jobs. As Chairman of this Committee, I was even more discouraged that there were definite indications that many public and private bodies were ill-informed as to the true nature and extent of Canadian engineering capability.

Space will not permit a complete disclosure of the Committee's findings; however, as a nation we cannot afford the under-employment of our native engineering talent and not have the spin-off effect of proper or full utilization. The solutions to the problem are now being considered at the national level through the Canadian Council of Professional Engineers. Ontario engineers will continue their interest in this subject — not because we want space on the nationalistic bandwagon, but because we feel strongly that Canadian engineers have a vital role to play in the development of our Canada. To do this we must have Canadian hands on the engineering tiller — not just manning the oars.

As C. James Mouli, P.Eng., who is serving as President of APEO, put it—"In a society where Canadian engineering involvement in the development of our own country, we are not asking for special privileges for ourselves. We are seeking what the majority of Canadians in other walks of life want for themselves, namely, participation in the future of our country, not as followers or imitators but as innovators".

I believe that Canadian engineers and Canadian workers are the equal of any, and it is unjust to deny our own development and our own environment there are no better.

It is regrettable that Canadian engineers should be inhibited from realizing their full potential through failure to adequately use their capabilities. Your comments are invited.

O. J. Zanatta P.Eng.,
2nd Vice-President APEO

P.M. Grabs Opposition Plan for Curbing Strike Action

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — In federal politics you come on with a good idea, and the government grabs it.

Just ask the New Democrats. They have been complaining for years that every time they propose a significant reform or advance in social legislation, the Liberals lifted it.

There was the old age pension, family allowances, medicare — the New Democrats dreamed them up . . . but the Liberals bring it in, passed (and aren't they almost always?) put them into operation.

That is why the New Dems like the CCF before them are known basically as "Liberals in a hurry."

So you have got an idea with obvious political sex appeal, and New Democrat or Conservative alike, you discover it suddenly becoming government property.

Otto Jelinek, one of only two Conservatives in Toronto's Liberal sweep of the Toronto-Metro constituencies in last summer's election, is the newest victim of Liberal "moveyriation."

A two-term parliamentarian, he had watched the labor scene deteriorate — especially in the federal government's own public service — into disaster in the last few years.

Then, at the turn of the new year, he had this idea in essence, he said, the balance between the public servant's right to strike and the taxpayer's right to service.

To end the blackmail-by-strikes, legal and illegal — shutting down the Post Office, the airports, airlines, rail services, grain exports by different unions walking out at different times — he proposed "sector bargaining."

It would mean all the different unions controlling air services would bargain on wages and working conditions under the one collective umbrella.

So if there had to be a strike, it would be a big one, involving all the unions at the one time and not in a creeping line of work stoppages.

Good idea.

So good that Liberal Labor Minister John Munro parroted it.

He even wrapped the new idea of Otto Jelinek's own phrases, and presented it as a package to the Trudeau cabinet with the recommendation it be accepted as government labor policy.

He must have made a sale in cabinet.

For Prime Minister Trudeau himself has tried it for size on the Canadian Labor Congress.

He did, and came right out and said he would force the unions to wear it.

He just asked them to think about it.

He reminded them that everybody — including unions with other unions — long since had their overkill of strikes.

The taxpayers had run out of patience.

The government itself was hurting. The economy was taking a beating.

And the unions, if they faced up to it, Prime Minister Trudeau told the labor congress, were feeling the consequent pain and layoffs.

So there had to be a different way, he counselled the Congress.

The only question was how it would evolve . . . by law . . . through parliamentary action . . . by royal commission . . . or even by a federal task force.

One way or another, union wage and working negotiations, warned the Prime Minister, must be "restructured."

This being so — and that is what it was because the Prime Minister was saying it — then why didn't labor help itself by thinking about what he termed "industry-wide bargaining?"

It was clearly Otto Jelinek's "sector bargaining," borrowed, or, to put it bluntly, stolen by the Prime Minister and trotted out under a thinly disguised new label.

He even appropriated Otto Jelinek's lines about how strikes, called end to end in economically disastrous succession, could — and had, at various intervals — paralyzed grain export, postal and civil service operations.

But unlike Otto Jelinek, the Prime Minister had the clout to "warn" the Congress to ponder the problem before Parliament, or a Royal Commission, or a Privy-Council task force formed a solution.

To Jelinek, though, must go the credit and the taxpayers thanks for having the brains and guts to stand up to Big Labor before which successive governments, until now, have cowered in fear.

Immigration's Image

About a month ago a young German, Michael Daniech, 19, came to Canada to visit his 19-year-old fiancee, Veronica Schinker of Kitchener.

Immigration officials in Toronto decided Daniech was not on a visit at all, but rather was in Canada to get a job without a work permit. And he was deported.

This despite the fact he had a large amount of cash as well as a return ticket.

"I feel like a criminal," Daniech is quoted as saying. "I am sad and angry. I can't find too many nice things to say about Canada."

He also said immigration people at the airport treated him coldly and with bad manners.

This is not the first such case by any means of cavalier treatment of visitors by immigration officials at major points of entry. At least nobody can accuse these worthies of being racist because, to our personal knowledge, there have been complaints of visitors being raked over the immigration coals from such assorted nationalities as Kenyans, Sri Lankans (Ceylon) and New Zealanders. But it's still a lousy image for the officials of any country to project and Immigration Minister Andras would do well to tell them to cool it; and preferably, improve their manners.

Taken along with recent complaints of Canadian travellers behaving boorishly in the United States, assuming a manlie often worn by Americans themselves, it is bad news for Canadians at large.

Having said that, it must be said also that Canadians — Americans are not alone in this situation. As against the young New Zealand woman who wrote to a Montreal newspaper complaining about her rude reception by officials at the airport, there is the experience of a Belleville woman who was rudely treated . . . yes, on a visit to New Zealand. The French had a bad reputation for a while, at the height of the de Gaulle era, vis-a-vis tourists, and there is a personal recollection across the years of being tongue-lashed by a policeman off the grass at Versailles.

Toronto travel writer Robert Turnbull tells of a "grumpy, uninformative guide" in legendary Tahiti, and we recall a less than charming waitress in Honolulu — even though another travel writer has referred to Hawaii as "the sweetness and light."

For every good experience in a country, or with the officials of the country, there can be these other unhappy experiences. The trouble, moreover, is that they can linger in the mind for a lifetime.

Ann Landers, responding to a writer who is deaf and works as a meat wrapper and often does not hear questions addressed to him, described it as "another example of the growing lack of consideration and concern which has engulfed much of the world in recent years."

It may be worldwide, but let's start reversing the trend by putting our own house in order.

Court Penalties

Reference has been made in this space to a 40-year-old Toronto man, Robert A. Marks who was so severely beaten in an attack by a teenage gang, while out for a walk with his wife, that he can no longer work.

The police made one arrest in the case, of a man who was 23 at the time of the attack and whom they say initiated the beating.

He was sentenced to two years less a day definite and two years indefinite on conviction for assault causing bodily harm.

It was the kind of sentence that is causing grave doubts in the minds of many people as to the administration of justice in the country. A man is virtually crippled in the prime of life, and his attacker gets in all a mere four years less a day.

Money By

Supermarkets in Belleville carry signs asking customers to tender correct change where possible, because of a coin shortage.

It's a bad scene for our "Proud Canadian" bumper touters, Americophiles and all, for a good deal of the coinage in circulation these days is from south of the border.

All isn't more ironic too, to observe the likes of this by Toronto Globe and Mail columnist Scott Young: "Final patriotic item: When I mentioned recently that Canadian Tire refused to accept U.S. money, I received many snappish comments. . . . 'Good on Canadian Tire.' And Joan Hollobon's: "Good. It's about time Canadian stores began to refuse U.S. coins. We don't expect other countries to accept money other than their own currency. . ."

Which is all very patriotic, but who is it really hurting, in a relationship which for many practical reasons, gets by on many an anomaly such as this.

Any Name

Not to mention all the American investment which, like it or not has helped make Canadians a good deal less "hewers of wood and drawers of water" than they might be.

Again, what about the great trek southward at this time of year — to the Carolinas and Florida in the main — where we gladly soak up American sun and scenery? And of course spend American money exchanged from Canadian.

External Affairs Minister MacEachen had a good point all right when he said recently that establishments of more contacts with other countries would ease Canada's sore-headedness and irritants in its relationships with the U.S.

At the same time it is as well to remember that we likely give the Americans any number of reasons for pique. It's better too to have their money than some of the more horrendous aspects of life in the U.S., such as its dreadful crime rate.

Seasonal Contrasts

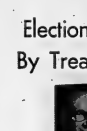
If Robert Louis Stevenson had been around for our late-winter-early spring storm he might well have felt at home. For didn't he spend a year or two in a modest cottage at Saranac Lake, amid the clean mountain air of the Adirondacks, in the hope of improving his delicate health?

But it was a very different scene, kwn also to Stevenson, which—presented itself to those who saw Nicol Smith's Kiwanis-series film last week. Swaying palms and exotic beaches look minds off unseasonably stormy weather as the beauty of Fiji, Western Samoa, and Tonga enfolded itself.

From Saranac Stevenson went to Western Samoa and built a mansion near the capital, Apia, living there from 1889 until his death in 1894.

The famous Scots poet and writer likely would have been pleased to know that 80 years or so later, a group of Canadians — half as many as usual because of the storm, and not too far from his old home — had turned out to see the South Pacific paradise where he spent his declining years.

Election Year Budget By Treasury Wizards



By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — As we entered the locked room to get the advance look at the budget given the press, there was one question on everybody's mind.

This was would it be an election budget? And if it was where could the goodies be found which feature such election-year statements?

After a few minutes, a quick glance-through the first question was answered. It was an election budget—in spades.

It was all good, good news.

And after a closer reading it was evident the government diggers had come up with an answer to the second part of the budget-again in spades.

There was something in it for everybody.

The general public got a reduction in sales tax.

Young couples got a $1,500 gift towards a new home.

Farmers got their guaranteed protection boosted.

The elderly got the full benefit of the province's population got free drugs and minimum income boosted.

Small business got its incentives boosted and industry got a tax write-off on new machinery.

One had to marvel at the wizardry of the treasury experts in coming up with such a package in these disturbed times.

While political, the budget also has every appearance of being a good one.

It should stimulate the economy and cut down on unemployment while at the same time avoid contributing to inflation.

The drop in sales tax should encourage buying. Particularly as the drop is only until the end of the year.

This will encourage people to buy this year, particularly in major articles such as automobiles, household appliances and housing where the savings will be major.

And it certainly should encourage industry to buy machinery, which will benefit not only the producing industries themselves but also the manufacturers of the machines.

And it was a bold and imaginative budget.

What other government has thought of cutting down on sales tax?

And finally it was wise. Referring again to sales tax, by introducing the sales tax reduction for only a limited period, Treasurer Darcy McKeough avoided that great political trap of getting stuck with it permanently.

A Dismal Unemployment Picture

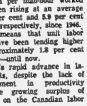
By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service



The number of people out of work in Canada has reached the highest level in many years—and the unemployed are not the only ones who are worried about it.

At mid-March, 7.2 per cent of the labor force—one out of every 14 workers—was unemployed and looking for a job.

That's the seasonally adjusted figure, which discounts seasonal factors so as to make the rate comparable from month to month. The raw, unadjusted figures show an actual jobless rate of 8.6 per cent of the labor force.

The continuing, month-by-month rise in the jobless figure of 600,000 Canadians now is drawing unemployment insurance benefit points to a monumental period of high unemployment for the first time since the 1930s.

No one welcomes the return of the "dismal" days, with the suffering and distress that it brings to thousands of families.

But, in the past, at least, high unemployment has always brought with it a return to more realistic wage demands, a distinct improvement in labor productivity, and a slowing in the rate of inflation.

What's missing from today's economic picture is any such good news to help offset the bad news of unemployment.

Wage inflation continues to grow, responding to the well-publicized leadership of the strong construction unions that are demanding year-to-year pay boosts in the range of 30 per cent.

Labor productivity figures for 1973 and 1974 have not yet been published by Statistics Canada, but in 1973 there was a decline in the rate of improvement, and estimates by Wood Gundy Ltd. put 1974's productivity increase at 1.78 per cent and suggest this all productivity actually dipped by 0.41 per cent last year.

The same estimates put the increases in unit labor costs at 3.07 per cent in 1973, and at 12.06 per cent—which would be a record high—in 1974.

Assuming the estimates to be reliable, they show a sharp divergence from the long-term post-war trend. In Canadian manufacturing, output and compensation per man-hour worked have been rising at an average of 4.1 per cent and 8.9 per cent a year, respectively, since 1946.

That means that unit labor costs have been tending higher by approximately 1.8 per cent annually—until now.

Today's rapid advance in labor costs, despite the lack of improvement in productivity and the growing surplus of workers on the Canadian labor market, seems to demonstrate that inflationary price increases and big wage boosts go hand in hand.

But with market conditions changing, how long can wage expectations remain unaffected?

That question goes to the heart of the modern inflationary dilemma. There is so little in economic history to compare with today's ever-growing inflation that one is tempted to turn to medical history to find parallels in destructive addiction to narcotics and alcohol.

For a society addicted to inflationary increases in everything, high unemployment is becoming a serious side-effect.

Relief from the side-effect would require some effective treatment of the addiction. So far, there's not much indication that the addict-society—really wants to be cured.

Objective of Women's Group

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In this International Women's Year the Women's Christian Union believe that our community and nation need Christian women who are dedicated to total abstinence from alcoholic beverages and to themselves and others. The motto of the Union is "For God, and Home and every Land". Anything short of this will in any way interfere with the peace and happiness of the home and children is the concern of every WCTU member.

The work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was first organized in this area over 30 years ago. At that time a Children's Camp was operated at Canoe Lake for the W.C.T.U. counsellors, had to sell the camp. We are actively concerned with the problems that alcohol and drugs create for the children of this community. Through the schools we seek to have children and young people take part in essay poster and scrap-book "contests on temperance and related subjects.

This year we are financing a spot on local radio stations warning listeners about the dangers of drinking and-locally we expect to send four young people to a weekend conference at Camp Arama, where dedicated Christians seek to prove that there is no need for experimenting with alcohol and drugs.

Bancroft Councillors Approve Parking Meters

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Following a marathon three — hour discussion this week, Bancroft councillors decided unanimously to install parking meters in the main commercial area of the village in an attempt to control the congestion of traffic.

In a resolution which states "In an attempt to control the flow of traffic on the main street, the council of the village of Bancroft will meter the downtown streets of Bridge St. from the York River to Hastings St. from Hastings St. north to Station St. and Station St. to the York River and both sides of Cantelon St. from Hastings to Creek."

Some of the councillors however were reluctant to impose the parking restriction on the Bancroft consumers.

"It seems to me that the average Joe who drives downtown will be paying for the merchant who has failed to provide sufficient parking," said councillor Bob Blatherwick.

Reeve Russell Mawley assured the council that the meters would not be installed as an attempt to raise funds for the new municipal parking spot on Hastings St.,

"What we're trying to do on the main street is to keep the traffic moving," he said.

Bancroft bylaw enforcement officer, David Talbot told councillors that a bylaw would cover merchants and employees who would feed the meters all day in an effort to control a parking spot.

"You can't keep on plugging nickles in — the parking would be only for an hour," said Mr. Talbot.

The new municipal lot would also be in for some parking restrictions council decided.

"The meters won't be the whole answer," said Reeve Mawley," "but it's going to help. The parking lot will also be a restricted two-hour parking area. If you want to stay there all day, you'll have to pay for a permit."

The meters will be ordered by the council so that they can be installed prior to the advent of the 1975 summer tourist season.

Shoppers parking on downtown Bancroft streets will soon have to pay for the privilege. Town council voted this week to install meters on several streets to reduce all-day parking and improve traffic flow.

Meters Coming

New Sewage Facilities Means Hydro Bill Hike

BANCROFT — Local residents will soon be paying additional charges for the services which will be provided by the new Bancroft sewage system and treatment plant.

The manager of the Bancroft Public Utilities Commission, Dean Laundry, told council this week that, "The ministry of the environment will soon be expecting the village to start to pay for the system and treatment plant, so we had better get some revenue in."

Mr. Laundry said that the PUC would be billing each residential village user on the traditional hydro bill and that the charge will be about $4.50 per month.

For commercial establishments, Mr. Laundry anticipated the bill to be about $9.00 monthly.

In the case of large users such as schools, laundromats and government office buildings, the rate will be individually computed.

Bancroft's new system was installed in 1974, however, because of supply problems, the $1.5 million dollar sewage treatment plant is not yet completed.

Most Merchants Favor Metered Parking

MADELINE HOLDEN

RON MISKO

Pat MacLeod, owner The Villager Book and Fabric Shop said "I'm delighted.

I'm sure that if the parking spaces were well marked out, we would be able to get one third more cars parked there. Meters have been good and effective in many other Ontario towns and there it will be good for Bancroft, but I do feel that the large municipal parking lots should be metered too."

Dean Linton, owner Dean's Men's Wear said "It's a hell of a good idea.

It will keep the downtown merchants themselves from parking all day on the street. I've even seen school buses parked there all day. It will really keep the traffic moving the way it should."

Madeline Holden, owner Holden's restaurant, said "I'm sure that it is the only fair solution to the parking problem. The downtown traffic must be kept moving.

You know, the merchants are the worst offenders for the all day parking. I really hope that they accept the meters during the winter months.

Ron Misko, owner of the newly-remodelled Ron's Discount Mart said "All other towns have the meters. I guess that it's a good idea.

There's no reason why you should be able to use the street like a parking lot. We all do it, so now this will keep the people moving."

Councillors said they hope the resolution will produce results before the end of next year for a new fire truck because of the critical.

Clerk-treasurer William Shannon was instructed to investigate the procedure for purchasing a new truck by deputy reeve Councillor Bert Gray said he believed a new truck would cost between $35,000 and $55,000 and should be ordered a year before delivery date.

Madoc and District Churches Book Topic

MADOC — One hundred and fifty years of Madoc and district church history has been published and today a tea is planned at which interested persons can meet the three authors and get autographed copies of the 400-page book.

Alma Blackburn, Alma Moorcroft and Blanche Sandford started a combined effort to compile the book in 1972 and they finished the task this January.

Miss Moorcroft was first appointed by a committee whose task was to save the history of Ontario history seven years ago. When the team effort got under way, they spent all their spare time for three years searching through church records, old newspapers, personal diaries, minute books, and archives in Toronto.

There are sketches in the book, which is called Pilgrimage of Faith, prepared by Miss Moorcroft. There are also reproductions of old documents, individual histories of churches and many photographs both past and present.

The book was partly financed under, the New Horizons federal program for retired persons.

Marmora Considers Adding Fluoride to Drinking Water

By RUBY MCCOY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — The cost and method of adding fluoride to the municipality's water system is to be investigated by Marmora village council following the recent visit of Dr. Dennis Warrick, director of the dental health unit for the hastings and Prince Edward counties Health Unit.

Dr. Warrick explained the benefits to be derived from fluoride treated water and gave council some idea of the cost entailed.

Fluoride treatment could be provided for as little as 21 cents per person a year, Dr. Warrick explained, adding how important it is that young children be given the benefits of fluoride treatment before their permanent teeth grow in.

The use of fluoride tooth pastes helps and is not the answer, Dr. Warrick said.

Even the children being born into School in Marmora would be benefited by the addition of fluoride to the water system because children are known to drink a lot of water, he pointed out.

A dental health program is being carried out in the elementary schools and Grade 9 in high school to provide examinations and health information. An examination of Marmora student from Kindergarten to Grade 3 showed that only 30 percent were free of decay, Dr. Warrick reported.

The Village of Harmoth, which some time ago installed fluoride equipment at a cost of $2,300., was used as an example of the benefits derived from fluoride treatment. The percentage of tooth decay — free children has increased from 15 to 50 per cent, he said.

Studies have shown, Dr. Warrick said in answer to questions by members of council, that fluoride does not cause cancer or damage internal organs. The city of Brantford was cited as an example of having natural fluoride in its water and studies have turned up no ill effects in people there.

The average person spends $80 per year on dental services and this could be significantly reduced by fluoride in the water, Dr. Warrick emphasized.

He also inquired where the supply of Marmora are got if to obtain dental services and was told that Madoc, Surina, Belleville and Peterborough are the main centres.

He was advised by Reeve Jack Reynolds of Council's unsuccessful attempts to get a dentist for Marmora. Dr. Warrick [illegible] council apply now for a dentist graduating in 1976 as the students start looking a year ahead for a place to locate. One of the main things in attracting a young dentist is suitable accommodation and willingness to help, Dr. Warrick pointed out.

The members of council had been appointed by the people of Marmora to look after their welfare, Dr. Warrick suggested, to consider their dental health. He offered to do a study and keep detailed follow-up records if Marmora will apply and to determine the need for a second project to house senior citizens.

Ann Landers

Can Handwriting Reveal Character?

Dear Ann Landers: Can a person's true character be revealed through his hand-writing?

My 25-year-old son has fallen in love with a 20-year-old woman. She has him completely wrapped up. He is walking on air, and it's simply nauseating.

I happen to know Dennis quite well and I'm sure he won't stay too far. The following day she wrote me a letter of apology. I took that letter to a handwriting analyst and that is what he said: "The woman is potentially dangerous. She is hiding some sort of secret."

Should I mind my own business or am I obligated to tell my son? I happen to agree with the handwriting analyst. I'm sure Dennis has never seen her temperament side. Please advise.—Mrs. Z

Dear Z: I do not believe a person's handwriting can reveal his or her character. Some people are dangerous and is "hiding" something.

If Dennis is unaware of his lady friend's temperamental side he is sure to witness it eventually. Should she manage to keep him completely fooled until after they are married, that's his hard luck. A 25-year-old man should not be cheated by his mother, so MYOB, dearie.

Dear Ann Landers: I found out yesterday that my husband has a $25,000 life insurance policy and the beneficiary is his former wife.

Should I bring this matter to his attention? I am terribly hurt and feel he is not playing fair. I can't give you more details because I don't want to reveal my identity. We live in a small town and I would surely be recognized. Please express your opinion.—Second Best Isn't Good Enough

Dear Second: Too bad you can't give me more details such as how long was your husband married to his first wife? How many children did they have? How old are you? How old is SHE? Did that woman help your husband become a financial success? Did she take care of his mother in her old age?

After you read my response I doubt that you'll want to "call the matter to his attention." You might get some answers you don't care to hear.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 25, my fiance is 29. We've been going together for two years and are very much in love. Don was married briefly when he was 18. This will be my first marriage and I want it to work.

Everything is perfect except that my ex-in-laws-to-be-to-be is filling me. Don doesn't want children. He says kids make him nervous. He can't stand his sister's children. They are spoiled and ill-behaved. I have tried to explain that our children would be different, but he says he doesn't want to take the chance.

My parents are dying to have grandchildren and I am their only hope. (My brother was injured in Vie. Nam.) I adore children and don't imagine life without them. What should I do? He won't go for counseling. All he will is made up.—Seeking Guidance

Dear S. G.: I would not make this decision for anybody. But if it's guidance you want I will tell you that a marriage that starts out with a problem like yours has two strikes against it. Your resentment could grow with the years and you might end up blaming Don for cheating you out of something very precious.

Research Underway

Women as Police Officers

VANCOUVER (CP) — For perhaps the first time in Canada, research is under way to investigate the relationship of women to police as offenders, victims and fellow-officers on the force.

Last June, the British Columbia Police Commission set up a special group to investigate the subject.

"Because of the time involved, we had to set priorities so we tackled the subject of employment of women as police officers first," said Joanna Prindiville, a University of B.C. doctoral candidate in anthropology who was hired as principal researcher.

"The deployment of women in patrol work here had been the subject of concern, particularly since human rights legislation had stipulated that they were entitled to equal opportunities in this field of employment as well as any other," she said.

"There were nine women on the force in 1909, then they were taken off the streets and given inside clerical jobs. However, the policy was changed by the late fall of 1973 women were introduced into regular police patrol duties.

"Our job was to try to assess their situation through the eyes of women themselves and of the people they worked with."

Policewomen now work all shifts alone and with partners, carry guns, work the cars, and are assigned to fight calls or anything else that comes up in the line of duty.

"They cannot strip-search male prisoners but in practically every other way, including duty, they're treated equally with their male counterparts," said Ms. Prindiville.

"We're trained to be more inventive because we're women," said six-foot, 200-pound Barbara Melymick.

"If we're in a fight corner we're not above pulling hair if we have to—we're not as predictable as men.

"And when it comes to police speech language, well, most of us can chew out an offender pretty good if we have to, though surprisingly, we don't often have to."

Five years of psychology at Simon Fraser University helps too, she said.

Not all the 21 policewomen currently on staff are six-footers. Some are like Constable Jane Roberts, who is five-foot-six.

Constable Don MacInnes said male officers tend to be slower down when there's a woman present. He had seen some potentially violent situations cooled simply because both he and a male attendant reacted automatically to the fact that the other constable was a woman.

Women officers, however, "have no inhibitions about hitting other women," said Ms. Prindiville.

"Women constables admit that they have more problems with female offenders than with male."

More police are called to investigate a rape, the victim seems to find it easier to undergo the intimate questioning that has to be done initially by police if the officer is a woman.

"Sexual offences require a very special kind of approach," said Teresa Hoover on staff at the Rape Relief Centre.

"The questioning comes at a very traumatic time for the victim. Male constables, they say, tend to be brusque and unfeeling. Women, on the other hand, are much more empathetic. Their instinctive approach is: 'This could have been me.'"

Though it's not a policy of the force, there is a tendency by policemen to shield women from the dirtier work. As a result, policewomen said, they're not given the same opportunities to carry out duties done by men.

"Well, yes, I guess that's true to a degree," said Constable Marlenes. "But once they've proven themselves, I think we can be given as equal in every respect."

Many policemen's wives have found policewomen hard to accept. They have been known to protect when their husbands were teamed with a woman constable.

"Any wife that would worry about that kind of thing just doesn't understand the nature of the job," said Constable MacInnes.

Constable Melymick's husband understands perfectly—he's a city traffic cop.

Sabia Predicts Backlash

TORONTO (CP) — Laura Sabia, chairman of the Ontario Status of Women Council, says there may be backlash from both male and female civil servants in the government's hiring of 21 women to improve the lot of women civil servants.

In a telephone interview Wednesday from her home in St. Catharines, Mrs. Sabia said:

"I had nothing to do with the appointment of these women. I was not consulted, the council was not consulted, and I personally think it was the wrong thing to do."

She said she made it clear to government officials how she felt about the new program for hiring women counsellors, "but I was told it wasn't my department."

The women work as co-ordinators in various government ministries and agencies, but only seven work full-time at promotion of women's programs. They are paid salaries up to $28,460 a year.

Earlier this week in the legislature, Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, referred to them as "token" women in the government. Environment Minister William Newman could not remember the name of his ministry's co-ordinator, Grace Blackadar, when challenged to do so by Mr. Lewis.

Mrs. Sabia said that by "paying high-priced salaries to the women', the government may be lowering discrepancies in pay between female employees, but I think they are going to get a backlash in the ministries from both male and female employees."

"Governments have to change their attitudes (toward women employees), have to change the legislation, and have to change the employees' opinions," she said.

Most of the co-ordinators have 10 to 15 years in the civil service and many were transferred from their departments when they were given their new jobs as women's co-ordinators.

"I'm a great believer in the merit system and I think we have give opportunities to women to advance," said Mrs. Sabia. "But my office (the council office) has four employees and if it gets any larger than that I'll get the hell out."

Quit Smoking, Lengthen Life Span

Dear Doris: Thank you for permission to publish your article about smoking — the one signed by "Average I.Q.". I have arranged to have the same article published for other newspapers in this country.

The letter reminded me very much of my own experience. When young I smoked cigarettes to the extent of two packs each day.

One of these days I got thinking how much life insurance that amount of money would purchase for me — and I just quit suddenly and have not smoked a cigarette since. That was in the year 1933. Yes, the first week was rather tough but my determination was strong and after that the desire was no great.

Last September a nephew of mine who lives in Toronto staged a nice dinner and surprise in honor of my 80th birthday, so I am what you would call an octogenarian and enjoying very good health.

J.W. Bryan, Ohio.

Dear J.W.: Congratulations! So with the money you had been purchasing coffin nails you secured a lease on longer living.

According to statistics I have been reading recently, you have increased by seven the chance of living to enjoy an 80th birthday party.

Dear Doris: I also am past forty-five but had a hysterectomy five years ago and thought that was the end of things. Six months later I married, for the second time, and have moved away from home and children. For the past six weeks I have been having hot flushes (a thing which my mother had told me about) and sometimes I feel as if they don't become worse I will go insane. Sometimes I don't perspire like some people do.

In my new environment I am happy and contented.

Prior to my second marriage I worked in a large office in a city, travelling 25 miles each day to work. While I miss my closest colleagues, I can honestly say I don't miss the noise of traffic, the pressure of deadlines and the all-too-frequent wondering how important a lot of jobs are! I have certainly ceased comparing success with dollars, and enjoy an adequate living in a neighborhood of trees.

Please send me your 25-cent leaflet "Facing Forty", and keep your chin strapped.

J.A.M.

Dear J.A.M.: The leaflet is on its way. My medical consultant suggests that the calculus of a marriage partner may be responsible for a certain amount of glandular reaction. However, this is something you should discuss with your own doctor; it may be that he can relieve your symptoms.

You are not the first one who has found, to her surprise, that rural living has a tide going for it. Have you compare it with the "rat race" associated all too often with our large centres of population. It does help one to readjust one's values, doesn't it?

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 25 cents and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Backyard Swing Sets Can Be Dangerous

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — That swing set you put up in your back yard may be more dangerous than you think.

Each year some 450,000 children are treated in emergency rooms in the United States for injuries received on home playground equipment, said public playground equipment and he figure" climbs to some 800,000 youngsters.

Who's to blame?

"About 75 per cent of the accidents in home playground equipment are directly attributable to the manufacturer," said B. M. Mahajan, an official with the National Bureau of Standards. "Much of it is poorly designed structurally, with pinch points, protrusions, exposed bolts, sharp points, edges and corners, S-hooks and hard swing seats.

"Design and construction defects, when combined with misuse and abuse of these products during unsupervised play, lead to traumatic mishaps."

Mahajan has been commissioned by the federal government to study playground equipment, following the results over to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission is a recently created enforcement agency that has the power to impose mandatory safety standards. It has yet to set any for home playground equipment. Mahajan said some manufacturers are trying to set voluntary standards.

Although most injuries from home playground equipment fall into the cuts and bruises division, more serious accidents do occur. Children have had limbs amputated in movable joints, pinch points that often are located at the junction of the top cross bar and the vertical bars of swings, seesaws and merry-go-rounds.

Research shows that swing seats made of metal or wood can strike a youngster with enough force to cause a concussion or fractured skull.

Mahajan has come up with a ribbed plastic seat which he said would cut down significantly on such injuries.

Although fatal accidents are rare, they do happen. Mahajan recalls one in Chicago where a six-year-old girl caught her pony tail in a protrusion on a sliding board and strangled.

"The data indicates that a large number of injuries could have been prevented if more foresight had been used by the playground equipment manufacturers," he said.

Mahajan offered this advice to parents who are either considering buying home playground equipment or already have it in their back yard:

—Fill soft any sharp points.

—Check periodically for loose nuts and bolts. Articles of clothing, especially shoe laces, can catch on such objects.

—Follow the manufacturer's suggestion to anchor the equipment.

—Look for pinch points at joint or hole that a child might get his fingers or toes stuck in.

—Select equipment with rave

$400 Million in Toothpaste — But Does It Do Any Good?

WASHINGTON (AP) — America is a nation of toothpaste, $400 million of gooey dentifrice squeezed from rumpled tubes last year in search of mint-fresh breath, pearly white teeth, cavity-free checkups or a new love life.

Did it do any good?

Dental health experts generally agree that toothpaste equipment, helps remove cavities, if used regularly. But after several decades of research, scientists are uncertain whether toothpastes without fluoride have any advantage over a wet brush sprinkled with table salt or baking soda.

"If you're going to use a dentifrice, there is absolutely no reason it shouldn't be a fluoride dentifrice," said Dr. Stanley B. Heifetz of the National Institutes of Dental Research.

As for non-fluoride toothpastes . . .

"Brushing your teeth with toothpaste is pleasant, there's no doubt about that," said Dr. Herschel S. Horowitz, another National Institute of Dental Research public health director. "If taste is good, it's foamy. Your mouth tingles. It's definitely a part of our culture."

But the rigorous clinical trials that would prove other major advantages of tooth pastes without fluoride—for example, combatting chronic bad breath—haven't been conducted, say Dr. Heifetz, Dr. Horowitz and others at the National Institute.

Some people do need a dentifrice containing abrasive and detergent to remove stains from teeth, Heavy smokers, for example, sometimes have this problem, although a regular use of toothpaste with harsh abrasives can harm the tough enamel covering a tooth's outer surface.

At least one person can maintain their teeth free from residual stains by using a suitable brush and water," the American Dental Association's current dental therapeutics said in its most recent report.

"If only a slight degree of abrasion is necessary to keep teeth from staining, baking soda will usually be found satisfactory."

Dental researchers agree that for millions of people a wet brush is sufficient, with or without toothpaste.

But researchers, in interviews, express puzzlement by anyone taking the trouble to brush his teeth wouldn't use a fluoride toothpaste because of its proven cavity-fighting ability.

Living in a community with fluoridated water supply and toothpaste with a fluoride toothpaste may heighten prevention, some studies have indicated.

The usefulness of unfluoridated toothpaste may be questioned. But there is little disagreement that brushing the teeth—with or without toothpaste—is essential.

Hospital Auxiliaries Hold Annual Spring Conference

The largest group of women ever recorded attended the district Spring Conference of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario held Thursday at Belleville General Hospital.

More than 100 women from eight area hospitals in Napanee, Belleville, Trenton, Brockville, Kingston and Picton, attended.

Chairman of the conference was Selma Bochnek, president of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary.

The conference began with a roll call with representatives of each auxiliary highlighting the year's events for their auxiliary. The members also displayed popular hand-made items from their hospital gift shops.

Seven workshops followed by summations of the discussions took place during the morning session.

Ruth Murray, president of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario addressed the luncheon meeting which was attended by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, J. M. Legate, vice-chairman of the BGH Board of Governors, and Philip Rickard, executive director, BGH.

After luncheon, a business meeting was held followed by a tour of the hospital.

'Communications' Workshop Topic

Communication was the theme of the workshops held Thursday morning during the spring conference of the district Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario.

The conference was held in Belleville.

Kay Rodrigues, of the Lennox and Addington Hospital Auxiliary, told women at the conference that volunteer communications within hospitals was handled by various auxiliaries through the use of telephone committees, publications and newsletters, personal contacts and even suggestion boxes.

"We all felt the need for get-togethers so that volunteers could get to know each other and exchange ideas," Mrs. Rodrigues said.

Charlotte Hollfelder, of the BGH Auxiliary, discussion group leader for chairmen of volunteer services, told the women that maintaining complete records and training of volunteers were important to a useful hospital auxiliary.

"These things help be sure that policy and rules of the hospital are being carried out."

Helen Logan, of the Belleville Auxiliary, said that volunteers of services found that communication is the biggest problem in the inter-relationship of volunteers and the hospital.

Marnie Dickinson, of the Lennox and Addington Hospital Auxiliary, said that her discussion group on recruiting volunteers revealed that everything from church bulletins to coffee parties were used to solicit volunteers.

"You've got to be honest — if you want a volunteer to work in a coffee shop you've got to tell them its work — not a glamor job."

Kerry Marshall, director of nursing at BGH, led a discussion group on job description.

Miss Marshall told the women that a volunteer has a right to know exactly what job he or she is to do and what are the outside limits of responsibility is. The hospital also has a right to know what it expects of the volunteer.

Miss Marshall said that proper job descriptions, which are reviewed with inputs from the volunteer, help the volunteer know what she's there for and adds to her status in the hospital.

Mary Cooke, unit co-ordinator at BGH, said that the object of the volunteer in long-term care units is to help the patient become re-motivated and to help her re-adjust to society.

"It's important to do things with the patient — not for the patients," she emphasized, adding that the volunteer should work to re-establish the self-esteem of the patient.

"In that end, use crafts and other activities, should have a purpose, should result in a product useful to the patient.

"Most of all, remember long-term patients are adults — don't talk down to them."

Volunteers Of Future

Ruth Murray, president of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario, told more than 100 women Thursday that concern about volunteers of the future is exaggerated.

Mrs. Murray addressed the annual District 8 Spring Conference of the auxiliaries held at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital.

The conference has been asked "where will we find volunteers in the future with so many women joining or remaining in the work force", Mrs. Murray said.

She also added, 100 years of service by Ontario hospital auxiliaries proves that the future need not be any problem.

Two events of recent years, particularly, Mrs. Murray said, should alleviate the gap left by women entering the labor force.

"The auxiliaries have been opened to men and boys and the age limit for volunteers has been lowered."

The latter volunteers will graduate to volunteers as they get older," Mrs. Murray said. "Once involved, they rarely lose their interest."

The change in name generally from "women's" auxiliary to simply "auxiliary" has paved the way for men to join.

"That name 'women's' does hard, but so men relive the beginning of jobs we volunteer services."

She added that retired persons add greatly to the auxiliary.

"It's not how old you are but how you are old."

Mrs. Murray told the auxiliary that in April 1974 in Minneapolis a North American volunteer conference was held.

At the conference, elevating the status of the volunteer was discussed.

Mrs. Murray said that some factions discussed remuneration for volunteers or "payments" like tax deductions.

But, she pointed out, another faction criticized such moves as removing the work from the realm of volunteerism like that of the underpaid worker.

Louise Demczyna, Hobbyist and Teacher

If you were a student in Louise Demczyna's fifth grade class at Cannifton Corbyville Public School you'd be learning to do macrame, one of the old fashioned apple dolls and building terrariums right along with learning to multiply and spell.

In fact, crafts are pretty well a way of life for Mrs. Demczyna and her enthusiasm just naturally spills over into the classroom.

"I just see something and have to try it right away," she says.

Making things began when she saw a lamp in a friend's home and realized it was made from paper cups. "Turning things into other things seemed really interesting."

Well, she made the lamp and went on to macrame. Then she began teaching macrame to a school interest group. One way or another that led to papier tole — the art of constructing three-dimensional scenes — and apple dolls and terrariums and wood carving and drying vegetables for table decoration and —

The kids are enthused, too, and the classroom in a happy muddle of everything from sophisticated macrame hangings to macaroni-covered vases.

Being crafty, however does have its drawback. Once Mrs. Demczyna produced a macrame owl person after person saw it and liked it and hinted.

In the end, I made 17 of those owls!"

She Supported Him Through School, Now It's His Turn to Pay for Her

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman, who quit college to help her husband's way through law school, was given an alimony settlement Wednesday designed to make her former husband pay her way through medical school.

Justice Theodore Kassal of Manhattan Supreme Court awarded Ethelyn Morgan, 27, a total of $200 a week for alimony and child support for as long as she remains unmarried and continues her medical studies.

She and Charles Morgan were married Jan. 27, 1967, when he was a third-year private student at the University of South Carolina and she was a sophomore — studying history at Florida State University.

"Recognizing that both could not simultaneously continue their education and be self-supporting, they agreed it would be preferable for him to finish his undergraduate and law school education while she worked," the judge said.

During the seven years she worked, Mrs. Morgan became skilled as an executive secretary and data analyst, who could probably earn $10,000 a year, the judge said,

One way to have the softness of April water at your house all year round is to have an Aquafine Water Softener from Moire-Schuster installed at your house. And this type of April water is as soft from your taps as if Heaven itself had sent it. And the miracle of soft water and soap will also be apparent to you too — no condescenes or softening agents are needed; all you need a right there in your Aquafined water. Call 962-4504 and say hello to April Showers all year round.

It Really Is Coming

In all his wisdom, Murray Atkinson of Murray's Food Market on Front St., tells me that spring really is coming. OK Murray . . . I'll trust you. And Murray can help you get ready with the business of spring planting and growing. Murray has bulbs and seeds for flowers and vegetables in good quantities now. He also has grass seed. And he passes along some grass-growing tips: Throw some grass-seed on that film of snow we'll have . . . you might be very delighted at the results. Thanks Murray.

Spring Cleaning Preparation

Gibbs and Son, the vacuum cleaner specialists at 27 Albion St. are all ready to help you get your spring cleaning done — something you can't possibly do without a vacuum in good working order. Gibbs and Son will check hoses, belts, and brushes and cords, a very important safety factor. Gibbs and Son also carry vacuum supplies such as bags and shag rakes. You'd hate to go all through that effort and find your efficient cleaner was severely curtailed by a vacuum in poor working order. Visit Gibbs and Son first. Then you'll only have to do this big job once.

Proctor-Lewyt Closes Until July

PICTON — Plant manager here of Proctor-Lewyt, division of SCM Canada Ltd., J. W. (Bud) Stewart, confirmed today the plant will remain closed until mid-July.

Mr. Stewart said the reason for the lengthy shutdown is a large surplus of finished goods and inventory levels of Picton-manufactured products.

He added the layoff will affect, approximately 85 employees.

A skeleton crew of warehouse and maintenance workers will be retained at the plant.

In December, 1974, Proctor-Lewyt announced a shutdown to extend from Dec. 13 to Jan. 13. Workers returned to their jobs in January, but a few weeks later were laid off a second time, supposedly for a six-to eight-week period.

Announcement of a prolonged shutdown was made this week.

Proctor-Lewyt manufacturers household appliances such as heaters, vacuum cleaners and electric sweepers.

OMB Rejects Request For Tracey Sidewalk

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) has turned down city plans to build a sidewalk deemed necessary for safety reasons the length of a north Belleville street.

But the OMB's proposed alternative sparked criticism from Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

City council earlier approved a by-law to build the sidewalk along Tracey St., from Sidney to North Front streets — an area used by young students attending George Vanier separate school. A 10-year-old girl was killed in a traffic accident on the street a year ago.

But residents between the school and Sidney objected to extending the sidewalk as far and brought on an OMB hearing.

Thursday, the city's traffic committee was told the inquiry had ruled the city should build only a third of the proposed sidewalk — from Lemoine St. to Harris Cres. in the school's immediate vicinity.

What irked Mayor Jeffrey was that OMB has decided the city should pay 75 per cent of the installation costs. Standard formula under local improvements calls for the city and property owners to share the bill equally.

"The OMB is asking us to change our policy on local improvements — which is 50-50 payment split," fumed the mayor. "I had no idea it had the right to dictate that kind of decision."

"The OMB is asking us to change our policy on local improvements — which is 50-50 payment split," fumed the mayor. "I had no idea it had the right to dictate that kind of decision."

Ald. Paul Russell suggested if the committee believe the sidewalk necessary for the full length of the street and it wasn't approved, (by the OMB) the city should bear the full cost.

This would mean putting the project on the general rate and again Mayor Jeffrey objected.

She said council had decided the sidewalk was necessary but if contested on the general rate it would demand similar action in future "to be fair to the citizens."

Ald. Zegouras said if the city paid 75 per cent citizens would protest and "they have every right to object."

The committee finally agreed with Mayor Jeffrey that a pedestrian count be made along Tracey. Then the committee would seek official word from the OMB on its decision on whether a delegation was prompted by a letter from city solicitors — and then approach both separate school authorities and the Hastings County Board of Education which owns adjoining property to the George Vanier school.

Woman Wounded

SHANNONVILLE — A 27-year-old Shannonville man has been charged with wounding following a shooting incident, which occurred early today in this village located about eight miles east of Belleville.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the man as Charles William Latimer. A second unidentified man has not been charged.

Police said Doris Spencer of Shannonville was wounded in her left arm by a shotgun blast at her residence.

Police said officers were called to the village at 1.11 a.m. and received a description of a car containing two men. A chase followed north on County Road 7 to Roslin where the vehicle returned south and was abandoned.

Provincial police from Belleville, Madoc and Napanee, village police from Deseronto and Sabre, the OPP tracking dog, searched area fields before finding the men who surrendered peacefully. The man pursuit lasted about 45 minutes.

Students Get Experts To Teach Fundamentals

The community use of schools concept can work both ways and now Belleville hairdressers are out to prove it.

The trend during the last few years has been for the community to take advantage of school facilities for educational or recreational purposes. The reverse occurs when the school reaches into the community for resources people.

Belleville Collegiate Institute has taken this and is currently drawing on the expertise of two hairdressers in setting up a hairdressing course for about 12 Grade 9 and 10 girls.

George Hicks, a 25-year-old owner of Beauty Chalet on Dundas St., and Larry Coy, head of the occupations department, said both hair dressers give their time and talents freely in an effort to contribute to the girl's education. Both hairdressers have been instrumental in establishing a hairdressing course for future classes.

George, who is married with two elementary school children said if he's invited back next year he will make several changes. "It was my first teaching experience with young girls and I also learned," added George, who has taught and trained professional hairdressers in his own business.

He said he enjoyed working with students and feels he had contributed greatly to their education. "I noticed many changes in the girls particularly in their attitude towards themselves," he added.

Several girls in the class indicated they would like to pursue careers in the hairdressing field after Mr. Coy, 33, and a new resident of Belleville, teaches the class academic courses in addition the in-training program.

Mr. Coy said other courses use community resource people for a variety of purposes but not as extensively as the hairdressing course. He hoped that additional support from the community could be used in other courses next year.

Resource People

George Hicks, owner of the Beauty Chalet, has been spending an afternoon a week with an occupations class at Belleville Collegiate Institute. Margaret Thompson, 14, watches while George combs out the hair of Vicky Genereaux. Mr. Hicks is considered to be a community resource person.

The Educators

'Ma' Burris Has Special Rapport with Students

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fourth of a series featuring county educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

To her students she's "Ma" or "Mum" Burris, to her colleagues she's "Mother Burris" but for the record she's Margaret (Peggy) Burris — one hell of a teacher at Quinte Secondary-School.

Her special skill is rapport with students which she discovered in the gymnasium as a physical education and later developed it as a full-time guidance counsellor. An active leader at girls' sports, Peggy coached basketball and other sports for the first 16 years of her career.

Born in Baltimore, Md., Peggy immigrated to Toronto with her family and finally settled in Trenton where she graduated from Trenton High School. She later attended Queen's University where she graduated in 1957 with a degree in English.

An early back injury prevented her from studying physical education at Queen's but it was not enough to keep her out of the gymnasium once she landed her first teaching post at her old high school. Through summer courses she qualified herself as a physical education instructor. She combined English and physical education for many years.

It was in the gym office I discovered many of the girls had problems and that I could relate to them," explained Peggy, who has been married for two children, Paul, 11, and Jacqueline, 8.

Peggy said she believes guidance counselling is more crucial today for students than ever before. She said the relaxing of curriculum requirements, has presented real problems for students. "It's our job to keep as many avenues open for the students as possible," she added.

The 39-year-old teacher, who has been at Quinte since 1960, said a guidance counsellor must first be a good listener as well as have an appreciation of the problems students become involved in.

Describing herself as "old-fashioned" Peggy said she still sags at students about values in their lives but she also keeps an open mind to their problems.

"I try to mix understanding with a very down to earth approach to students," explained Peggy, who this year will obtain her specialist certificate in guidance counselling from the University of Toronto.

She said with today's problems guidance counsellors are involved with "crisis counselling" ranging from home problems, boyfriend and girl friend problems to personal problems.

"My main goal has been to make a positive contribution to the students and suggest ways he or she can pick up the pieces," said Peggy.

On (Tip) Top of Things

A familiar landmark in downtown Belleville, the Tip Top Tailors sign atop the building at the four corners is no longer there. But it took a joint effort to get it down, United Rigging and Foley's Supplies and Machine Co. with Gary Mather of Foley's guiding the sign to its resting place. United Rigging's Ray Finkle said the sign most likely will be used for scrap as there was no buyer for it.

Work Begins on Expansion Of Quinte Shopping Centre

The preliminary layout work for a 50-per cent expansion of the Quinte Mall has begun.

Engineering studies have been completed on the north Front Street side and sidewalk and grid layouts now mark the guidelines for workmen to follow in the spring.

Fred Smith, manager of the Cambridge Leaseholds shopping mall, said this week, "construction will definitely begin this spring or early summer . . . but due to weather conditions it is difficult to give an exact starting date."

He said completion of the 13-million expansion is expected in the fall of 1976.

Though original plans called for maximum utilization of the development's 68.3 acres, Mr. Smith said because of drainage problems the project has been scaled down excluding construction of a number of industrial sites and a motel in the rear of the mall."

"It would cost us a million dollars to adequately drain the area that would have housed the industrial and motel sites . . . making the project financially impractical," said Mr. Smith.

The retail extension will provide another 133,000 square feet and will house 30 small retail and service outlets and an unnamed "anchor store" of the same size as Simpsons.

In 1974, Quinte area shoppers doled out $25 million for consumer products in mall stores.

In addition to mall expansion, Cambridge Leaseholds will construct two, 13-storey apartment buildings which will house 300 units.

Youth Charged With Theft

A 16-year-old Belleville youth has been arrested with seven counts of theft in connection with five incidents of shoplifting and two others involving theft of tapes and tape decks from cars.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid of city police identified the youth today as Michael Allan Wessels of no fixed address.

He said the charges resulted from an investigation into the theft of eight tapes and a tape player from a car owned by Brian Hughes of 43 Elgin St. parked outside his residence. Total value of the loss was set at $170.

Purcell: Signals Can Do More Harm Than Good

An urban community can have too many traffic control signals, city manager Wilbur Purcell cautioned Thursday.

"There's nothing worse than

Nurses Still Negotiating

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Board of Health and its 29 nurses employed at the counties' health unit are in the midst of contract negotiations.

Clifford R. Cotton, board administrator, said today the nurses' last one-year contract expired Feb. 28. Talks have been going on since about mid-February.

The health unit nurses include public health nurses, registered nurses and registered nursing assistants.

Volunteers Seeking Cancer Research Funds

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

The annual campaign to raise funds for the Canadian Cancer Society is under way in Belleville. Target this year is $22,000.

One bright and visible part of the campaign in the city will be the daffodils sold throughout the city April 17, 18 and 19 to raise money to fight the disease.

It will be the daffodils sold

With no cure yet found for the disease, money raised goes towards research.

Awards totalling $3,695,185 have been granted to Ontario research workers, such an announcement by the National Cancer Institute of Canada.

This sum is part of the approximately $7,500,000 to be distributed to support research into the causes and treatment of cancer. Most of the funds come from the April campaign underway throughout Canada.

The local cancer society offices are located at 43 Bridge St. E. and donations may be taken there if a canvasser hasn't approached you.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Thursday, April 10 4:32 p.m. — malfunction of alarm system at Belleville General Hospital, no fire.

Thursday, April 10, 8:11 p.m. — ballast overheated in fluorescent light tube at 231 Front St., no damage.

The committee agreed with Mayor Robin Jeffrey that the request be received and the association told it could not at present recommend the lights to city council.

Builders Break Through

Reid's Dairy, apparently headed for a sweep of the Quinte Hockey League six-point final series after knocking off Cornerstone Builders in the first two games of the title set, got a rude awakening Thursday night.

Steered into a corner and forced to produce or die, Cornerstone did just that, at the Memorial Arena, scoring a 5-2 win.

The teams are scheduled to hook up in the fourth game of the series, Sunday night, at 8:30 p.m.

Cornerstone got hot in the late going of the third game, rattling in three goals in the last 16 minutes of play to wrap it up.

Norm Pope was top trigger-man for the winners, potting two goals. He also picked up an assist. Bruce Racicot, Phil Meeks and Barry Pyke notched the other Cornerstone goals. Terry Pope was in on three of the Builders' scoring plays.

Reid's production came off the stick of Moe Hunter. He accounted for both his club's goals in defeat.

Eight Ender

It's hard to come by something perfect in the world of sport but Helen McCorquodale's rink scored a perfect eight-point end in first end of the first match of the Curling Club's women's championship bonspiel. Here the rink poses with the rocks as they were after the end. Only twice has a women's rink scored a perfect end at the Quinte Club. Members of the rink are (left-to-right) Betty Clarke, lead, McCorquodale, skip, Marg Dowit, vice, and Marg Callahan second. Last year when the club had it's first eight-ender by a women's rink, Dowit was a member of that unique foursome as well.

Wyn Maund skipped her rink past 15 others to win the 1975 Quinte Curling Club women's championship. Members of the winning rink are (left-to-right) Jean Cameron (seated), lead, Sylvia Grills, vice, Maund, and Nina Gault, second, (seated).

Palmer's Last Chance for a Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer says if he can't win another Masters golf tournament now he's not sure if he will ever win another.

"If it doesn't pease now, I'm not sure it will ever grak," says the 45-year-old Palmer, surveying the game that thrust him into the thick of a gold-studded pack going into today's second round of the Masters.

"I have been getting ready since December. I have been swinging well for the last month and a half. I feel my game is as good as I can possibly make it."

Pulls cheers early in the day for Lee Elder, the first black man ever to tee it up in this festival of golf's elite, turned to exciting roars at...dusk...for the Masters sentimental favorite as he toured a steady par and birdie course to the final hole where he ran into his only bogey and finished with a 69.

The first-round leader is Bobby Nichols who hardly hit a faulty shot in firing a 67, five under Augusta Nicklaus's par 72.

Poised behind Nichols at 68 were the heavily-favored Jack Nicklaus, bidding for his fifth Masters, and Allen Miller, a University of Georgia graduate who joined the tour in 1971.

Johnny Miller, sensation of the winter tour with three victories in Arizona and California, came in with a 75, putting him in jeopardy of missing the cut.

Palmer's 69 put him in a tie at that position with J. C. Snead and Tom Weiskopf, winner at Greensboro, N.C., last weekend. Just behind them at 70 were former champion Billy Casper, Bob Murphy and young Tom Watson.

Sam Snead, 62, winner of three Masters, joined a half dozen others, including a revived Lee Trevino, at 73—making 16 players under par. Defending champion Gary Player and Hale Irwin, each shot 73.

Elder was one of the 60 over par, shooting a 74 under extreme pressure.

"It was super for me," said the 40-year-old Washington, D.C., pro. The Augusta gallery saluted him with 32 rounds of applause. "They applauded every time I walked on the green," said Elder. "They were beautiful."

Braves Bounce Bullets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington Bullets had the best home-court record in the National Basketball Association this season, winning 36 games—tying a league record—and losing only five.

But Buffalo Braves aren't convinced of the Bullets' superiority at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

During the regular season, the Braves won both their games against Washington on the Bullets' court. And Thursday night, they again beat the Bullets at Landover, 113-102, in the opening game of their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semi-final playoff series.

In other NBA playoff games, Detroit Pistons tied their best-of-three opening round Western Conference series against Seattle, beating the SuperSonics 125-108, and New York Knicks evened their best-of-three opening round Eastern Conference series against Houston, beating the Rockets 106-98.

In the American Basketball Association playoffs; Kentucky Colonels beat Memphis Sounds 101-80 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven quarter-final, and the surprising Indiana Pacers also took a 2-0 lead over San Antonio in their quarter-final series, beating the Spurs 113-103 in overtime.

Bob McAdoo, the league's Most Valuable Player and scoring champion, paced the Braves with 35 points and 14 rebounds. Randy Smith added 27 points and Car Heard contributed 24 points and eight rebounds.

Phil Chenier, returning to action after a week-long layoff because of a back injury, led the Bullets with 29 points.

Dave Bing's 34 points and 11 assists, George Trapp's 24 points and Curtis Rowe's 22 points led Detroit's fast-breaking offence against defenceless Seattle.

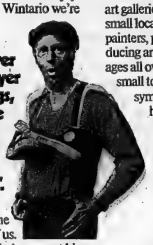
here in Ontario. Things we can all enjoy. So you see, Charlie, with Wintario we're all going to win.

"Support yer sports and yer physical fittings, you say? About the only thing that runs 'round here is my Allis Chalmers".



Well Charlie, it's the same with most of us. So Wintario will help support big sporting events like the Ontario Summer Games. And small events like building a new ball diamond in your town. And coaching clinics so our kids get the best instruction. There'll be something for everyone, everywhere in Ontario.

And more, Charlie. Wintario will help support hundreds of historical projects across Ontario. Places like Ste. Marie Among the Hurons, Nancy Island Museum and Old Fort William. And preserving our past through the work of the Ontario Heritage Foundation, for example.

And more, Charlie. Lottery dollars will provide huge assistance for groups like the Ontario Arts Council. For visual arts programs like the McMichael Collection in Kleinburg, big art galleries like the Ontario Art Gallery and small local galleries. For grants to local painters, potters and sculptors to continue producing and growing. And for musicians of all ages all over the province, all the way from small town Barbershoppers to big city symphonies. Plus, money to support playhouse theatres, drama societies, modern and ethnic dance troupes. Charlie, they're all important.

"No question, you gotta preserve yer hysterical sights and yer monumental statuatory".

"Say now, reminds me, we'll be needing a new buffoon for the Parry Sound Sympathy Orchestra".

You've got the right idea, Charlie. Now, be sure you get a ticket. First draw is May 15th and tickets go on sale in April. One way or another, we know you're going to win. With Wintario, we all win.

You were never more right, Charlie. We're going to call it Wintario. And, with a new draw every two weeks for a grand prize of $100,000 tax free and up to 1350 other big cash prizes, it's going to make a whole lot of people all over Ontario very happy.

Price of the tickets? Just $1.00. And they'll be almost everywhere. Places like cigar stores, newsstands, gas stations, milk stores, grocery stores, restaurants–that's right, almost anywhere.

Blues First to Bite the Dust

Leafs, Hawks, Rangers Get Even

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto's Blaine Stoughton and Chicago's Ivan Boldirev didn't mind watching overtime Tuesday night. Their goals in sudden-death Stanley Cup action meant sudden life for the Maple Leafs and Black Hawks in the NHL National Hockey League playoff epitaphs already had been written.

Meanwhile, at Nassau Coliseum, the fellow wearing the double-time was the man on the penalty clocks. By the time the Rangers finished stomping the Islanders in the second game of New York's "commuter" series, 770 penalty minutes had ticked away—at had the net hopes of an Islanders sweep into the NHL quarter-finals.

There will be no such fun for St. Louis Blues. A shorthanded goal by Pittsburgh's Colin Campbell sent the Penguins to the a 3-2 victory and on to Sunday's opening of the best-of-seven quarter-finals.

Stoughton's goal at 10:19 of overtime gave the Maple Leafs a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Kings and a 1-1 tie in their best-of-three first-round series.

It took 7:33 for Boldirev to make the Black Hawks a 4-3 winner and send them back to Chicago, beaten 8-2 in Tuesday's opener, pleased coach Billy Reay with "the first key game we've won all year."

Boldirev's second goal of the afternoon's duel after Bobby Orr's shorthanded goal had brought the Bruins even at 1:31 of the third period. Boldirev and Stan Mikita had put Chicago ahead 2-0, then Don Marcotte and Ken Hodge wiped out the lead.

"It was an excellently officiated game," said the Rangers' Derek Sanderson, referring to the work of referee Ron Wicks.

"He's a disgrace to the refereeing profession," replied Islanders coach Al Arbour, whose club set records for most penalties against and most penalty minutes against (101) by a team in a playoff game.

Bill Fairbairn scored twice within 31 seconds—one on the power play and once shorthanded—while Steve Vickers and Jean Ratelle had a goal and three assists each for the Rangers. J.P. Parise, Jean Potvin and Bert Marshall scored for the Islanders.

The Penguins beat the Blues on the breakaway goal by Campbell which made it 4-3 with 15:27 left. The Blues shot Pittsburgh 42-39 and led three times, but they're finished for the year now.

"My first intention was only to clear the puck," said Campbell, who thought better of it and instead put the Penguins in the quarter-finals.

Red Berenson, Bill Collins and Larry Sacharuk scored the goals for Jean Pronovost, Ron Stackhouse and Syl Apps were the other Penguin scorers.

Boston for tonight's deciding third game.

The Rangers scored early and often on the way to a penalty-filled 8-3 triumph and tonight's final matchup with the Islanders at Madison Square Garden.

"We have to play a helluva game or we'll be watching the end," sided Rangers defenceman Brad Park. He was speaking not only for his mates but for the other clubs who know that a long tonight will be their last this season.

The Leafs and Kings face a tough assignment in Los Angeles. The game comes less than 24 hours after Stoughton's winner in Toronto—some 2,500 miles away. Tuesday's first game also had gone into overtime, with Los Angeles coming away a 3-2 victor.

After Darryl Sittler had given the Leafs a 1-0 lead midway through the first period, Mike Murphy scored twice to put the Kings in front. Dave Dunn forced the overtime when he beat Kings goalie Rogatien Vachon at 8:45 of the third period, then Stoughton rapped in a pass from Dave Keon for Toronto's first victory over Los Angeles in 10 games going back to 1973.

in overtime," agreed Bruins' coach Don Cherry. "But then, we don't lose too many in Boston."

At Uniondale, N.Y., the differences of opinion carried off the ice and into the opening room. After the teams had amassed a record 50 penalties—27 against the Islanders—there was a shortage of discussion about the work of referee Ron Wicks.

"It was an excellently officiated game," said the Rangers' Derek Sanderson, referring to the work of referee Ron Wicks.

"He's a disgrace to the refereeing profession," replied Islanders coach Al Arbour, whose club set records for most penalties against and most penalty minutes against (101) by a team in a playoff game.

Nordiques, Aeros Show Their Stuff

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros and Quebec Nordiques, the top two clubs during the World Hockey Association regular season, continued to show their superiority in playoff action Thursday night.

The Aeros, who finished the season with a record 106 points, opened their best-of-seven quarter-final with an 8-5 victory over Cleveland Crusaders while Quebec took a 3-0 lead over Phoenix Roadrunners with a 6-2 win.

Houston resumes its series at home Saturday while the Nordiques move to Phoenix for their third game, also on Saturday, and the fourth game next Tuesday.

Tonight's action has Toronto Toros at San Diego looking to even the series against the Mariners who won the first game Wednesday.

The fourth series has Minnesota Fighting Saints, who won their first game, visiting New England Whalers for the second game Saturday.

A crowd of 10,546 in Quebec City Thursday night watched the contest, which featured attempts to erupt into a rough affair. But referee Brent Colselman kept things under control as he dispensed 10 minor penalties and one major throughout.

Left winger Marc Tardif was the star of the Quebec win with a goal and three assists. His third assist came on the first of two goals by Serge Bernier which gave the Nordiques a 5-1 lead in the second period.

Houston winger Mark Howe led the Aeros to their opening victory with three goals but Howe gave teammate Ted Taylor the credit for beating the Crusaders.

"Teddy's goal was the turning point," Howe said of Taylor's second-period score that put Houston ahead for good at 4-3. "That seemed to put them in a shell. And they looked tired early in the third period."

Murray Hall put the Aeros up by two only 46 seconds into the third period and the scoring derby was under way in a sloppy third period when Mark Howe got his second and third goals.

Houston's rookie goalie Ron Grahame, going against playoff-tested Cleveland goalie Gilles Cheevers, got off to a shaky start when the Crusaders' Jim Harrison scored 18 seconds into the game.

The Aeros rallied with Mark Howe's first goal and two more goals by Frank Hughes and Terry Ruskowski for a 3-2 lead at the end of the period. Cleveland's Paul Shmyr scored one of his rare goals to start the second period before Taylor delivered the go-ahead goal.

The third period turned into a rout. In addition to Mark Howe's two goals, Hall and Hughes also scored to put the game out of reach.

Reds Make it a Clean Sweep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds have completed a three-game season-opening series sweep over Los Angeles Dodgers and now are looking to dethrone the National League baseball champions.

"We might have drained a little morale out of them," said reliever Clay Carroll after he nailed down the Reds' 7-6 victory Thursday night. It was the third straight one-run victory for the Reds over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers won the NL West last year by four games, beating Cincinnati 12 out of 18 times along the way.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Montreal Expos 7-5, Philadelphia Phillies beat New York Mets 3-2 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Chicago Cubs 8-4 and San Francisco Giants defeated San Diego Padres 2-0 in 11 innings.

With one out in the eighth, Los Angeles reliever Charlie Hough, who lost opening day to the Reds, hit Pete Rose with a pitch. Then, he hit the next batter, Joe Morgan.

Tony Perez then hit a double down the left-field line. Morgan was thrown out trying to score but Carroll protected the one run margin and the Dodgers were run out of town winless.

Philadelphia's Tony Taylor sent Alan Bannister from first to home with his third-inning double that snapped a tie and beat the Mets.

Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell hit two home runs en route to a four-hit day, as the Pirates dumped Chicago. Manny Sanguillen and Richie Hebner also hit homers for the Pirates.

Rookie pitcher John Denny of St. Louis overcame Montreal and a case of the jitters for his first major league victory.

"I think I was jittery the whole game," said the 23-year-old right-hander. "You just don't know how happy I feel."

Denny, who gave up five hits, left the game in the seventh with a 3-2 lead and he was made even happier an inning later when the Cardinals scored four more runs.

Lou Brock hit a bases-loaded double to highlight the burst and reliever Al Hrabosky made it stand up with two flawless innings.

Bobby Murcer made his first game in the National Leave memorable with a run-scoring double that gave pitcher Jim Barr and the Giants the victory inning triumph over the Padres.

Murcer, the former New York Yankee star, tagged reliever Rich Folkers for a double and raced home on Dave Matthews' double, Chris Speier then scurried past Matthews to come home on Steve Ontiveros' ground-out.

Because they're used cars. And there's never been a rustproofing process that could work effectively on a car that's already started to rust.

Norris Makes 'Em Forget

What do you do when you name and, in fact, bought a Bible himself during spring training, said: "The name's mine, right on. I'm with the Bible all the way."

There were two other games played in the American League. Baltimore Orioles opened their season with a 10-0 win over Detroit Tigers and Texas Rangers beat Minnesota Twins 5-4.

"I've had dreams about doing something like this," said Norris after his successful bow, "and now it's all coming true."

Norris surrendered a first-inning lead-off single to Pat Kelly but promptly picked him off to end the inning. Carlos May's second-inning single and Kelly's double of the ninth were the only other hits off Norris, who walked three and struck out three.

Reggie Jackson hit a three-run homer and Bill Hall and Jim Spencer had three hits each as Oakland pitchers limited Detroit to seven hits.

Jim Spencer hit a three-run homer for the Rangers while rookie centre fielder Lynn Bosnick collected three hits for Minnesota.

Harrison scored 18 seconds into the game.

The Aeros rallied with Mark Howe's first goal and two more goals by Frank Hughes and Terry Ruskowski for a 3-2 lead at the end of the period. Cleveland's Paul Shmyr scored one of his rare goals to start the second period before Taylor delivered the go-ahead goal.

The third period turned into a rout. In addition to Mark Howe's two goals, Hall and Hughes also scored to put the game out of reach.

Soviets Down Sweden

MUNICH (CP) — The Soviet Union defeated Sweden 4-1 Thursday to complete the first round of the world hockey championship with five consecutive wins.

The defending champions, seeking their 18th title, overwhelmed the Swedes with a strong passing game and a tough defence, taking a 3-0 lead in the first period and extending it to 3-1 in the second.

A capacity crowd of 18,000 at Munich's Olympic Sports Hall watched the fast-paced game, last of 15 in the first round. Action now shifts to Duesseldorf for the second round matching the same six teams in the Group A round-robin—the U.S.S.R., Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland, Poland and the United States.

Goal scorers for the Soviet side were Alexander Yakushev with his eighth, tops in the tournament, Valery Kharmalov, his sixth, Alexander Maltsev and Sergei Kapustin. The Swedes got their goal from Toron Lundstroem with three minutes left in the second period.

Czechoslovakia, still numb from a 5-2 defeat administered by the Soviet team Tuesday, scored an unimpressive 6-3 victory over Finland.

It was the fourth win in five starts for the Czechoslovaks, coinvered with the Soviet Union entering the tournament on the strength of three straights wins over the Russians in an earlier tourney.

Vladimir Martinec, Jiri Holik, Eduard Novak and Milan Novy also tallied for the Czechs, with Lauri Mononen and Henry Leppa replying for the Finns.

The loss for Finland was its third against two victories.

Napier, Toros Have Problem

QUEBEC (CP) — The World Hockey Association has decided it will not draft under-age junior players this year, Rod Polle, vice-president of hockey operations, said Thursday.

Polle, here for a WHA playoff game, told a reporter he doesn't know how the decision will affect the case of Mark Napier, 18-year-old Toronto Marlboro star reported to have signed a contract with Toronto Toros.

However, in deciding not to draft players unless they have graduated from junior ranks at 20, the WHA is in line with the National Hockey League which previously announced it will also refrain from drafting underage players this spring, Polle said.

He added the Napier case becomes "an internal matter" for the Toros and the player to settle, but that if the Toros decide to go ahead and employ Napier they will be in conflict with WHA rules.

He explained, for example, that a WHA team may not acquire a player until he has gone through the draft, and that the league must formally approve all player contracts, something it has not yet done in the Napier case.

John F. Bassett, president of the Toros, said he had been advised of the league decision but declined to speculate how it would affect Napier situation.

The WHA first got into the business of signing under-age juniors when Houston Aeros hired away Mark and Marty Howe from the Marlboros two years ago.

Who says that the so-called "Book Hands" don't come up all the time? Here is one from the European championships.

North scrapped the bottom of the barrel with his two-club response, but felt that he had to make another bid. South might well have rested in three spades, but he did go on to three notrump.

Manuel Antunes of Portugal made his normal opening lead of the four of diamonds. South won in his hand, led a heart to dummy's king and a spade back to his jack.

Business was really looking up and he led a second low heart. Unfortunately for his purposes, Antunes had counted on assuming that South would hold the heart queen, as was most likely. So he rose with his ace of hearts.

Then he made the book play of the jack of clubs as writing up many times in this and other bridge columns.

This is the only club he could have led to bring in four club tricks, but declarer had no defence against it. Actually, he covered with the queen. East took his ace; led a club back to West's king and scored the two final tricks with the 10 and seven.

A — Bid three diamonds. You do not have enough to bid two of the three spades, your partner may not be able to go to notrump.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Your partner continues to four spades. What do you do now?

Tailor Exercise To Your Capacity

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a sedentary woman eats a large evening meal and then is completely non-active evening afterward—watching TV, knitting, etc.—what kind of a walk or a bike ride can she undertake to aid with her figure and weight control? What about jumping rope? — Mrs. B.E. .

You don't tell me your age, but your letter indicates you have slipped into the semi-sedentary life-style of many other women at or approaching middle age. Considering this, I would say that the last meal alone is not the answer for you. You would have to maintain a sensible diet program along with it.

As to the exercise, biking and walking are fine, sensible activities, hopefully for most fit middle age. They both are good preventative against varicose veins, and both can help develop a healthy appetite for your evening meal. But neither is going to produce any dramatic results as far as tapering thin and trim is concerned.

And, for heaven's sake, forget the rope jumping.

It is too strenuous an undertaking for any but those in the best of physical condition. Leave it for athletes.

I wonder often why so many readers who write to me on this subject seem intent on making things unnecessarily difficult and complicated. Many methods are available in orbitic libraries. Some offer sensible and effective exercises that can be orders for the roman or man who wants to do them at home. Such exercises are not for everyone, and the ones you choose should be tailored to your capacity. Begin slowly and work up.

I have watched some of the television physical fitness programs that are usually aired conveniently in mid-morning or mid-afternoon, ideal times for the "sedentary housewife." I am impressed with such methods. Why don't you take advantage of them?

If you are sports-minded, find a local YWCA where you can swim a few hours a week. Tennis, too, is an interesting and excellent trimming activity.

Keeping in shape doesn't have to be a grim affair, and it doesn't require your becoming an athlete. Restricted fun can take is more effective than exercise in weight control, especially for the "sedentary" fatties."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has had Parkinson's disease for the past four years. He has been taking Lodosa for three years. The original symptoms have not worsened, but recently he has become very unsteady on his feet. I have heard that a new medicine now is being used. If this is true, I wish you would advise me of its proper name. — Mrs. M.H.

Any new medication for Parkinsonism still is in the investigative stage and is not available for general use. A great deal of testing has to be done before any new medicine is licensed for non-experimental use by qualified physicians.

Most large cities have major hospitals which are constantly engaged in various types of medical research programs. You should inquire at a large hospital near you and find out whether any such work is going on in Parkinsonism.

Some of the earlier drugs used for Parkinsonism have been found helpful used in conjunction with Lodosa. A recent report in the journal, Neurology, has been a new program in which 28-per-cent improvement in Parkinsonism patients resulted when a drug called amantadine was used in conjunction with Lodopa therapy. But this, too, was experimental. Your doctor would be on the look out for any new therapy that would help your husband.

Cement Operation Abandoned

CORNERBROOK, Nfld. (CP) — American Lehigh Cement Corp. of Allentown, Pa., has withdrawn from a partnership with Brinco Ltd. to develop limestone deposits held by Brinex on the west coast of Newfoundland.

As a result, plans for a $70-million plant with an annual capacity of one million tons have been shelved.

Industrial Development Minister William Doody said the Crown will be temporarily withheld while Brinex searches for a new partner in the venture.

He said Brinex is not interested in pursuing the project beyond the feasibility stage but Lehigh ran into cash-flow problems late in the year and applied funds to continue in the venture."

Mr. Doody said at least one company, an unidentified Canadian firm, has agreed to conduct a market study for the project.

The only operating cement plant in Newfoundland is the North Star Cement Ltd. plant here. It mines its own limestone and shale for the process and gets gypsum, the other prime ingredient, from a mine at Flat Bay in St. George's.

Despite a three-week closure last September, North Star produced 114,000 tons of cement products last year, an increase in production of more than 22 per cent over 1973.

CP News Roundup

Stabilized Farm Pay Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's proposal to stabilize a broad range of agricultural incomes was described Thursday by the National Farmers Union as dangerous because it threatens to stabilize producers in a losing situation.

NFU President Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon told the Commons agriculture committee that no other group in the country is being asked to accept the kind of conditions laid down in the stabilization bill now before the House.

It basically would guarantee producers a minimum income based on 80 per cent of the average of the previous five years. Existing legislation now provides for protection up to 90 per cent of the previous 10 years.

Mr. Atkinson said the main problem is that producers are faced with soaring production costs and current market conditions are such that they are in a perfect position. To base protection on these conditions would lock them into a deficit.

Catholics to Parade

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A Homecoming '75 parade to celebrate the city's first Irish Roman Catholic settlers 100 years ago will be held July 12, says parade chairman Bill Hooper.

Mr. Hooper, who represents the parade committee on the Homecoming '75 steering committee, said city 12, Orange Day, would "be a bit of a precedent for an Irish parade."

Truck Wrecked

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A truck driver and a CNR crew escaped without injury today in a collision which disrupted electrical power to a large portion of Brantford.

A slow-moving freight train was in collision with a transport truck driven by Jack Cuddington, 36, of St. Marys, Ont., who escaped unharmed although the trailer unit was sheared in half and the tractor pushed down the tracks.

Save Money

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 200 weather stations will have to wait until their fahrenheit thermometers break before they'll be given Celsius ones.

Environment Canada spokesman said Thursday the decision not to buy Celsius thermometers was made by "some official to save money."

Talks Too Tough

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet is placing too much emphasis on talks of criminal businessmen in speeches on proposed combines legislation, Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) said Thursday.

Mr. Stevens told the Commons finance committee the legislation is too "criminally oriented" and wrongly supposes that large numbers of businessmen are defrauding the public.

He criticized Mr. Ouellet for telling the Commons recently that he hoped judges would use the new legislation to "jail those who deserve it."

Wallets Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police didn't have to go far to find a case Thursday.

When they came off the ice at Maple Leaf Gardens in the No. 32 Division house hockey league, their wallets were missing from the dressing room.

An inspector and divisional detectives are investigating.

CBC Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said Thursday the CBC "is financing the destruction of Canada rather than fighting for Canadian unity."

He said in the Commons the CBC has participated with Montreal in financing a pamphlet entitled Quebec Yes, a film that he said implies that the June 24 St. Jean Baptiste Day holiday is only for Quebecers.

Hydrogen Leaks

TORONTO (CP) — The Pickering nuclear power plant has had to shut down two of its four conventional generators because of leaks in their hydrogen cooling systems.

A spokesman for Ontario Hydro said there is no connection between the current problem and leaks in the heavy water pressure tubes that put one of the nuclear units out of operation for eight months.

Outlook Better

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Big Four United States auto makers told Congress Thursday the economic outlook of the industry is beginning to look better.

Elderly Couple Found Living in Filthy Home

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — An elderly couple living in an upper middle-class neighborhood has been found ill in what police describe as "unbelievably filthy surroundings." They are being treated in Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital.

Police said Thursday that the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Newmaster, apparently spurned all offers of help from neighbors.

Mrs. Newmaster, 78, was found on the floor beside his bed. The mattress had rotted from being soaked with urine and the man had several large sores on his back caused by lying on bare springs.

Police said his wife, Lillian, also in her mid-70s, was "clearly unable to take care of herself or her husband."

The Newmasters had ample funds to care for themselves. Police found a large number of valuable securities when they went to their home Wednesday looking for names of relatives.

Police said the neighbors and the family's minister had tried to assist the couple, but gave up.

Rev. John Korcok, minister of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, said he had been trying to place the couple in a home for 4½ years. He said the trouble began when Mr. Newmaster had a stroke.

He said that he had sought help from lawyers, the Waterloo regional health department and "not relatives without success.

The couple is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Acquitted

HAMILTON (CP) —Robert Barclay, 38, of Hamilton was acquitted of murder but convicted of manslaughter Thursday by a jury which had heard no formal evidence.

Barclay had been charged in connection with the shooting last June of Alan Henry Latour, 34, of Belleville.

Adoptions Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Two officials of the Canadian Save the Children Fund (Cansave) said Thursday they are opposed to transport of orphans from South Vietnam.

William Stock, executive secretary, said that "we take a dim view of mass evacuation of children."

May Refuse Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has threatened to withhold disaster aid to regions being developed despite knowledge that they are flood risks.

The threat is contained in an environment department news release outlining a proposed federal-provincial program of flood control.

New Guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen will announce shortly new aid guidelines which will result in more money for fewer countries.

The minister told the Commons external affairs committee Thursday the guides will govern the operations of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) through 1980.

Autonomy Urged For Arctic Areas

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons debate on the seemingly-complete Northern Canada Power Commission bill was used Thursday for an attack on what the opposition called the government's colonial attitude toward the North.

Autonomy for the Yukon and Northwest Territories was the key issue as the Progressive Conservatives, led by Jack Horner and Erik Nielsen, campaigned for a fresh approach to northern problems.

The bill basically increases membership on the power commission, a Crown corporation established in 1948 to build and operate public power utilities in the North. The Commons finished detail study Thursday night and the bill now requires third reading. Senate approval and royal assent before it becomes law.

But Mr. Clark (Rocky Mountain) said the North still is a colonial region, the residents of which have little or no control over their own affairs.

His main concern is the way the three-member commission will be increased to five—by new members to be recommended by the two territorial commissioners. The commissioners, both federally-appointed, virtually have the power to veto anything proposed by elected councillors.

Yukon Commissioner James Smith is power commission chairman.

"The commissioner is really the minister in disguise," Mr. Clark said, urging the Commons to support an amendment proposed by Mr. Nielsen (Yukon). It would have eliminated the "absurd" situation of having Mr. Smith, as power commission chairman, reporting to himself as territorial commissioner.

Defeated 102 to 66, as the Liberals and New Democrats outweighed the Conservatives and Social Credit members, it would have had the power commission chairman report to the elected territorial council.

Wally Firth, (NDP—Northwest Territories) is all for northern economy, but said outside the House that most of Mr. Nielsen's proposals would make the power commission's job cumbersome.

Advertisers' Boycott Will Be Prohibited

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is willing to go at least part way in new combines legislation towards meeting newspaper publishers' requests for greater protection from boycotts by disgruntled advertisers, Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Thursday.

Mr. Ouellet said he is ready to amend the legislation to permit advertisers to continue making agreements among themselves on the over-all amount of their newspaper advertising but bar them from conspiring to boycott a newspaper because of dissatisfaction over its editorial content.

Disappointed Ford Pulls Out Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, again criticizing Congress for not voting additional aid for Cambodia, said today he ordered the evacuation of Americans from that country "with a heavy heart."

"I sincerely regret that there was not timely action on my request to the Congress to enable the United States to continue to provide the assistance necessary to the survival of the government of the Khmer Republic," Ford said.

Meanwhile, the president pressed his requests for expanded military and economic aid to South Vietnam.

In a statement issued early today, after the closing of the U.S. embassy in Cambodia and evacuation of American citizens, Ford said:

"I decided with a heavy heart on the evacuation of American personnel from Cambodia because of my responsibility for the safety of the Americans who have served there so valiantly.

"Despite that evacuation, we will continue to do whatever possible to support an independent, peaceful, neutral and unified Cambodia."

He said he took the action "in view of the seriously deteriorating military situation around the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, and on the basis of the recommendations of the American ambassador to the Khmer Republic."

On Friday night, Ford sent to Congress three bills containing the requests he expanded aid to South Vietnam that he had voiced in his State of the World speech to Congress Thursday night.

In accompanying letters to Senate and House leaders, he wrote: "I urge the immediate consideration and enactment of these measures."

Ford is seeking $972 million in extra military and economic aid for South Vietnam. Members continued to express doubt that Congress will approve Ford's request for military aid.

"I'm dubious that we have the votes to get anything in military aid," frankly," said John Rhodes, Republican leader in the House of Representatives and a close ally of Ford.

In Paris, the Viet Cong delegation condemned the president's request as "criminal and against the interests of the American people."

Ford also asked Congress for a clarification of his authority to use U.S. troops if "humanitarian evacuation" becomes necessary in South Vietnam.

Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho) said Ford should order Americans out of South Vietnam now "while there is still time to do so without the use of force."

Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG), said her government would help evacuate U.S. personnel from South Vietnam if asked.

"If the United States wants to bring the 25,000 American military advisers out of Vietnam, then the U.S. need only discuss it with us and then we shall be willing to help them do so," she told The Associated Press in an interview in Tanzania.

U.S. authorities said most of those South Vietnamese who might be evacuated to avoid Communist reprisals would come to the U.S.

Meanwhile, the U.S. sent notes to Britain and France, signers of the 1973 Vietnam cease-fire, urging them "to use their influence to stop the fighting" in Vietnam, informed sources said.

The U.S. sent another note to Hanoi reminding North Vietnam "it should have no doubt that it will be held responsible" unless a ceasefire is agreed to immediately.

Viet Cong Troops Close on Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon military command reported more heavy fighting today around Ben Tranh, about 50 miles southwest of this capital of South Vietnam, and at Xuan Loc, 40 miles to the northeast.

Both locations are being watched for signs of the beginning of a drive on Saigon.

Heavy fighting continued for the fourth successive day on the edges of Xuan Loc, the capital of Long Khanh province.

North Vietnamese forces overran a post held by a government militia battalion of 200 men less than five miles east of Xuan Loc, inflicting heavy casualties on the government force.

Field reports said only 20 of the Saigon troops made it back to the command post inside Xuan Loc.

The Saigon command said its forces with by heavy air support have killed 1,000 North Vietnamese troops since the battle broke out.

Government losses were listed as 35 dead and nearly 200 wounded.

The battle for Xuan Loc is seen by military analysts as a test whether the South Vietnamese army has recovered from the retreats in the north and central sectors and can stand and fight.

The Viet Cong delegation to the Joint Military Commission in Saigon said President Ford's request to the United States Congress for $722 million in emergency military aid for South Vietnam was "a dangerous policy."

It said Ford "still is trying to deceive Congress and the American people that such aid could stave off the total collapse of the Saigon government."

The Viet Cong said Ford was seeking an excuse for further U.S. military involvement in South Vietnam and was using the pretext of the evacuation of refugees to send warships and thousands of U.S. Marines into South Vietnam's territorial waters.

Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG), said in an interview in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, that her government would help evacuate U.S. personnel from South Vietnam if asked.

Lewis Says Oil Prices Will Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Friday that Ontario Conservatives are basking in the "momentary glow" of blocking an agreement for oil and natural gas price increases at the federal-provincial energy conference.

But the price of these fuels will rise this year "whether by agreement or by federal imposition," he told New Democrats at an Ottawa West riding dinner.

Premier William Davis has given no indication of whether the province might act to cushion the impact on consumers of the inevitable price increases, he said.

The NDP leader said Ontario apparently will not insist on a prices review board to check all increases and to roll them back when consumers are gouged.

Nor is the province saying whether it would reduce gasoline prices or use tax credits to similar ends, he said.

He challenged the premier to state publicly his response to the inevitable increase.

Variety Spice Of Boat Show

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The cream of marine life is on display at the vacant bowling alley on Dundas St. East, across from Union Carbide.

The boat show, sponsored by Vaughn's Automotive and Marine Alliances, Marine Division, is the largest ever to be held in the city and, says owner Bill Vaughan, "it's very likely the largest in the province (sponsored by a single firm."

More than 50 water craft of every description are included in the show, catering to every bodies.

The smallest of the fleet is a 12-foot, aluminum fishing craft selling for about $400. The top end of the display is the 22-foot-long Trojan cruiser retailing for about $62,000.

The in-between range covers a score of varieties of small inboard cruisers, canoes, car toppers and sailboats.

"This is the first show we've had and it is designed to do two things primarily . . . stimulate sales and acquaint prospective dems with what is available," said Mr. Vaughan.

Along with boats, the show is featuring bargain specials on snow machines, a special section on marine supplies and a full exhibit of mo-peds — a cross between a bicycle and a motor bike.

The show began Friday at noon and continues Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and again Sunday between noon and 6 p.m.

No admission is being charged at the show and tickets will be given for a special show prize of camping lights.

Computer Trap Sprung On Unemployment Cheats

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) has caught more than 1,000 petty cheats in its newest computer trap sprung on unwary abusers of unemployment benefits.

The newspaper says David Steele, UIC's executive director of operational planning, estimates about that about 50,000 Canadians might have to pay money back to the commission when the system goes into general operation.

"We've caught just over 1,000 people in the pilot scheme and if you apply the percentage of cheaters we found to the two million people we see every year, we could find 50,000 abusers," Mr. Steele is quoted saying.

The trap might also cause trouble for many employers, Mr. Steele told the newspaper.

It consists of using a special computer program to compare the first and third copies of an employer's record of employment, the form everyone gets when he leaves his job, the newspaper says. A fringe effect will be to identify employers who fill in these form late or inaccurately.

The Globe and Mail quotes Mr. Steele as saying that employers who are repeatedly filling in forms improperly will be reported to the department of national revenue.

The form includes the date the employee left, the reason for leaving and in case of layoffs the expected date of recall.

The employee receives the the second and the third it mailed to Ottawa. If the employee wants to claim unemployment benefits he hands in the top copy at the UIC office and the information on it is used to determine how much money he will receive in benefits.

Now, the newspaper says, the data on the first and third copies are both fed into the computers, which shows immediately whether the employee has altered the top copy-to hide the fact he was fired or quit, instead of being laid off, or lied about the date he started work again and ceased to be eligible for benefits.

Chloroform Level Tops in Province

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Neil Britton, manager of Belleville's public utilities commission, says there is no proof of harmful effects of high levels of chloroform in municipal drinkin water.

A report released by the Ontario ministry of the environment showed Belleville's water system had the highest level of chloroform in 12 centres surveyed by the ministry.

Test results show chloroform concentration in Belleville water after it leaves the filtration plant before it reaches the consumer measures 144 parts per billion.

Mr. Britton, Friday, explained the report is not making comment that chloroform levels are dangerous or otherwise. Rather, "The report is just identifying levels."

"The province is undertaking investigations to determine the origins of chloroform in the water and some United States agencies are conducting experiments to determine what effects chloroform will have on humans," said Mr. Britton.

The communities surveyed by the province all had municipally chlorinated water which is believed to contribute to chloroform levels.

Most chlorinated water supplies contain chloroform levels below 100 parts per billion, the report showed.

Of the communities tested, Belleville with 144 parts, Brantford with 129 and Cayuga with 72 showed the highest levels, environment minister Bill Newman stated.

"These higher levels are roughly equivalent to detecting the presence of a postage stamp in a ball 100 of paper," the minister said following release of the report's findings.

Mr. Britton said during an interview with The Intelligencer "our commission was advised against reduction of chlorine filtered into city water supplies . . . because of the disinfecting benefits received through chlorination."

Auto Trade Loss With U.S. Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada suffered a record loss on its automotive trade with the United States of $1.2 billion in 1974, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

This was more than triple the 1973 loss of $440 million.

The report likely will renew pressure for some changes in the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto pact. The U.S. market accounts for 80 per cent of Canada's auto production export and 36 per cent of imports.

The loss on trade in auto products with overseas countries of $484 million brought the total loss for 1974 on this trade to $1.8 billion.

Because of the fuel price crisis and depressed economic conditions in the U.S., Canada was able to increase its exports there by only 2.5 per cent to $5.62 billion. In fact, shipments of parts slumped by $218 million from 1973 levels to $1.56 billion and cars and tube exports dropped $4 million to $64 million.

Meanwhile, imported auto products from the U.S. were up 18 per cent in value, a $1.01-billion rise to $6.75 billion of imports in 1974 This followed a 26-per-cent jump in imports in 1973.

Even in its auto trade with overseas countries, Canada's position deteriorated further in 1974. The loss on this trade increased by $52 million to $484 million. Most of this apparently occurred because Canadians chose to buy more imported cars.

Board-Relationships Seminar Topic

Various boards, councils and their administrations in an area covering Oshawa to Ottawa received a refresher course in "board-administration interrelationships" in a keynote address delivered by an educational administration expert at the Four Seasons Hotel Friday.

Dr. Dorsa Ryan, an associate professor of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE) from Toronto, described the roles of each group and how they relate to one another during the first session of a two-day seminar sponsored by Loyalist College.

The second session, involving lectures and workshops at the college, was scheduled to close at about 4 p.m. today.

Discussing Belleville city council, Ald. Brian Knudsen told the gathering of about 70 people the seminar "is a worthwhile learning experience . . . which we will be able to put to use for the good of our community."

Herb Young, college president, said it will produce "standards we may pursue as highly desirable goals."

Driver Okay

TWEED — A man escaped with minor injuries when his car went of control on the Marlbank Rd. in Hungerford township southeast of here last night.

Police said a rear wheel locked on the car, sending it out of control. The driver, Lawrence Tilander, 17, of Marlbank, had cuts and bruises.

Damage was $800.

'Y' Operation Cheapest: Corke

Senior city alderman Ben Corke told the Quinte Home Builders Association this week Belleville's YMCA would be live to seven times more expensive to operate if it was municipally controlled.

Ald. Corke made the comment while making a presentation to the association concerning the independent fund drive to erase the YMCA's $100,000 mortgage.

The "Y" currently draws strong voluntary support and can pay smaller wages than city hall — neither of which would be possible under city administration," said Ald. Corke.

"The city wouldn't be able to get volunteers and would have to give twice the current pay," he said.

Ald. Corke told the group some $90,00 has been collected towards the mortgage and asked the association to consider some donation to wipe out part of the remaining $10,000.

The association later decided individual members should make their own contributions rather than asking a percentage of the home builders coming to the call of any agency in financial difficulty.

Both events are open to graduating students, staff and invited guests.

Three Hurt As Pole Hit

Three city residents were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital early today for minor injuries they suffered in a one-car accident in front of 160 Dundas St. W. at 6:56 a.m.

City Police Chief Douglas Cronkite said a car driven by William A. Dennis, 20, of 14 Tracey Park, Apt. 14, went out of control after striking an icy patch while westbound and struck a hydro pole.

The passengers, also injured, were Brenda and John A. Morton, both 20, of 415 East Dundas St. Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000 and to the pole at $1,000.

Query Election Changes

MARMORA — The municipal council here sees no reason why, as far as the village is concerned, some suggested changes in the Ontario Elections Act should be made.

Clerk-Treasurer William Shannon has been directed to complete a questionnaire from the provincial ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs to that effect.

All municipalities are being asked for their views on changing the date of municipal elections from December to an earlier month, extending the term of office to three years instead of the present two and switching the fiscal year.

Man Charged In Shooting

SHANNONVILLE — A 27-year-old Shannonville man appeared in court Friday for call hearing in connection with a shooting in this village early Friday.

Charles William Latimer was charged with dangerous use of a firearm after Doris Spencer of Shannonville was wounded in the left arm by a shotgun blast at her residence.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville had earlier charged Latimer with wounding. He is currently being held in the Quinte Regional Detention Centre. Trial date has been set for July 8.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, April 12, 12:28 a.m. — oil burner malfunction at 8 King St., no damage.

Car Damaged

City police investigated an incident of vandalism and damage early today to a car parked at the rear of the Canadian Hotel.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said when the owner, Beatrice Morgan of 27½ Isabel St., returned to the vehicle at 1:40 a.m., she found the window broken and the radio antenna bent.

Total damage was estimated at $100. No suspects have been found.

Pound Location Approval Sought

City council Monday moves to establish its own animal control shelter — the sequel to its severance from Ontario Humane Society Services.

Council will be asked to approve location of its own animal pound on Wallbridge Cres. The proposed new site is on city property adjacent to its own public works yards.

The proposal follows council's decision not to accept a new OHS contract proposing higher fees for animal control services.

Bellville has contracted OHS services since 1967. But the contract became an issue late last year after the agency sought a new, costlier agreement. Two weeks ago, OHS manager Tom Hughes made a plea to council that it consider retaining OHS operations and warned that a city-operated service would be costlier and less satisfactory than now anticipated.

Also on next Monday's council meeting agenda is:

— A deputation from the Citizens' Bureau which plans returning its operations from Trenton to Belleville. The agency already has received $12,500 from the federal consumers' affairs ministry to aid its operation. But, said a bureau spokesman Friday night, more funds are also needed to cover operation and hence the delegation will be asking for city assistance.

— An agreement with consultants Proctor, Sims and Hubbell for design and supervision of the Canniffon road grade separation. It's part of the city's major reconstruction of roads improving access through the community and to Highway 401, including an underpass at the Canadian National Railways main line.

Instruments Donated

MARMORA — The municipal council here has donated its village band instruments, purchased about 15 years ago, to the Hastings County Board of Education's local Centennial Marmora.

Dave Weir, principal of Marmora Senior School where the instruments remain in the instruments are currently housed, says about $100, has been spent on the 15 instruments which are usable. About 25 instruments have been originally purchased at a time when a village band was organized.

Weisman Re-elected

PICTON — Jack Weisman of RR 2, Picton, has been re-elected president of the Prince Edward Historical Society.

Other officers elected during the annual meeting include vice-president Roy Shortt, secretary Beverley Skidmore, and treasurer, Malcolm Love.

The executive committee includes Mrs. Harold Bartman, Rev. Arthur Barber, Ray Young, Don MacDermaid and Mrs. Ritchie.

Past president is Woodrow Blakely.

Pushing Pots

China roses, pottery and jewellery are a cinch to sell but how can a clerk spark the customer's interest in china chamber pots? When Sputi's Gift Centre in Picton received a shipment of these decorative reminders of yesteryear Mrs. Andrew Martin hit on a sure-fire gimmick. The pots are displayed in the window with a sign reading "Oh yes, we have a pot . . ."

Train Wrecks Car

A 1966 Meteor was written off after it was struck by an eastbound freight train on a Canadian Pacific Railway crossing on Aikens Road about two miles west of here late Friday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said the car, driven by Diane Circota, 18, of 17 Dover Dr. in Trenton, became stuck on the tracks after it missed the crossing and was abandoned by both her and a passenger, Don Chisholm of Trenton, at about 10 p.m.

Police said the car, owned by Ray Circota of the same address as the driver, was struck about 30 minutes later by CP diesel freight 6723 and carried about 75 feet before the train came to a halt. Damage to the diesel engine was not estimated.

Perennials Basic To Any Garden

By ROSS HASTINGS
Farm Reporter

Oftentimes in conducting gardening clinics or forums around Ontario, I find there is confusion between the terms annuals and perennials. Which ones must be planted every year and which ones come up every year?

An easy way to remember is to take the first three letters of the word perennial — "p-e-r" and relate them to the first three letters of the word permanent. Because there are few plant families that occupy a more permanent place in your garden than perennials — the ones that are planted only once — and come up year after year, after year.

No discursive gardening plan can be complete without a diverse collection of perennials. Because with a little planning, perennials will provide color from early spring until well past frost beginning with the yellow daisy-like flower of the Doronicum, and the early spring riot of color provided by a bed of giant Pacific primrose. And when the tulips and daffodils are faded remnants and the petunias and snapdragons still stripling, the free or bush peony, the brilliant oriental poppy, the orange-yellow globe flower, the stately bleeding heart and its will be in full glory. And incidentally, there's one perennial that's just coming back into its own — the iris, in such shades as chocolate, near-black and magenta.

In essence, the perennials should be the backbone of every garden. They're the mainstays of your exterior decorating plan, around which you paint and decorate yearly with annuals — the ones you have to plant year after year. Which provides an opportunity to set down one of the basic differences between perennials and annuals. The latter sprout from seed, bloom, bear more seed and die within one year. And if you wish to keep them blooming profusely, you should continually pick off the spent blossoms to prevent seed pods from forming.

The herbaceous perennials on the other hand have found a much more dependable way to propagate and survive year after year. They concentrate their survival through their root systems, spreading them and multiplying them year after year throughout the soil. Which is why you can take as a rule of thumb, that the roots of perennial clumps should be split up on an average of every three years. Otherwise, the root systems become too dense. The competition for food becomes too keen and the flowers get smaller and smaller year after year. And in fact, many perennials welcome a regular division of roots. I split a clump of white phlox in four only fall, mainly because I needed a tall white mid-summer flower in two of my beds. And I was rewarded the next summer with four cascades of white flowers that were truly beautiful. Never had those phlox bloomed as profusely.

In spite of their constancy, in spite of the ease with which they can be grown, perennials do provide you with some challenges. For example: The first challenge, and it's a pleasant one, is to plan your perennial layout so that you have color from spring to fall. The second is to keep perennials in their own territory, to prevent them from overgrowing one another and creating a herbaceous slum. And finally, the necessity of planning the right perennials for the right location. Some like full sun, others prefer sun and shade and others thrive in the shade alone.

Now, here's one area of disappointment you can avoid with perennials. Don't go and buy a flower potted perennial this spring and expect great results this year. That's the secret of the perennials' hardiness and constancy. Its in their root system. And that's the one thing they're going to establish before they start sending out a profusion of flowers. So start building the perennial backbone of your garden this spring. It will prove to be a wise decision — year after year, after year.

Others Need Council Support

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Guardian of the public purse strings, town council this year refectantly rescued Glenwood Cemetery from genteel poverty.

An appeal for an annual grant of $10,000 from the town was submitted by the cemetery board after it had been forced to let the caretaker go and proper interment of bodies in the vault had become a matter for concern.

Council did come through but not with the requested $10,000 a year. Instead, a more modest figure of $7,500 was suggested to make it possible to rehire the caretaker and make necessary improvements.

This week, the Prinfle Edward Centre Commission submitted a request for a $1,500 grant for 1975 from council although it has a bank balance of more than $9,500.

When the need for the grant was questioned by Picton councillor Russell Alexander, Picton deputy-mayor Larry Richardson and councillor Charles Hepburn strongly defended the submission.

The importance of recreation for youth was emphasized and although no action was taken on the grant request it was referred to the finance committee for consideration.

Cemeteries and community centres may seem like apples and oranges when compared but council's youth-oriented priorities surface in the question of support.

The County Centre likely will receive a substantial grant this year from Prince Edward County council.

The town of Picton will contribute 30 per cent of this sum and should think twice before tackling on an extra $1,500.

The community is being squeezed for the last taxpayers' dollar to support recreation and youth projects.

Councillor Charles Hepburn termed the proposed arena grant, "a small price to look after our children".

Why should town funds be employed to hire the arena as a babysitter building for local youth?

Certainly, the programs operated at the County Centre are valuable to the community but can taxpayers afford so much of this recreation?

Deputy-reeve Richardson told council the Wellington District Community Centre is in the black because fee rental fees are higher than at the County Centre.

He suggested if rates were increased in Picton the minor hockey program could suffer.

If youth wants to play then youth's parents may instead of hundreds of taxpayers who are continually milked for recreation funds.

The Glenwood Cemetery Board struggled almost without funds for as long as possible before going to council for a grant yet response was lukewarm.

Council carefully considered all aspects of assistance to the cemetery board and spelled out an agreement for its protection.

Some of this caution would be well applied to grant proposals such as the one received from the Centre Hastings Committee.

Perhaps town council has a "sky's the limit" budget of support in principle for youth and recreation but this hardly corresponds with available funds.

Other less glamorous projects like cemetery restorations keep getting in the way of uncentralized support of youth programs.

Take Closer Look At City Spending

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A shiver ran up my spine this week when it became apparent in council that possibly only one of five council members present had looked over the March cheque register of $453,792.

That cold chill didn't stem from the size of the sum, but rather from the method in which it was to be approved — almost without consideration by council.

Discussion of the register was sparked by council's self-appointed watchdog of the public purse, Peter De Groot. What was revealed during that discussion bordered on comedy.

Mayor Bob Patrick said he doubted that anyone had seen the March register.

Councillor De Groot said he doubted whether any of his fellow councillors looked at one.

Numerous questions pop to mind, if, as Mayor Patrick indicated, no one else had seen the register, how can it possibly be approved (Shades of the old rubber stamp). By its very nature, blanket approval, as council's action would have been, has one drawback.

It's difficult to see under that blanket. And that applies both to individual councillors and the public.

For example, if councillor De Groot had not questioned a $1,454 bill from a Toronto consultant, would councillors have known that it was not itemized — that, essentially, they were paying out town dollars for an unknown service.

And councillor De Groot in making his statement, even if exaggerated in the brief moment of debate, indicated council as a whole was not doing its homework. Interestingly enough, his fellow councillors did not raise any objections to what could be interpreted as accusatory comment.

At the heart of the mind-debate this week was a question: is council abrogating its responsibilities in overseeing the cellars the taxpayer annually pours into the treasury?

Wrinkling of brows and concern over the taxpayers money at budget time is far from enough. That concern over rooms per capita has grown from one pound to four pounds, keeping commercial growers busy. — (Ministry and Agriculture and Food Photo.)

where and why money is spent is an integral part of a councillor's daily stock in trade.

If councillors pay such cursory attention to their monthly bills, it seems doubtful that their decisions can be closely tied to a firm knowledge of the town's business.

But the ultimate absurdity is that one simply does not okay a cash flow of $453,792 without looking more closely at its purpose. Such a blase attitude is one that should not be found among men who purportedly control over $6-million a year in public money.

Venezuela: Rich And Rude, Almost Tax-free, but a Bureaucratic Nightmare Too

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

CARACAS — If oil-rich and booming Iran or Saudi Arabia are too far away to waste firsthand what oil wealth is doing to an emerging national society, take a look at Venezuela.

It was supposed to be easier for Canadians to reach this expanding social democracy with its growing affluence and solmilled tourist wonders, through a direct Air Canada service from Toronto and Montreal here to Caracas.

In fact, the president of Air Canada was in town to sign a Canada-Venezuela bilateral to make it start sometime around December 1. But he didn't sign and the bilateral air agreement for the moment is off.

And it says much about the present state of Venezuela, trying to sort out its priorities with all that oil money sloshing around, that no one knows for sure why the Venezuelans came up with a technicality to stop it at the last moment.

This columnist suggested it might have been the sudden resignation of the president of VIASA, the Venezuelan International State Airline who quit the day the bilateral was to be signed. But no.

The minister of communications wasn't available, incommunicado, no one knew for sure where he was, even though he was to see a Canadian ministerial counterpart in the form of Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie, also here with a major Canadian trade mission.

In fact, the cavalier manner in which cabinet ministers in town, (Gillespie arrived at the start of Holy Week), dealt with the Canadian mission said even more about a Latin American society which has it made and could be called "rich and rude" in its external attitude in general.

The affluence, Brazilian-style, is all-embracing. Bumper-to-bumper traffic, elite stores and shops, American influence everywhere even to the appearance of such computer food stops as hamburger stands.

Burger Chef de Venezuela will put Venezuela's Venezuelan bronzed and subtle beauties, the world may day to be turned latent on Copacabana Beach in Rio de Janeiro, swivel around restaurant facing hotel in suburban Caracas, letting almost all of it hang out except for what's hidden by the thong bathing suit.

Only beneath the surface of life here is the real story of how so many Venezuelans have become millionaires in the last five years or less.

Listen to the reason and weep. Almost no income tax. I had dinner the other evening with a business friend from college days who made $40,000 last year and paid little income tax.

The name-of-the-game is to sign your contracts abroad and receive your fees and royalties from there because they are all tax exempt in Venezuela. Now even easy-going Venezuelan tax authorities have to puzzle about a citizen living in a stylish suburb, sending his kids to college in the U.S., but paying out that kind of tax pittance.

What wealthy Venezuelans do is to "share" each other's income tax, one paying more of the others in his good year and vice versa.

But here is the real kicker. As much as the new Democratic Action Government, which has some advanced social reform ideas, would like to create a progressive tax system, it probably won't because Venezuela has 97 billions in excess of fiscal budgetary funds to play with.

And how is the new regime of President Carlos Andres Perez playing with them? The first clear indication is to project Venezuela as the emerging Caribbean power, wealthier than Mexico with a more acceptable political formula than Marxist Cuba.

From the country's National Investment Fund set up to invest much of the new wealth in the world, $1 billion has gone in two lots to the Inter-American Development Bank and lesser amounts to the central fund of the Central American Common Market.

The Corporacion Venezolana de Petroleo (CVP), Venezuelan Oil Corp., on which our budding National Petroleum Corp. appears to be based, has a commitment "to export 100,000 barrels of Venezuelan crude a day to Central American neighbors and others like Guyana who have no oil of their own.

This is done in conjunction with some substantial Caribbean backing by President Andres Perez, the interior minister of 10 years ago who took tough measures to end Fidel Castro's subversion of the Venezuelan scene.

He has been to Mexico to talk up a substitute economic alliance to replace the U.S.-dominated Organization of American States, which will include Cuba with whom Venezuela has resumed diplomatic relations.

In the South American continent, where this huge republic sits with its own Andean and Amazon territories, Venezuela is an active member of the new Andean Pact of west coast nations in a new form of regional common market.

But at home, Venezuela's deep social and economic disparities, so far largely untouched by distribution of much of that new income, wait for the president's attention.

Until they get it, the endless plans of the many ministries will be added to the earlier ones of earlier governments in a country where the many bright young government planners trained in U.S. business schools have an endless capacity to draw up, if not implement plans.

Take agriculture. Venezuela, with rich farm and food-production lands as yet largely undeveloped, still imports $1 billion in food, a disgraceful performance in a nation with the bureaucratic and financial talent to begin massive import substitutions for food.

Last year the country over-estimated its sugar exports and faced a shortfall in domestic needs. The many plans didn't call for the gauche solution attempted, pending the massive mineswceper secretly to Havana to load up with Cuban raw sugar.

Into all this came the eager Canadians, faced not only with Venezuelan indifference to them as one of many nations seeking business in their rich, rich land, but the omnipresent American businessman and branch plant with a strangle-hold on much of the business prospects.

Or as Robert Grassby, chairman of the board of MLW-Worthington Montreal, U.S. branch plant of a company which also has a substantial Venezuelan operation put it, "we are riding head-on against entrenched American interests here."

But all was not gloom. The Venezuelans are deep into plans to diversify a major steel-making facility, build an integrated pulp and paper industry from branch, rather than transport systems via the STOL, (short take off landing) aeroplanes' formula, all areas where Canadian expertise is better than American, and therefore a clear demand.

There is a rampant nationalism now familiar to us in Canada taking shape in some of the quaint ways it does in Canada. That new word of the energy crisis — petrodollars" is rejected in Venezuela for "petrobolivares" (the bolivar being the national currency).

And if you think the Arab potentates are the only ones discreetly buying up real estate and property in Canada, you're wrong. Canadian Embassy personnel estimated about $250 millions in Venezuelan investments are being made this way quietly but persistently in Canadian real estate.

And remember, whatever a Venezuelan businessman has in profits, rentals, fees is tax deductible at home. That's real affluence.

The Hidden Persuaders

A lot of what passes as advertising on television today is slick and interesting. It can be funny too; it can also grate. In some instances it is offensive or potentially dangerous. Always though, it is manipulative, even when we are not consciously listening.

That way, it is called subliminal — beneath the level of consciousness but retained nonetheless by the psyche.

Of course, the discriminating viewer could list a whole range of products and services plugged daily on the tube that he has never availed himself of, and never will.

And there are those who, like Debbie Squires in a letter on this page today, are concerned enough to point out where the medium and the message leave much to be desired.

But there is another side to this; that is, to what extent is this kind of daily . . . call it propaganda taking over our thinking and bending our thought processes, even invading our privacy and even pushing aside our moral precepts and convictions?

There is a new paperback on this theme. It is called "The World is Full Of It" and it is by Isadore Barmash. The New York Sunday News says of this indictment of the mass manipulative scene: "Every day, men and women in business, entertainment and government are subtly brainwashing us to respond to the wrong things for the wrong reasons. . ." And echoing Debbie Squires' concern about the "impersonality" of this ongoing process, The News says the book "offers a workable plan for keeping our individuality in a world that seems determined to destroy it."

Certainly there is an increasing need for individuals to stand up and be counted in this world. There is a massive political and spiritual vacuum which mankind is being tossed around and no one is crying halt.

Barmash worries about how we are taught to respond to outside values, rather than our own feelings, and about how our emotions have been "desensitized." Again, the concern about impersonality. The book is a significant commentary on a world badly in need of moral and spiritual backbone.

Happy Hookers

Housing is hard to come by these days, but a citizen writes to us of a happy occasion this occurred recently.

The writer is identified only as "G. Townsend," and the letter speaks of "a dream come true for a hundred or more people who moved into their new home at 247 Bridge St. W."

The letter expresses special thanks to Mrs. Kay Skeen, of the Ontario Housing Corporation here, and her staff for helping them to get settled.

Amid a situation that is unsatisfactory to many people, either by reason of scarcity or of cost or both, and in a world in which few people get thanks for anything, this is a pleacant change. We hope more citizens will become as happily and expeditiously housed as the year progresses.

Role of The Paperback

Speaking of paperbacks and the "hidden persuaders" of our day, the continuing literary preoccupation with sex is all too evident.

On Belleville bookstands there is now a male-oriented equivalent of Xaviera Hollander's Happy Hooker. Predictably, it's called The Happy Hustler. There is another one called Making Out which along with such other offerings as Primal Xmas, Erotic Cruising Divorce, and Memoirs of an Ex-Porn Queen should go far toward killing the subject stone dead. At least from a literary standpoint, for even the most avid fans of this sort of phenomenon must have had it up to here.

It is strange too to find such fine Canadian writers as Max Braithwaite almost in this league, with a work called The Pleasure of His Company. The book sports a cover picture that might open a few eyes, yet in all probability it will evoke no great protest.

If there is one thing Canadians by and large are not up to, it is making a big fuss, even when what's left of their latterday sensibilities are offended.

We don't anticipate a public assault on the book stores, or any great outcry. And doesn't this say something about the national character and about the state of things today?

"CURSE YOU, RED MENACE"

U.K. Wants NATO Summit in May

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — A surprise British proposal for a NATO summit conference in May has caused considerable confusion on Western Europe, sending diplomats scurrying into hasty, high-level strategy sessions.

James Callaghan, Britain's somewhat unpredictable foreign secretary, called for a Nine-Canada-government meeting in a letter to U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger and President Ford.

Although the Americans have not yet accepted the idea, the letter itself has obviously caught many European members of the Atlantic alliance unawares.

The attitudes of the various continental countries have still not hardened but a Dutch diplomat seemed to reflect a fairly widely-held view when he asked: "Why now?"

Foreign policy collapses in Vietnam and Cambodia and setbacks in the Middle East, the British say, have made it essential to demonstrate that there is no corresponding decline in the United States' international influence or in Western Europe's continued dependence on the U.S.

Major allies seem happy the U.S. is not re-entering Vietnam but some believe it must be shown this is no sign of weakness.

There are other matters affecting the alliance as well, the British argue, which need to be dealt with before an East-West summit.

These include the Turkish occupation of Cyprus, Greece's withdrawal from the military side of NATO and a major swing to the left in Portugal.

But another strong motive of the British seems to be an attempt to demonstrate that they can still play a major world role, in addition to bolstering U.S. leadership if that can be accomplished as well.

20 YEARS AGO

April 12, 1955.

A pleasant Easter week-end with temperatures soaring to a warm 65 degrees brought out motorists in droves Sunday afternoon with city and provincial police reporting solid lines of traffic, which bogged down almost to a standstill on highway routes through Belleville and Trenton. According to police the bottleneck at Trenton surpassed that in Belleville with cars lined bumper to bumper on the highway route through the town and for a mile or more east.

Six men from Belleville are among the 43 Bell Telephone employees who have been awarded Safe driving buttons for 1944 by the Ontario Safety League. They are R.P. Bonny, E. Pavlett, A.T. Caldwell, C.E. Coleman, M.J. Shapero and E.A. Goodger.

Included in the recipients of the badges of honor being presented to school teachers for 15 and more years' service in Junior Red Cross in Toronto this week were Miss Anna Louise Wood and Miss Norma Woodley and Miss Mary Cook — all Belleville school teachers.

A carload of heavy Hereford steers was recently shipped to a Montreal abattoir from the farm of Henry Wallbridge of Prince Edward County. The load, numbering 24 animals brought the top market price of over 13 cents the pound. They were fed on the Wallbridge farm in the Massassoga district of the county.

40 YEARS AGO

April 12, 1935.

A new fuel which is sold in packaged form in grocery stores has just made its appearance in Belleville. This fuel has been introduced in Toronto and other cities and is said to have been a success. It will be manufactured in Belleville from very fine coal screenings, turned into suitably sized blocks by pressure, then individually wrapped in strong kraft paper with gummed tape, several of which are placed in one package, paper wrapped, and are placed right on the fire. The absence of any dirt in handling is one of the advantages claimed for this style of fuel. Machinery for the manufacture of the new fuel fuelled Fuel Pals, in Belleville has been arranged by Harry Smith Ice and Fuel Co., Pinnacle Street, and will be in operation soon.

At the boy's meeting recently at the City Hall it was unanimously decided to form a boy's City Council. Mayor Mikel Ponton will ask the boys will register their names, and then a nomination meeting will be held when candidates for mayor and members of the Junior City Council will be elected. A Junior City Council, when elected, will appoint a Junior Parks Board, Board of Health, City Clerk, Treasurer, Engineer, Collector, Assessor and other officials. A police force will also be organized. The council will receive instructions as to introducing by-laws, motions and other procedures.

Economic Recovery Possible But No Thanks to Ottawa

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Since the Academy Awards are becoming political anyway, they should at least have given a special Oscar to our Messrs. Trudeau and Turner for outstanding achievement in the field of suspense.

Throughout the Trudeau-Turner era, the government has always appeared to be on the point of doing something constructive about an economy that keeps going from bad to worse.

But while our political leaders fill the screen with close-ups of their good intentions, they continue—all cameras—to point the economy in the direction of ever-greater inflation and stagnation.

The latest plot twist has Finance Minister John Turner planning to table a new federal budget next week.

But that depends—on U.S. economic policy, on the impact of oil and natural gas price increases, and on the possibility of a "controlled" rise in inflation among opinion-leaders.

Ground for hope of such a correction was provided in the recently published annual report of the Bank of Canada, Governor Gerald K. Bouey wrote:

"There is a reasonable prospect that the low point in world economic activity will be reached before long, and that some recovery in a less inflationary environment may be evident by the end of the year."

Later, Mr. Bouey added: "Policy adjustments in a number of countries give reasonable grounds for hope that a more satisfactory rate of growth in the world economy will have emerged by the end of 1975 or early 1976."

It's equally reasonable, perhaps, to foresee a still lower level of economic activity before long—especially if there should be a renewal of the Middle East war, or if Communist warlords follow up their victory sweep in South East Asia by opening up new fronts elsewhere.

Let's hope fervently, that such disasters don't materialize, and that economic activity will begin to pick up next year.

But instead of simply waiting and hoping, could our government not get back to basics and encourage the production of real wealth once again?

Inflation has so swollen the revenues of governments at all levels that politicians have forgotten the producers in their rush to spend public money on pressure groups, on huge pay increases for public-service employees, and on boondoggles such as a new Toronto International airport.

The producers of wealth—the people who built work and try to manage for themselves—are saying their hunger for economic security go down the drain, as inflation wipes out about one per cent of the value of everything they have worked for.

Sharing the wealth is fine, up to a point. But you can't share it with those who really need it, rather than those who merely demand it.

And let's pay enough attention to the real economic machinery to make sure that there will be some wealth left to share.

'Personal' Ads Annoy Some

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to know your and your readers views concerning the quality of television advertisements today.

I am puzzled by the lack of intelligence in the personal types of commercials which include in order of frequency, bras, panty-hose, girdles, sanitary napkins, hemorrhoid, douches, and various feminine sprays.

I don't think anyone enjoys having their favorite show interrupted by these types of commercials. It is not only embarrassing but it is also in bad taste. It is not the place to be discussing these products with the children present.

If the woman is to be publicly embarrassed time and time again why not expose male personal needs also?

But what concerns me the most is that both men and women do not appreciate how impersonal these commercials have become. I find them offensive, embarrassing and degrading.

Divorcement of Law From Religion Alarms

NEW YORK (AP) — Unease among American Law Schools has been developed among some legal scholars at a modern approach to the law that cuts jurisprudence off from its moral-religious roots.

As a result, education in the law has suffered the loss of a vital dimension, two legal scholars told a meeting in San Francisco of the Association of American Law Schools.

Harold J. Berman, a Harvard University professor of law, said the scope of scholarship in the field has been reduced by "the acceptance of the secession of the law in the canons and traditions of schools of religion."

The resultant shallowness tends toward "studying cases without reference to ethical considerations."

"Secularization of legal education has led to idolizing of the text," Berman, who is Jewish, added.

"Pursuit of the laws objective of social justice, without any sense of dependence upon God, has produced a kind of Utopian law which has also become a religion."

John T. Noonan Jr., a Roman Catholic, of the University of California law school, cited the same sort of idolatry, saying: "There is a virtual search for salvation in the law by people coming to law schools today."

In a similar vein but in another setting, United States Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, declared: "The balance has been tipping. The compass has been askew. It is time the old guideposts are no longer there, or at least no longer looked to or relied upon.

At a lecture at Emory University law school in Atlanta, Blackmun, a United Methodist layman, called for a restoration of basic moral and ethical principles, particularly in the legal profession.

Citing recent Watergate-related scandals and other cases in which lawyers compromised ethical principles, he said the legal profession must be committed to "what is just and moral as well as barely legal."

He said moral principles are of a higher order than the law itself, but that the law "necessarily has a moral dimension" arising from the foundation.

At the law school meeting in California, Berman traced secularization of the law to educational trends starting in the U.S. in the late 18th century.

Until then, he said, "from the medieval universities through England's Inns of Court to the appreciative lawyers who learned from Blackstone, it was taken for granted that human law was rooted in divine and moral or natural law."

But "that religious dimension began receding in 1870 and has now all but vanished."

Four of Five Catholics Support Birth Control

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 79 per cent of Roman Catholics in the United States favor changes permitting priests to marry and 83 per cent of them approve artificial contraception despite papal teachings against it.

These are among findings of a representative survey made by the National Opinion Research Centre under direction of Roman Catholic priest-sociologist, Rev. Andrew Greeley. It found that:

—Almost a third of American Catholics would support ordination of women as priests and more than four-fifths would vote for a qualified woman for president.

—Sixty-seven per cent think recent changes in the church are for the better and only 19 per cent think they are for the worse, with the rest feeling the changes made no difference.

—More than four-fifths of the Catholic population approve of the English-language liturgy and about two-thirds approve of guitar masses, lay readers for mass, progressive religious education and sex education in Catholic schools.

Summarizing the findings for the January-February issue of the Catholic journal The Critic, Father Greeley and three colleagues who assisted in the study, write:

"Despite the pontification from both the left and the right that 'the people' are upset about changes in the church we could find little evidence that any more than a minority are opposed to the 'new church.'"

However, a slight majority, 54 per cent, think there have been enough changes.

Most of the laity, 72 per cent, have sympathy for priests who have left the ministry, the report says, adding:

"Despite the argument frequently heard in high ecclesiastical circles that the laity would not accept a married clergy, 78 per cent say they favor the lave of such a change."

The study involved questions and responses from a nationally representative sample of about 1,000 Catholics.

Weekly mass attendance was down over a 10-year span to 50 from 74 per cent. Monthly confessions declined to 17 from 38 per cent. Those who say they are "practically never" going to confession increased to 38 from 18 per cent.

However, while some traditional forms of religious practice declined, the proportion receiving weekly communion doubled, rising to 26 from 13 per cent, and new forms of religious life, such as charismatic prayer meetings, home liturgies, marriage encounters and religious discussions "attained a surprising popularity."

"Religious devotion among adolescents was substantially higher than that of their parents," the report says, noting that 64 per cent of teen-agers attend mass every week and 62 per cent receive communion weekly.

Catholics who feel certain that Jesus handed over church leadership to Peter and the popes dropped to 42 from 70 per cent. Only 32 per cent think it "literally true" that the Pope is infallible when he speaks on faith and morals.

However, 82 per cent of Catholics approve the way their parish priests are handling their jobs and 71 per cent feel the same way about the Pope, a higher score than ever scored by the last six U.S. presidents. But only 62 per cent approve the way the bishops are doing their jobs.

Remarriage after divorce is approved by 73 per cent, compared with 32 per cent a decade ago. Approval of artificial contraception rose to 83 from 45 per cent. Forty-three per cent approve sexual relations between an engaged couple, compared with only 12 per cent in 1963.

Seventy per cent think it should be possible for a married pregnant woman to have an abortion if she doesn't want any more children.

Once Life Broken It Can Be Useful

By
Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Most of us have a preference for new things. When they are new we love them away. Is that how we regard people? Do we allow in despair that our lives seem to be smashed?

The psalmist wrote, "A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou will not despise" (Psalm 51:17). The world abounds with broken spirits. And broken vows.

God can mend them. He gave us a Savior. He was despised and rejected by men. But "the very stone which the builders rejected has become the head of the corner". St. Paul spoke out of experience that can be duplicated in our own, "If any one is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old has passed away, behold, the new has come."

God can also use broken lives. Of course, there is no such individual as a well-rounded man. But - many think they are. Pride goeth before a fall. And usually they are crushed by loss or adversity. To some degree we are all involved. But if we offer the shattered pieces of life to God, a miracle happens. He can use us new as he could not have used us before.

There is, as Dr. Albert Schweitzer said, a fellowship of pain, a kind of fraternity of those whose hearts have been broken and mended. When healed, they give themselves in som way to a part in th healing work of God. Therefore, if your heart is still like flint, let it be broken. If it is broken, give it to God that he may mend it. Then devote it to his service.

Above all, God can love broken hearts. Dr. Leslie Weatherhead once told of a boy, left without a father, whose mother had to go out to support the family. One day she warned him about a dangerous fire intensity had erected nearby, and told him not to go near it.

He disobeyed, as small boys will, and fell from the grazing. He was taken to hospital. There he overheard an indiscreet nurse who stood outside his room tell his mother that he might never walk again.

When the mother entered, he asked, "Mother, do you love me?" She answered, "Yes, of course I love you." And he said, "Then everything is all right, I heard the nurse, but if you forgive me and still love me, I can take the rest."

So it is with the broken-hearted and God. Christ brought this about when he made peace for us on the Cross. In him, the apostle wrote, "all things hold together".

College Clown

NEW YORK (AP) — Clowning around the campus is serious business for Fred Yockers of Flatbush. Yockers, who grew up in Brooklyn, is a professional clown who worked with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus for six months, including nine weeks in Madison Square Gardens. Yockers intends to make a career of clowning, but he decided after six months of touring the country that he doesn't want to spend his life on a circus clown. Ultimately, he would like to found a performance and teaching centre devoted to circus mime and comedia dell'arte.

Practising the eightsome reel, the dancers step out lightly as they swing round in a star.

Scottish Country Dancing — Lively and Social

By ISABEL HUGGAN
Women's Reporter

The light whisk and brush of soft leather shoes on the gymnasium floor, as dancers practise their steps.

Then the phonograph needle sets down on a record, and the lively music of a reel fills the room. The dancing begins again and four couples join hands and circle in the intricate patterns of Scottish country dancing.

And within minutes, they've knotted themselves into colliding bunches, hopelessly entangled and laughing helplessly till the music stops.

Dancing instructor May Sanders, Scottish-born deportment at Bridge Street United Church, laughs along with her students, and reviews the dance steps with them before they begin again.

The Scottish country dancing classes, held at Harmony Public School for the past ten weeks, are finished now until the autumn when the group plans to meet again.

One of the students, Bud Munroe, president of Clan Munroe in Canada, hopes to rejuvenate the St. Andrew Society in Belleville. And if he is successful, the society will be sponsoring dancing classes for children and teenagers as well as adults.

"Scottish country dancing is the most sociable of activities," says Mr. Munroe. "It's extremely gay, and also very polite."

As the dancers move through the steps of strathspeys and scottisches, they maintain a genteel composure that differs from the more boisterous "swing-your-partner" atmosphere in square dancing. Yet, there are many similarities between country and square dancing.

There are perhaps eight or ten basic steps, which are then rearranged to the rhythms of various melodies.

Although only four of the 20 in the class are Scottish-born, there is tremendous interest in Scottish tradition and culture among the dancers. John Croxford is a piper, and a former highland dancer with the air force drill dancing team, and Larry Francis is the drum sergeant with the CFB Trenton pipe band.

The men are equally as graceful as their wives, in fact some of them show considerable talent and flair for the light-footed dancing.

"It's funny," says Mrs. Sanders. "Some of the husbands were pulled along here, but now they've really taken to it, and keep urging their wives to practise more!"

Others have joined through casual interest in Scottish things and greater concern with exercise and sociability.

"It really is the most sociable of dances," says Miss Sanders. "And it's the most democratic. These dances were part of every level of society in Scotland, and are still danced at weddings and parties."

Anybody who's interested enough to come out to dancing class isn't going to be the shy type who stays in a corner,"

May Sanders tries out steps as she reads them.

Bud and Rita Munroe execute a neat schottische.

comments Maureen Francis. "And it's the kind of dancing you can do and enjoy whether you're built like a hippo or graceful as a dove!"

As the evening wears on, the dancers refresh themselves with tea and continue practicing until they can move through the dances without mishap. The Marquis of Huntly's Highlander, the Petronella, White Cockade and the Gay Gordons all take shape, and the class ends with everyone feeling a little more confident about their trip to Kingston's Royal Scottish Country Dancing Society on April 19.

Women's News Briefs

Contact Lens Turns Up

THOMSON, Ga. (AP) — Bonnie Martin, who lost a contact lens 17 years ago, says she has found it—in her eye. "My doctor was as shocked as I was when he found it," said Mrs. Martin, an elementary school teacher who says do not seems to believe her story. But her ophthalmologist backs her up, saying the lens had worked itself into the conjuctiva, the mucous membrane that lines the inner eyelid.

Tops Go Bye Bye

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — The 20 go-go guys in Baltimore County can shed their tops now, thanks to a ruling by the county liquor ore strips or see through tank board. Recently, it bee- board shirts. But after reversing the chairman, ruled last month that law with an eye toward "the inside dancers were subject to revocation differences between the same law prohibiting bared men and women," he said the supplies as female dancers, bare- board amended the code to exempt the men to resort to bomb-clude men.

German Wine That Really Isn't

When is German wine not really German?

According to the German Wine Information Bureau, it's when blends of wine from European Economic Community nations labeled with German-sounding names are sold. Those not-really-German wines apparently carry the label statement: Produce of Germany. The German wine industry feels this is misleading and confusing to consumers who like and use German wines.

In the future, table wines will carry details of their origin— what wines have been blended, country of origin and, if bottled in Germany, appropriate labeling.

Germany has the strictest wine laws in the world — and, least the wine industry says so — and three grades of wine are produced. They are Tafelwein, Qualitatswein and Qualitatswein mit Pradikat. Most exported wines fall into the latter categories and carry an official control number with a QBA prefix.

A survey of the effects of the removal of federal sales tax on clothing and footwear has shown that the retail prices of these items has dropped just over five per cent since the tax was removed last July.

The savings to the consumer might have been higher had higher wholesale costs not occurred and sale of tax-paid inventories not continued.

If you're feeling righteous about chilling down on the purchase and use of white sugar, then busily substituting corn syrup or maple syrup, you're not doing yourself any favors.

First of all, they're not any better for you than white sugar; only one sweetener, secondly, is any cheaper.

One cup of white sugar will supply about 768 calories; the equivalent in sweetening power in molasses (¾ cup) is 800 calories (some improvement) and 912 in corn syrup. If you choose to substitute more natural sweeteners like honey and maple syrup the calorie cost will be 744 calories and 800 calories respectively.

What about honey? Sugar costs 27 cents; corn syrup, 29 cents; honey about 36 cents; maple syrup about 82 cents and molasses about 73 cents for equivalent sweetening power.

If you're determined to try to reduce calories and cost without doing the simplest thing — cutting out sweets or at least cutting down — then it seems sensible to choose molasses.

With lower beef and veal prices, many people are buying large quantities of meat at the supermarket and freezing it. Beef steaks and roasts can be stored for 10 to 12 months, as most people know, but veal roasts, slices and chops will only store from four to five months. If you're putting a sizeable investment into meat, be sure to overwrap, check the freezer temperature (-18C) and date the packages.

Marilyn Brooks is the most diversified designer in Canada. She designs ready-to-wear clothes, uniforms for hotel personnel, costumes for stage and musical personalities and is fashion co-ordinator for Miss Canada and Miss Teen Canada Pageants. Marilyn has taken the beauty queens and their wardrobes on fashion show junkets to Acapulco, Nassau and recently, to Aruba.

She has made a new career to designing costumes for hotel and business personnel. Her first uniforms were for the Toronto city hall guides.

Since then she has designed the uniforms from doormen to maids for such hotels as Toronto's Park Plaza, Edmonton Plaza, Vancouver's Hyatt airport hotel, the Hyatt agency in both Vancouver and Toronto, Skyline Hotels in Toronto and Ottawa, Place Dauphine in Montreal, the Four Seasons in Calgary and the soon-to-be-opened Hotel Toronto.

She also started designing jewelry about two years ago. Inlaid, a well-known jewelry manufacturer, represents her.

"He calls me his protege," she says.

Obviously Marilyn hasn't time for active hobbies. But over the years she has collected owls in every shape and fabric. They keep company with antiques collected with no recognizable theme. At present Marilyn lives in a downtown apartment that also houses her working studio and several of her housewives. She plans to move shortly into larger quarters.

He Won't Change Language For Women Law Students

TORONTO (CP) — Spokesmen will continue to be spokesmen, not spokespersons, Ontario Labor Minister John Macbeth told a spokesman for a delegation of 10 women law students Monday.

The women, all from the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall, are members of the newly-formed Ontario Women and the Law Association.

"You're not going to get me to change the English language," he said. "It has been with us for a good number of years. So please, don't correct me on that point."

The question of terminology arose after the minister asked the women who their "spokesman" was at the half-hour meeting.

The women told the minister that language helps determine thought processes and a person's refusal to admit that the structure of language changes is evidence of the way he thinks.

Colleen Swords, a third-year student, told Mr. Macbeth that "we're trying to point out that behind your language, there is an attitude."

The women represented two of the seven Women's Caucuses, located in Windsor, London, Toronto, Kingston, which joined together a month ago into the association.

Irene Moccioia, a first-year student, read a brief which expressed "dismay" with the Ontario government for not dealing fully with equal pay.

Mr. Macbeth replied that everything cannot be accomplished by passing a law, but that society's attitudes must be changed.

First - year-student Sherry Dunn said until there is legislation outlining the situation, women will continue to receive less money for jobs requiring similar skills and efforts. Wages should be based on the value of the work to the employer.

"We're submitting you change the onus. Right now, it's on the complainant. I think it should be on the employer."

Mr. Macbeth said the government is trying to change the situation, but women said the government is not moving quickly enough.

The brief said the government does little more than demand that equal pay for equal work and added that "equal pay for equal work excludes evaluation of jobs performed only by women in comparison with those performed only by men."

Diversification Her Motto

TORONTO (CP) — "Diversification is my motto," says Marilyn Brooks.

And she must be the most diversified designer in Canada. She designs ready-to-wear clothes, uniforms for hotel personnel, costumes for stage and musical personalities and is fashion co-ordinator for Miss Canada and Miss Teen Canada Pageants.

From any factory I set up to produce everything from skirts to coats," she explains and then adds, "And coating can be definite with contractors. You know exactly what you're paying."

Marilyn has always had a strong promotional streak and loves anything to do with theatre. During her Uneeda career, she presented a couple of extravaganzas to promote her name and her clothes.

One was probably the largest fashion bash in North American. She hired the Toronto Coliseum for a three-hour spectacular. Marilyn Brooks clothes were by top Toronto models may have lost out to the live elephant, lion, tigers and the chariots but Marilyn's name was stamped on everyone's memory pad.

So after the Uneeda, it seemed natural to switch to consumer personalities in the entertainment world.

Canada is strong on musical groups," she says, "and often they need a new fashion image."

She has designed new looks for several such groups and individuals.

Their clothes are "really what sells their image to the public," she explains.

"So, with a new group, you have to decide what image the members should project and design accordingly."

She has also designed some personal wardrobes for her visiting stars. Recently Yul Brynner and his wife had her design kimono-type robes. He was a striped chocolate brown velvet. She has also created individual costumes for stars on several TV commercials. Her secret desire is to costume an entire movie.

As fashion co-ordinator for the beauty pageants, she has taken the beauty queens and their wardrobes on fashion show junkets to Acapulco, Nassau and recently, to Aruba.

She has made a new career to designing costumes for hotel and business personnel. Her first uniforms were for the Toronto city hall guides.

Since then she has designed the uniforms from doormen to maids for such hotels as Toronto's Park Plaza, Edmonton Plaza, Vancouver's Hyatt airport hotel, the Hyatt agency in both Vancouver and Toronto, Skyline Hotels in Toronto and Ottawa, Place Dauphine in Montreal, the Four Seasons in Calgary and the soon-to-be-opened Hotel Toronto.

Electric Blenders Useful — But They Can't Do Everything

OTTAWA (CP) — Although manufacturers would like you to think that blenders can replace wire whisks, cheese graters, coffee grinders, hand-held egg-beaters, electric hand-mixers and food-choppers in one fell swoop, "their blandishments must be taken with a grain of salt," says the Consumers' Association of Canada.

"Blenders basically perform four tasks—grinding, chopping, blending and liquefying ingredients," the association says in a news release.

They are excellent at blending sauces and medium-consistency batters, making soups, sauce, mixing salad dressings, soups and beverages.

"However, they will not whip egg whites, chop ice evenly for drinks, grate cheese finely, handle heavy, thick batters, knead dough or mash potatoes."

If you're considering the addition of a blender to your kitchen appliances, remember that the range of speed settings on many models does not necessarily guarantee better performance.

The CAC says your selection should have the following features:

— light-filling cover with sealed openings where the blender meets the measuring cup.

—Pouring spout covered by a lid.

—Removable blades with curved arms extending both upward and downward.

A glass container is more durable than plastic, will last longer and does not retain odors. However, it is more expensive and heavier. Other desirable features are a narrow pouring spout, and rubber on the inside to deflect the ingredients being blended back into the path of the blades.

The CAC says three or four speeds are sufficient. A separate "easily pulsed" off button is handy for emergencies.

After all that, the blender should be measured to make sure it fits under your kitchen cupboards.

No Bananas—But Lots of Fun Fashion

OTTAWA (CP) — A basement shop has opened here that offers a pre-1945 alternative to modern mass-produced clothing.

Yes We Have No Bananas was opened last Fall by Hanna Hershman and Maida Anisman, two women interested in original and imaginative dress. Their area specialties in fashion fare from the Second World War and earlier.

"There was a difference when I put on something old," explained Ms. Hershman. "It became a treat to get up in the morning." As an advocate of the recycling movement, she said storing old clothes away in musty attic trunks is a tragic "waste of materials, labor, creativity and money."

Part of the adventure for the two owners is in seeking out their merchandise. Scouring flea markets, bidding at auctions, browsing through bazaars and responding to used-clothing advertisements are all part of the trade.

Recent visits to private homes in the Montreal and Ottawa areas yielded such treasures as an early 18th century wedding dress, several Victorian garments (steel corset included), a bathing suit, a sun's hath and what the women have described as "the sleaziest smoking jacket in the world."

From the previous owners, Ms. Hershman has also collected a wealth of nostalgic associates associated with almost every item.

Since one of the shop's chief objectives is to beat the rising cost of women's wear, Ms. Hershman said she attempts to price the items on a personal level.

"I ask myself how much I would be willing to spend and then add 20 cents."

Understandably, some people do not feel immediately comfortable in the outlandish and sometimes outdated styles they find at the shop. So to help customers get over their self-consciousness, the owners themselves are often to be seen in bizarre styles from the old days.

People may be frightened by what the clothes look like on the hangers; "they look so crazy," Ms. Hershman said.

"But when they see them on, often they find it's a very nice kind of crazy."

Government Sues Banana Operator

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) filed suit this week against United Brands Co., the multinational food corporation that admitted making $2 million in secret payments to foreign governments officials last year.

The civil suit charged the company with falsifying its financial reports to hide a payment of $1.25 million in cash to a Honduran official plus a $750,000 cash payment to a European official.

United Brands, which markets its bananas under the Chiquita label, has extensive banana operations in Honduras. Last April, the Honduran government raised the export tax on bananas to 50 cents for a 40-pound box. Four months later, the government reduced the export tax of United Brands bananas was halved to 25 million, resulting in a savings to the corporation of about $7.5

Crombie Leadership Candidate?

TORONTO (CP) — Friends and aides of Toronto Mayor David Crombie say only negative reaction from Progressive Conservative party members or the likelihood of an overwhelming defeat will deter him from seeking the national Conservative leadership.

"He's fretting the political waters," one of the mayor's friends at city hall said. "Playing a cosy game and raising his visibility."

Whelan Warns

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Friday that Canadian beef producers must reduce the number of cattle they market or face the prospect of lower prices.

"Between Jan. 1 and March 22, feeder cattle slaughter in Canada was up around 20 per cent over the same period last year," he said, "I am counting on Canadian producers being smart enough to cut back."

Inquiry Out

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General John Clement turned down a suggestion Friday for a royal commission inquiry into loan sharking.

He told the legislature an inquiry might be of value at a later time but now could interfere with an investigation into "certain matters."

Penal Residences Part Of Potter's Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario institutions," he said. "Their will continue to decentralize its penal system by building more residences for small groups of adult offenders, Richard Potter, minister of correctional services said Friday.

The ministry launched a program last April to establish residential facilities for adult offenders throughout the province. Twelve residences are now in operation and another 10 will be opened this year, Dr. Potter said during debate in the legislature on his ministry's spending estimate.

"To become eligible for these centres, prisoners make application from many of our in-

HULL, Que. (CP) — Hull is throwing a $500,000 civic birthday party this summer to mark the city's 100th year of incorporation. The Grand Fete committee said the festival from June 30 to July 6 will include concerts, car rallies, sports events, cultural exhibits and even a special ballet created for the celebration.

Only $3 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Aristotle Onassis receives a bequest of only $3 million under the will of her late husband, a sum far less than published reports have indicated. The New York Times says. The newspaper says that Onassis had decided shortly before his death in Paris last March 15 to divorce the widow of the late President John Kennedy and asked a lawyer to start proceedings.

Provincial Grants

Sidney Gets Lion's Share

Hastings County rural municipalities this year may expect to share $1 million — or more — in provincial government unconditional grants.

The biggest single allocation — $187,000 up about $45,000 — goes to Sidney Township, the county's fastest growing municipality. Belleville's neighbor and a centre of mushrooming home expansion, its population — excluding CFB Trenton — now has expanded more than 800 to about 10,950. Population is one of the formula bases for unconditional grants.

Thurlow Township, Belleville's other rural neighbor receives $92,000 — compared to $67,000 in 1974. Estimated increase in that township's population is about 280 in the past year.

Two municipalities with their own police forces also have received higher police administration assistance grants compared to the $9,000 they were each granted in 1974. They are Deseronto ($15,000), and Tweed ($14,000).

The total of grants announced for the county's 27 townships and villages amounts to $1,164,000.

But the sum is subject to some changes since it is based on some variable factors including as yet unaudited statements from the municipalities.

Therefore, Colborne Clerk Rollins, MPP Hastings, whose office Friday compiled the figures from the statement of higher grants presented this week in the Ontario legislature, the totals are calculations intended for local government budget guidance. They may not be the final sums to which the municipalities are entitled.

County government itself received $58,000 — an increase of $21,000, estimated Hastings administrator Carl Bateman.

Deloro, believed the smallest Ontario village with 221 people, receives the least allocation — $6,000.

Grants announced for other municipalities, with the total in brackets, are: Deseronto ($31,000); Bancroft ($31,000); Madoc ($22,000); Marmora ($0,000); Stirling ($61,000); Tweed ($17,000); Frankford ($58,000); Bengor-Wicklow-McClure ($22,000); Carlow ($13,000); Dungannon ($19,000); Elzivir-Grimsthorpe ($12,000); Faraday ($29,000); Herschel ($8,000); Hungerford ($27,000); Huntingdon ($41,000); Limerick ($9,000); Madoc Township ($26,000); Sherora-Lake ($21,000); Marmora ($10,000); Monteagle ($21,000); Rawdon ($41,000); Thurlow-Cashel ($12,000); Tyendinaga ($18,000); Wollaston ($36,000).

The grants were part of a total $4,194,200 allocated to municipalities within county boundaries this week. But Belleville, eligible for $1,350,000 and Trenton for $1,012,200, are separated municipalities from the overall county structure.

Artist Barbara Whelan puts civic cultural award under wraps

Award Under Wraps

Belleville's civic cultural award of the year was ready Friday.

But the recipient — by tradition anonymous and unknown until the actual presentation — must wait until later this month to accept the community's recognition.

This year the civic honor is a painting specially commissioned by city council's Cultural Awards Committee — organized in 1968 and composed of city government and community representatives.

Object of the award, says Mayor Robin Jeffrey, is to recognize and encourage the contributions of those who have enriched the community scene with their cultural endeavors and dedication.

The painting is the work of a well-known local artist — Barbara Whelan, currently president of the Belleville Art Association.

Such a commission also is a part of the committee's objective.

Creation of the awards is deliberately assigned to area artists — again as support of local cultural endeavors.

For this year's artist the commission was a case of care as well as creativity.

Mrs. Whelan — who has had her works accepted for various shows in the province — admits to being a fast worker who delights in pure landscapes.

On the cultural award, however, she spent two weeks.

The reason: Not only the merit of the assignment but Mrs. Whelan wanted to satisfy herself the painting would personally reflect the recipient's life and be "something I'd have selected is going to be able to live with."

The award is being presented April 23 during the current Artsfest '75, sponsored by the Quinte Arts Council.

Peter Ramsay Selected As Cheshire Emissary to Britain

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A young handicapped Hastings County man is on his way today from Belleville to Britain — the chosen representative of a particular group of Canadians at an international assembly.

He is Peter Ramsay, 25-year-old Madoc native now a resident of the Cheshire Home for young handicapped adults in the city.

In Britain he will join people from similar homes in 42 other countries for the Cheshire International Family Day.

The event also coincides with presentation of a humanitarian award to Leonard Cheshire, the British World War II air ace who launched the movement in his name to help the handicapped around the world.

One resident from each country involved in Cheshire projects has been chosen to attend the events.

The Belleville residence is one of two in Canada — although steering committees now are working in 12 other communities to establish similar homes.

Peter was chosen to represent the Canadian movement by the co-ordinating Cheshire Foundation in Toronto.

Among the first residents selected for the Belleville house, Peter admits to being "very excited" about the trip — travelling costs for which are being paid by Barclay's Bank, the British international financial institution.

It'll give him an opportunity to meet Cheshire residents from other countries and discover something about their different ways of life, he says.

Like any traveller he also is anticipating seeing famous sights — Westminster Abbey, the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

He'll be there when a member of the Royal Family presents the award — from first lady's theatre Variety Club — to Frank Cheshire.

Not that viewing royalty is a new experience for Peter. He met the Queen in Toronto nearly two years ago.

That was when he was among the first recipients of the province's Ontario Medal for citizenship contributions. The award came for his work in Madoc with minor sports projects Peter has carried on since he came to Belleville.

The award's accompanying merit certificate now hangs in the Cheshire Home. But the medal itself will be elsewhere for the next week.

Brightly polished, it'll be worn proudly by Peter during his time in Britain.

AMELIASBURG — Fire officials here are investigating the possibility of arson in a blaze that destroyed a summer residence on Robbin Lake here late Friday night.

The cottage was owned by David McClintok, 112 Palmer Rd., Belleville.

The building, on the lake's northeast shore, was valued at $28,000.

The fire was discovered about 11.30 p.m. John Brian Whalen, in a nearby cottage, heard glass being shattered. When he went outside to investigate the noise he saw a man, carrying a bottle, running from the scene. Deputy Fire Chief Roger Flower said.

Provincial police from Picton called in a tracking dog to the scene after the fire.

Mrs. McClintok claimed authorities are concerned because several cottages have been hit by fire this year on the lake.

She said she and her husband only had their cottage partially insured.

Planning Board Cuts Belleville's Share

Belleville residents will pay less this year for regional planning, it was learned at a meeting of the Quinte Planning Board Friday night.

For the current year, Belleville's share of the board's budget is $39,744 — compared with last year's share of $94,300.

The board co-ordinates planning for Belleville, Trenton, the townships f Sidney and Thurlow and the Village of Frankford

While the planning board has increased its overall budget for 1975 to $118,000 for the current year, reserve funds held over from 1974 and strong assessment growth in Sidney Township have sheltered all but three municipalities from increases.

Only Sidney Township — because of population growth in 1974 — found itself paying more this year. The township's levy jumped to $23,000 from $14,000.

This year — informalizing planning policies for the five member municipalities — the planning board will spend $225,634.

Of this total, $126,000 goes to the salaries for the director, his assistant, a secretary treasurer, a typist and two office women.

Staff benefits account for another $13,610 and board members allowances for another $9,500. The operating budget for the board's Trenton offices amounts to $186,000 for the year.

Education Beat
Teachers Show Biggest Concern

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

"These graduates can't spell, can't write, can't express themselves," scream parents, employers and watchdogs at teachers, principals and boards of education.

The irony of these cries from the public is that teachers, principals and boards of education are more concerned about this problem than those who scream the loudest.

Most agree there is a problem with the quality of language skills obtained by secondary school graduates but few agree on just how bad the situation is. Teachers are humbtarng on the issue — much of the responsibility lies with the ministry of education and parents themselves.

The public is the work of a well-known local artist — Barbara Whelan, currently president of the Belleville Art Association.

Such a commission also is a part of the committee's objective.

Creation of the awards is deliberately assigned to area artists — again as support of local cultural endeavors.

Sugar Bush Open for Tours

The Moira River Conservation Authority's sugar bush tour, snowed out last weekend, will be on this weekend — definitely.

The easiest way to get there is from Thomasburg, then follow signs. Syrup and sugar making operations can be seen from noon until late afternoon at the Charles Irvine sugar bush at Fuller.

Pancakes and appropriate trimmings are being served by the Crescent Rebekah Lodge of Thomasburg in their hall.

the visual world of television, movies and graphic learning techniques. Their knowledge is greater in all areas except language skills, such as reading, writing, spelling and communication.

From cartoons on Saturday morning to late night movies on Friday these students develop most of their learning patterns through thousands of hours of TV. Some schools are introducing video tape and television equipment as learning aids.

Parents too often place their children in front of the TV set as a baby sitting service or allow them to sit for hours and hours in front of the TV. How often do parents encourage their children to use the family or the public library? How often do parents encourage meaningful discussion with their children?

Perhaps the Home and School Council for Hastings County could take this problem under its wing and in conjunction with the community-use-of-school people establish parent education classes to deemphasize the influence and impact of visual media on today's children. Parents, who have children with language skill problems, could meet collectively to discuss ways of stimulating reading.

And for those parents and employers who feel the ministry of education must change its attitudes toward curriculum, they petition the board of education so that it in turn can bring pressure on the government.

The province's 34,000 secondary school teachers took a significant step toward this end when they endorsed an OSSTF committee to continue its work toward the establishment of a "minimum core of compulsory subjects." The teachers also require the support and strength of parents across the province.

Men, Women Split on Store Hour Question

By CASH MALAFFY
Staff Reporter

Downtown pedestrians come down hard on either side of the fence when faced with the following question:

"Do you think downtown businesses should be allowed to set their own hours of business?"

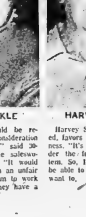
Of more than a dozen brief interviews with men and women, the men came out strongly in favor of such a move and the women were equally strong in their concern for the employees of retail establishments.

A phrase often repeated by the men was "Why not? If a man has a product to sell, he should be allowed to sell it whenever he's willing to work or pay someone to work for him."

The women, on the other hand, were concerned with the family lives of retail employees. They wanted them home at night to cook supper and felt Dad should be able to spend evenings and weekends with the family.

ANNE FINKLE

"No, hours should be restricted out of consideration for the employees," said 20-year-old real estate salesswoman Anne Finkle. "It would put an employee in an unfair position to ask them to work long hours when they have a family to consider."

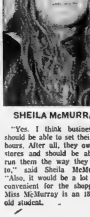


HARVEY SCOTT

Harvey Scott, 65, and retired, favors open hours at business. "It's a free country, under the free enterprise system. So, I think they should be able to sell whenever they want to."

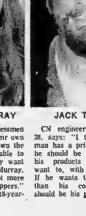
SHEILA McMURRAY

"Yes, I think businessmen should be able to set their own hours. After all, they own the stores and should be able to run them the way they want to," said Sheila McMurray. "Also, it would be a lot more convenient for the shoppers." Miss McMurray is an 18-year-old student.



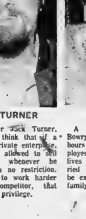
JACK TURNER

CN engineer Jack Turner, 38, says: "I think that if a man has a private enterprise, he should be allowed to set his products whenever he want to, with no restriction. If he wants to work harder than his competitor, that should be his privilege.



LUISA BOWRY

A legal secretary, Luisa Bowry, 28, thinks unrestricted hours would be unfair to employees. "They have their own lives to live, especially married couples. They shouldn't be expected to give up their family lives."



REG WORKMAN

Reg Workman, 49, believes businessmen should be allowed to set their own hours. "They're in an independent, competitive s business. They should be able to decide what hours are best for them and their customers."

Leafs, Islanders Win

Esposito Digs In, Bruins Out

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Players and coaches have been saying over and over that in the National Hockey League's three-game first-round series, anything could happen.

The truth in such warnings are evident today when Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Los Angeles Kings look on from the sidelines while New York Islanders, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs prepare for Sunday's quarter-finals.

The talent-laden Bruins ran into hot goaltending by Chicago's Tony Esposito Friday night and the Hawks upset Boston 6-4 to win that series 2-1.

The Rangers, who were in the playoffs for the 19th time since last winning the Stanley Cup in 1940, dropped a 4-3 overtime decision to the Islanders who are in the playoffs for the first time since joining the league three years ago.

And the Kings, who finished the season with 105 points to Toronto's 78, were upset 2-1 by a scrappy Leafs squad in the deciding game at Los Angeles.

The best-of-seven quarter-final series, in which such upsets are less likely, open Sunday. The lineup has Toronto going against the Flyers at Philadelphia, Chicago against the Sabres at Buffalo, Vancouver Canucks taking on the Canadiens at Montreal and the Islanders meeting the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

Philadelphia, Montreal, Buffalo and Vancouver had earned their first-round byes by winning their divisions, while Pittsburgh advanced in a two-game first-round sweep over St Louis Blues.

The Bruins had been heavily favored to advance past Chicago, especially after winning the opening game 5-2 on Tuesday. But the Hawks fought back for an overtime victory on Thursday and then Esposito, humiliated in the scoring-game loss, dealt the final blow against the Bruins at Boston.

Esposito, chided by his brother Phil who scored three goals for the Bruins in the opener and the, said-his goalie brother looked gaunt and undernourished, stopped 32 shots in the Hawks nets Friday night.

"You come to expect it of Tony," Hawks coach Billy Reay said.

"All the marbles were on the line," said Tony Esposito.

"In about an hour, I'll feel tired but I'm not going to worry tonight. Tomorrow we'll start all over again."

When the Boston game ended the quarter-final lineups were still undecided but Reay knew he would be going against either Philadelphia or Buffalo.

"Either way we've got to play a club that had 113 points in the regular season," Reay said. "It's like going from the frying pan into the fire."

Cliff Koroll and J. P. Bordeleau led the Hawks attack with two goals each while Boston's Phil Esposito scored his fourth goal of the series against brother Tony.

At New York, Denis Potvin scored twice to lead the Islanders to a 3-2 lead after two periods but the Rangers rallied in the third period with two goals by Bill Fairbairn and one by Steve Vickers, forcing the overtime.

Jean-Paul Parise and Jude Drouin, mid-season acquisitions from Minnesota North Stars, combined for the Islanders' winning goal in the first minute of overtime. Drouin dug the puck out of the corner and passed across the ice to Parise who jammed it behind goalie Ed Giacomin.

At Los Angeles, George Ferguson put the Leafs ahead in the first period and Inge Hammarstrom gave Toronto a 2-0 lead going into the third period.

Don Kozak scored for the Kings with six minutes left in the game but the Leafs held on for the upset win against a club they had not been able to beat all season until the second game of the playoff Thursday at Toronto when they won in overtime.

Early in the third period, Leafs' winner Dave Williams ran into Myles Lane inside Vachon, touching off a brawl with Gene Carr of the Kings.

After Williams was sent to the penalty box and Carr thrown out of the game for pushing one of the officials, Dave Hutchison of the Kings skated to the penalty box and attacked Williams with his stick. Williams and Hutchison were also thrown out of the game.

During the Williams-Hutchison fight, when Williams also used his stick, one fan climbed into the penalty box to attack Williams and a number of minor skirmishes broke out among other players.

Whalers Nip Saints 3-2

Two New WHA Penalty Marks Set

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

An element of violence has entered the World Hockey Association playoff picture and the action hasn't been restricted to the ice.

New England Whalers beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-2 in a brawl-filled game, Friday's only playoff contest.

The Saints played without Gord Gallant, who was kicked off the team after a fight early Friday with coach Harry Neale over a missed curfew.

The Whalers' victory, on Rick Ley's overtime goal, evened the best of seven quarter final against Minnesota at one victory each. The third game is scheduled for Minnesota on Sunday afternoon.

In playoff action tonight, Quebec Nordiques take a 3-0 lead against the Houston Aeros at Phoenix; Houston Aeros, leading 1-0, go against Cleveland Crusaders in Houston, and San Diego Mariners, also leading their series 1-0, take on Toronto at home.

At Hartford, Conn., where Minnesota had beaten the Whalers in the first game Wednesday, the game was delayed 32 minutes in the second period when a major brawl resulted in 189 penalty minutes in the period.

That beat the league playoff record of 92 penalty minutes in one period of a game between Minnesota and Houston last year.

Friday's game had a total of 38 penalties for 317 minutes. The total penalties beat the old record of 29 set in 1973 in a Philadelphia - Cleveland game won by Philadelphia 4-3 on Bobby Clarke's overtime goal.

Minnesota's Steve Durbano and Houston's Wayne Carleton and Brad Selwood had given the Whalers a 3-0 lead but the Saints fought back in the last half of the regulation period.

Ley's winning goal came on a slap shot from the point at 6:44 of the overtime period.

Gord Gallant Doesn't Live Up to Name

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Popular Gord Gallant was kicked off Minnesota Fighting Saints after hitting coach Harry Neale in a dispute over a missed curfew, team officials said Friday.

"There is just no way any player can act like Gallant did and have the respect of management, his coach or his teammates," said Wren Blair, president of the World Hockey Association club.

"After discussing the facts of the matter with all the involved parties, and as popular as Gord has become with our fans, I have no other choice other than to say that Gallant will never wear the uniform of the Minnesota Fighting Saints again," Belisle added.

Belisle's announcement came at news conference, several hours after the early morning attack.

Neale required 10 stitches over his upper lip and suffered a black eye, a bruised cheek and nose ligament damage.

Gallant, one of two players not in his hotel room when Neale did a midnight bed check, came to the coach's room shortly after one o'clock.

When he arrived, Neale said: "I turned away from him and started to walk back to a chair to sit down and he hit me."

Assistant coach Jack McCartan wrestled Gallant to submission. McCartan suffered a swollen lip and facial bruises.

Gallant, a native of Sherbiac, P.E., who admitted missing curfew and hitting the coach, boarded an afternoon flight back to Minneapolis, team officials said.

Looking for Unprecedented Three Straight

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Gary Birt, sponsor-manager of Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles, has had his share of luck when it comes to being associated with Championship hockey teams. His club has won the Ontario Minor Hockey Association AA title the past two years.

But when it comes to calling the flip of a coin to decide who gets the odd game in a playoff series, Birt's luck has been all bad.

At least that was the case until it came to the final series this year.

ROGER DRAKE

He finally won a flip.

As a result, Birt's skaters will play the next three games in the eight-point series with Oakridge Village, on home ice. And should the showdown go the full seven games, four of the five contests will be played here.

The teams split 6-4 wins when the series opened with Birt's on the road last weekend.

And now, the Trenton team would appear to be in the driver's seat in its quest to become the first squad to post three consecutive wins in OMHA Juvenile AA title sets.

First-year coach Roger Drake, while agreeing that home ice should work to his club's advantage in games here, Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday, refuses to predict a three-game sweep and rapid elimination of the Oakridge team.

"I know we're capable of taking the next three, especially with the great support we get from Trenton fans, but there's no way Oakridge can be counted out, they'll make us work," observed Drake.

He's no stranger to these OMHA provincial final series. When Birt's went all the way in 1973 and again in 1974, Roger was the assistant to head coach Charlie Drake.

When his father moved to Ontario Hockey Association Junior C competition as coach of the Frankford Huskies this season, Roger was a natural choice to take charge of the Trenton Juveniles.

If Roger felt any pressure when he stepped in to replace his father, and later, when the team began its march through OMHA play off series, and the possibility of an unprecedented three straight championships became imminent, he won't admit it.

He does not suggest his stint at the help has been an exercise in smooth sailing — far from it.

In the beginning, he was concerned about his ability to communicate with the players, many of whom were new to him and the club. But it soon became obvious this would not be a problem.

"If I had any serious problems early in the season, it was making believers' out of some of the players. They had to understand that they could do the job and they've all got the message," he explained.

It's been a rebuilding year for Birt's.

But Drake, who stresses fundamentals and conditioning in his approach to the game, has managed to mould the squad into a strong contender.

He shrugs off any credit.

"The players make the coach. If you've got the horses you're all set," he'll tell you.

"We've had solid goaltending from Cord Beall and Gary Crandell (both back from last year) and our powerplay has been another strong point."

Other returnees are defencemen Walter Monsma, Brad Read and Harold Roberts, and forwards Bob Cameron, Scott Poole, Rick Matheson and Harry Ayres.

Newcomers are Bruce Leedham, Bob Thompson, Dave Lewis, Randy Barre, Larry Doucette, Jeff Peckitt, Dave Stevenson, Chuck Dash, Phil Granville, Mitch Anger and Brian MacKinnon.

No matter what the immediate future holds for Drake and his charges, his first season as coach will probably be his last, at least for the next few years. He's got other interests. Of prime importance, is the progress of Drakes just beginning in hockey. And dad plans to have the time to spend with the family.

Game times at the Community Gardens this weekend are, 7 p.m., Saturday, and 3 p.m., Sunday. Wednesday, Oakridge and Birt's hook up at 7 p.m.

Wellington Needs One More Point to Win OMHA Title

WELLINGTON (Special) — The Wellington Coach Lines peewees had their drive to an Ontario Minor Hockey Association D championship stalled, here, Friday night when Cayuga held the home-towners to a 3-3 tie. The local powers now lead the six-point series 5-1.

Cayuga scored a goal in the third period to tie the score at 2-2. The two clubs then went into a 10-minute stoptime, overtime frame. In it, they traded goals.

Cayuga opened the scoring on Martin McSorley's goal, but by the end of the first 20 minutes Wellington was in front 2-1 on markers from Glenn McQuaid and Joe Kassas.

Both clubs went scoreless in the second period and Greg Baird tallied the tying goal in the third.

In overtime, Mark Nelson put Wellington in front 3-2, but Baird's second of the night evened things back up.

The fourth game in the final series is scheduled for Sunday, at 7 p.m. in Cayuga.

Gas House Champs

Stanley Wins Goegan Trophy

Stanley Structures capped off a near perfect season Friday night at the Memorial Arena when Goegan accepted the Flori Goegan Memorial Trophy for the league championship.

"When Flori led all the guys on the team felt it was vital that we win the championship," said Vern Whalen, Stanley goaltender, "we had to win it for him."

Flori, a member of the Stanley team, suffered a fatal heart attack following a league game in late February.

Stanley won the game 9-4 to take the final series 4-1. Their loss in the championship round was only their second of the year. Earlier in the season they dropped a decision to the Generals. The Structuremen earned the league's pennant honors as well. They finished the regular season with a 25-1 record, in all this year, they won 32 games and lost only two.

Wayne Storms potted a hat trick and collected an assist to top the Stanley attack. Other goals were scored by Bob Mulvihill, Mike Goegan, Russ Harrington, Ron Hoevin, Frank Wiles and Bob Wludyka. Rob Harrington drew three assists.

Steve Truelove tallied twice for the Generals and Hyslie Bryant and "Ill Van Soelen added one each.

The Gas House Awards and Banquet Night takes place Saturday at 7 p.m. at Odell-lows Hall on Bay Drive.

Burris Matures

Cubs Nip Expos

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Burris of Chicago Cubs, energized from reliever status, says he's "a new pitcher with a new game plan."

"I'm a pitcher now after just throwing hard stuff for two years," Burris said following a fine six-hitter Friday as the Cubs beat Montreal Expos 5-1 on a unique sacrifice fly play in the eighth inning.

The victory by Chicago score when speedy Rick Monday scored from second base on Pete LaCock's deep liner to right field which Montreal's Gary Carter stabbed but then fell down.

Burris, who had a 3-5 record last year mainly in relief, held the Expos hitless after the fifth inning to post the first Cub victory of the season.

"I have a new game plan now—keep throwing strikes and staying ahead of the batter," said Burris, who spent time middle of last season with Wichita Aeros of the American Association.

"The turning point for me came when I was sent down to Wichita and I realized that I couldn't go with a fast ball only," said the 24-year-old right-hander. "I am a thinking pitcher now, knowing when to change speeds and what I'm going to throw to each hitter."

But it took an unnatural run to give Burris the decision over Montreal's Dennis Blair, who last season held the Cubs scoreless over six innings.

That came in the eighth after Monday hit a one-out single and reached second as Montreal second baseman Larry Lintz dropped a potential double play toss from third baseman Larry Parrish on Jerry Morales' bounder.

Next up, LaCock hit a long liner to centre which Carter grabbed going backwards and then stumbled to the turf.

Before Carter scrambled to his feet, and the ball was recovered in the plate, Monday streaked across with the winning run.

Carter said: "It was just one of those things, but I'm sure it's not the first time a runner has scored from second on a fatgup. They're sailing and my knack of momentum caused me to fall down."

Ninth Inning Singles Win Game

Pirates Punch Hurlers Silly

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates batters were coming up a little short Friday. They scratched out 12 hits—all singles—but if they didn't belt New York Mets into submission, at least they pawed them to death.

"We'll get our share of home runs here," said Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh after the Pirates scored a 4-3 victory over the Mets. "Give it some time."

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago Cubs edged Montreal Expos 2-1, Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants 4-2, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia Phillies 6-3, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston Astros 7-0 and San Diego Padres beat Cincinnati Reds 5-3.

The Pirates shortened the recess at Three Rivers Stadium during the offseason, but the only beneficiaries on Friday were the Mets, who carried a 3-0 lead into the ninth inning on solo homers by Dave Kingman and Del Unser and a run-scoring double by Joe Torre.

Pittsburgh, in its home opener, was held to seven singles by Jerry Koosman until the ninth. Consecutive singles by Richie Zisk, Dave Parker and Manny Sanguillen knotted the one run and chased Koosman.

Rookie reliever Rick Baldwin, making his first major-league appearance, then walked pinch-hitter Paul Popovich to load the bases. One out later, Rennie Stennett singled to tie the score. Mac Scarce replaced Baldwin and Richie Hebner knocked one of his famous line shots left field, scoring Popovich from second with the winning run.

At Chicago, Pete Lacock's long fly ball was supposed to move the runner up a base. It got the job done and more for the Cubs.

Rick Monday singled in the eighth and was safe at second on an infield error. Lacock followed with a deep drive to right field, long enough for Monday to take third. But when Montreal's Gary Carter fell down after making the grab, Monday streaked home for the winning run against the Expos.

"Carter made one hell of a catch," said Chicago manager Jim Marshall. "It was one of those rare times a guy made a great catch and lost the game."

Don Sutton checked Houston on four hits and Los Angeles beat the Astros for the Dodgers' first victory of the season.

Bill Buckner backed Sutton's pitching, contributing a solo homer in the third inning off losing pitcher Tom Griffin and a run-scoring double in the fifth. Jim Wynn doubled in runs in the fifth and ninth.

Bake McBride rapped four hits and batted in four runs, three of them with an inside-the-park home run, leading St. Louis past Philadelphia.

Greg Luzinski hit two solo home runs for the Phillies.

Hernandez and Dave Winfield each knocked in two runs to help San Diego and pitcher Dan Spillner beat Cincinnati and send the Reds to their first loss in four games.

Darrell Evans' two-run homer in the eighth carried Atlanta over San Francisco.

Tigers Eat Yankee's Catfish

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Catfish Hunter faltered in his debut as a New York Yankee, but another star, Hank Aaron, shone brightly in his return to Milwaukee.

Hunter, once baseball's most

JIM HUNTER

celebrated free agent, took the mound for the first time in a Yankee uniform in New York's home opener Friday, but got ling ovations during pre-game ceremonies.

HANK AARON

Aaron drove in the Brewers' initial run in the third inning by bouncing into a force play, then cracked a single in the midst of cuffed for home runs by Deron Johnson and Nate Colbert and the Tigers spoiled his pitchers, 5-3.

Meanwhile, Aaron returned to Milwaukee, where he started it all 21 years ago, hoist two runs ago, and contributed a hit and a run batted in to the Brewers' 6-2 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox edged Baltimore Orioles 6-5 in 11 innings, Kansas City Royals beat Minnesota Twins 8-3, Oakland A's defeated Texas Rangers 7-5 and California Angels blanked Chicago White Sox 5-0.

Hunter found the spotlight a bit too bright. But it has followed him since he signed his reported $3.75-million contract on New Year's Eve.

Despite pitching in seven World Series games for Oakland and four all-star contests, the jittery of the debut got to Hunter. "I was a little nervous out there," he conceded. "I was pressing a bit too much."

It didn't take long for the Tigers to jump on the jittery Hunter. The third man up in the first inning was Horton, who cracked a two-run homer to left. Then, after the Yankees had scored three runs in the bottom of the first, Colbert came up in the sixth inning and blasted a three-run shot to left for the victory.

Mickey Lolich got the victory for the Tigers, with some spectacular relief from John Hiller, who bailed Lolich out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the seventh and then shut the door the rest of the way.

A crowd of 48,160 came out for Aaron's return to Milwaukee, and greeted the home-run king with prolonged stand-

Reds, Robins Still Kickin'

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds and Richmond Robins fought off elimination and Nova Scotia Voyageurs moved closer to it in American Hockey League quarter-final action Friday night.

The Reds, down 3-1 in their best-of-seven series with Springfield, beat the Indians 4-3 in overtime, while the Robins also down 3-1 going into the game, edged Hershey Bears 5-4 in overtime.

The Voyageurs ran into the hot goaltending of Dave Reece as Rochester Americans beat them 2-1 at Halifax. The victory gives the Americans a 3-1 lead in the series with the next game scheduled Sunday in Rochester.

The Providence-Springfield and Richmond-Hershey series continue tonight, as does the New Haven Nighthawks-Virginia Red Wings match-up which New Haven leads 3-1.

Left winger Doug Horbul scored at 12:38 of sudden-death overtime to give Providence its wins over Springfield.

The Reds took a 2-0 first-period lead on goals by Gerry Teeples and Pierre Lagassiere, but Jimmy Peters scored for Springfield to narrow the Providence lead.

Joe Zanussi put the Reds ahead 3-1 later in the second period, but Tim Jacobs and Ken Murray scored to put the game into overtime.

Jean Payette scored at 1:05 of overtime to give Richmond its win over Hershey.

John Paddock added two goals for Richmond and Joe Lundrigan scored the tying goal for Hershey to send the game into overtime.

Even though the Americans were outshot by a margin of 35-19, it was the superb performance by Reece in the Rochester net which saved the game for the Americans.

Al Simmons of Rochester and Nova Scotia's Greg Hubick exchanged second-period goals before Gord Clark picked up the winner for the Americans in the third period.

Port Colborne Takes Lead

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Bruce Walters, Steve Latinovitch and Dwaine Rudley connected for the winners while Bill Louthery tallied the solo marker for the Bears.

Port Colborne, Ont., Sailors have taken a 1-0 lead in their Eastern Canada final series with Moncton Bears on the path to the Hardy Cup, emblematic of supremacy in Canadian intermediate A hockey.

The second game in the three-game series will be in Moncton on Saturday with the third game, if necessary, Sunday.

The Sailors edged the Bears 4-3 last night as a result of brilliant goaltending by Rob Stewart.

The Sailors outpoll the Bears 42-25 to record the win.

Nicklaus Headed For Fifth Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus has a five-stroke lead in the Masters golf tournament but he hasn't scared off all his competitors yet.

"I'm gonna stay," vowed Lee Trevino.

"It's not over yet," said defending champion Gary Player.

The Masters braced for another runaway, reminiscent of Nicklaus' nine-stroke romp with a record 271 in 1965, but Nicklaus wasn't gloating.

"It is hard to hold a lead on this course," he said after shooting a second-round 67 for a 6-hole total of 135.

"I have been to Augusta many times. I have seen many things happen.

"I have had five shots in the lead before and lost them. It is hard to hold a lead on this course, especially on the back nine where there is so much water."

Arnold Palmer, who like Nicklaus has won four Masters, is at 140, along with Billy Casper and Tom Watson.

Another stroke back at 141 are Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Bobby Nichols, Homero Blancas, J. C. Snead and Pat Fitzsimons.

South Africa's Player can be counted out of it, 11 shots back at 146 after a distressing 74. So can Johnny Miller, the 1974 Golfer of the Year and winter tour sensation, who rallied slightly but found himself also at 146.

The tournament also said good-bye to Lee Elder, whose bid as the Masters' first black came apart with a scrambling 78 for 152 which failed to make the cut.

"Well, you got rid of me," Elder said in good spirit. "I did myself in. Today I was all over the place. I really did the beautification bit, I saw all the flowers and trees."

Nicklaus calmed Friday to concede he is at the peak of his game. "I am playing as well as ever in my life but there have been times when I had more brilliant streaks," he added.

Drilling his shots at the flag on the rain-drenched course, Jack putted for birdies on virtually every hole, lipping the cup several times, and waited until the 18th to get his first bogey of the tournament.

There he sent his approach wide of the green and missed his putt after chipping to within seven feet.

Palmer led the tournament briefly when he went to five-under-par at the seventh hole but he fell victim to the treacherous Amen Corner—11th through the 14th—bogeying two and knocking his approach in the ditch at the long 13th.

Sam Snead, the 62-year-old three-time winner, withdrew after nine holes because of a back ailment.

L.A.'s Pulford NHL Coach of the Year

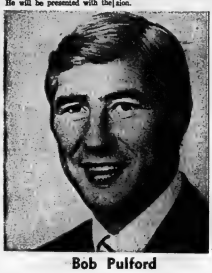
ATLANTA (CP) — Bob Pulford, who led Los Angeles Kings to their most successful season since the team joined the National Hockey League in 1967, has been named coach of the year for the 1974-75 season.

Pulford, 36, who played 16 seasons in the NHL—14 with Toronto Maple Leafs and two with the Kings—before moving to the coaching ranks, was chosen in a vote of members of the NHL Broadcasters' Association.

He will be presented with the



Bob Pulford

Jack Adams Memorial Trophy, named for the late Detroit Red Wings coach, at the annual league awards luncheon by Montreal in June.

Runner-up in the voting was Al Arbour who coached New York Islanders into the playoffs for the first time.

Third was Floyd Smith whose Buffalo Sabres finished first in the Adams Division and fourth was Marc Boileau who guided Pittsburgh Penguins to a third-place finish in the Norris Division.

ABA Playoffs Like Eggs At Breakfast — Scrambled

The unexpected has become commonplace in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Friday night, teams favored to win all lost and, as a result, the ABA playoffs are more scrambled today.

In St. Louis, rookie sensation Marvin Barnes outsheiled Julius Erving during a hectic final three minutes and led the Spirits of St. Louis to a 113-108 victory over New York Nets.

The victory by the young Spirits, their second in succession over the defending ABA champions, provided them with a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven series. The fourth game will be played in St. Louis on Sunday.

In Memphis, Stew Johnson scored 25 points and had 11 rebounds to lead the Sounds to a 107-93 playoff victory over Kentucky Colonels. It was the first playoff victory for Memphis in its five-year history and set the best-of-seven series, Seattle SuperSonics, hoping to against Kentucky at 3-1 with a rebound from Thursday night's fifth game to be played Sunday 123-108 loss to Detroit, play host in Louisville.

In Salt Lake City, captain Ron Boone led a first-half surge that carried Utah Stars to a 135-119 rout of Denver Nuggets. This Western Division playoff series now is tied 2-2 and moves to Denver for the fifth game tonight.

In the other ABA playoff, Indiana Pacers, leading 3-0, have a chance to wrap up their series against San Antonio Spurs in Indianapolis tonight.

There were no games Friday in the National Association playoffs.

UFOs Gain Respectability

Copyright 1975, Toronto Sun Syndicate.

Well, it's official. UFO's exist.

At least, it's as official as the publication of a section of UFO report in the FBI bulletin, Law Enforcement, can make it. And for many people that will be pretty official, or as good as official.

The article in the February, 1975, issue of the bulletin, entitled The UFO Mystery, by Dr. J. Allen Hynek, is a sober, objective description of the evidence for UFOs. It includes the urgent recommendation that any UFO reports coming to the FBI's attention be directed to Hynek's organization for further study.

The organization called the Centre for UFO Studies (Northfield, Illinois, is run by Dr. Hynek, the world's foremost scientific ufologist, with assistance from consulting experts at such universities as Stanford, University of Chicago, Texas, Wisconsin, Utah, Johns Hopkins and Northwestern.

The latter school, Northwestern University, at Evanston, Illinois, is where Hynek serves as chairman of the astronomy department. For some 20 years he was the scientific consultant on UFOs for the U.S. Air Force when it ran what was called Project Blue Book to gather and assess such sightings and reports.

It was his experience with the air force, says Hynek, which eventually led him to stop regarding UFOs as a fantasy and instead describe them as "the greatest challenge facing science today."

In the article for the FBI bulletin, Hynek describes case after case in which police have sighted and even pursued.

On October 18, 1973, the crew of a Delaware State Police helicopter chased a UFO 11 miles before losing sight of it. At the same time, the mystery object was being monitored on radar by flight controllers at Dover Air Force Base nearby.

Several days later in Adams County, Ohio, two police officers reported a "huge" UFO hovering some 200 feet above the roaring ground in a familiar "falling leaf" motion.

On October 19, 1973, a Tulsa, Oklahoma police sergeant confirmed a citizen's report of a hovering multi-colored object bigger than a Jumbo Jetliner.

On November 12, 1973, two Los Angeles policemen reported watching for more than a minute the manoeuvre of a large, round black object which suddenly "raced away and disappeared at dazzling speed."

Were all these police officers hallucinating?

Of course not, says Dr. Hynek. Add their accounts to the hundreds — yes, hundreds — more pouring in from military personnel, commercial pilots and similar responsible witnesses and he says, they add up to an epidemic of "incredible things being seen by creditable people."

Are UFO craft from outer space?

Dr. Hynek doesn't say that. Nor, for that matter, does he deny it. He says it's too early to speculate on what UFOs ultimately may prove to be. They may represent a more profound mystery than our human attitudes can even conceive, much less clearly pose. In the meantime, maintains Hynek, they are undeniably fact, not fiction.

Something real is going on," he says. "Science and law enforcement are facing a mutual problem as they have many times before."

The problem: Explaining the unexplained.

Hynek suggests that in the event of a UFO report, the FBI or any other law enforcement agency should contact his Centre for UFO Studies at the toll-free telephone number provided for this purpose. (The number is not made public because the UFO hot-line is reserved for police and other official agencies.)

If the report is substantial enough, an experienced UFO investigator will be despatched to investigate.

Meanwhile, says Hynek, the police should keep their ... off the UFO landing site (if a landing was reported, and they often are) to avoid the obliteration of possibly important scientific evidence.

In most cases, Hynek points out, nobody or no thing is injured or damaged by the UFO. However, he cautions that there are instances — more than the public may realize — in which persons near the UFO "may be temporarily paralyzed or blinded and odd burns can occur; also plants, trees and crops can be damaged, and so forth."

There are now, according to this leading authority, "hundreds" of mysterious "burnt ring" circles. In these instances, which come from all over the United States and Canada and the world, huge circular areas appear, sometimes as much as 40 feet in diameter, where something appears to have scorched or desiccated the vegetation and soil.

"It's a sort of death ray effect," Hynek said.

Often these burnt rings are associated with eyewitness reports of a UFO hovering or landing on the spot.

The UFO phenomenon is growing, concludes Dr. Hynek in his article for the FBI and science needs this informed cooperation of law enforcement agencies in coming to grips with "this most perplexing modern mystery."

Will it be solved soon?

Or ever?

Show Biz Shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar-winning producer Burt Schneider, was raised a mild as the tremor at this year's Academy Awards show when he read a telegram from the Viet Cong, he has been fined $300 after pleading guilty to a charge of trespassing.

Schneider pleaded guilty Wednesday to the charge as an alternative to a marijuana possession count filed against him after his arrest last Jan. 8.

Authorities said Schneider was arrested, with six other adults and 26 juveniles during a party at his Bel-Air home.

Schneider was on Oscar on Tuesday when his film Hearts and Minds was chosen the best documentary film of 1974.

BOSTON (AP) — Actor Yul Brynner bounced his newly adopted Vietnamese daughter on his knee and said: "We are extraordinarily lucky."

The six-month-old infant, named Melody, arrived in Boston on Wednesday after surviving the crash of a C-5A military transport plane near Saigon last week.

"She came out without a scratch or a bruise," he said. "That has to be some kind of miracle."

Brynner held Melody, his other adopted Vietnamese daughter, 1½-year-old Mia, sat on his lap and smiled.

Brynner is in Boston starring in the musical Odyssey which is on a pre-Broadway tour.

PARIS (AP) — Josephine Baker, 68, the St. Louis-born singer who became the toast of French showbusiness, was admitted to hospital here Thursday and had to cancel a music hall show built around her.

The nature of her illness was not disclosed and whether she would resume performing was not known.

She opened to a gala audience two nights ago in a show honoring her 50th year in show business.

British Rock Spawns Art Form

LONDON (CP) — Britain, the country that spawned the Beatles and gave birth to a new teen-age culture, has been gripped by yet another revolution at the root of pop music.

On the cultural level, rock — as opposed to hi-brow pop—has mushroomed into an art form.

So much has been happening that British record buyers and concert-goers have been faced with almost too much choice. But the dominating factor has certainly been the fragmentation of pop into different sections.

Ray Coleman, editor of Melody Maker magazine, lists the choices as pop and rock, glitter and freak, underground and progressive, as well as the more established popular music categories of country and western, soul, or reggae.

When all the intellectual discussion of categories subsides, which is often in the popular music circles in London, one has to consider the people who make them.

Although his initial impact has lessened, David Bowie remains the giant.

Falling somewhere between the glitter kids and the freaks, Bowie has conducted a brilliant publicity campaign and has emerged as an astute businessman as well as pop star whose every move is admired by musicians as well as fans.

In North America as well as in Britain, Bowie "freaks," as his audience is labelled, dress in the most bizarre fashion. A freakish appearance is part of pop gimmickry. Men and boys are wearing lipstick and mascara with feathers and leotards as did Bowie.

But just as his audience catches up with his latest look, Bowie is off in another direction. Soul music, with black musicians to back him, is his latest fad.

Bowie has a long history of theatrics from his days as a boy in repertory, so the trend to theatrics is not difficult for a playing right into his hands. And he has made it clear that he is running a long-distance race.

Chasing David hard for visual honors is Gary Glitter. The cynics mock his 40-inch weight and his age (he is 32) but he keeps his fans screaming the teen-agers with a mixture of pure cunning and sex appeal allied to some catchy songs.

The theatre has not been confined to the stars of the hit parade like Glitter, Bowie, Elton John and Alvin Stardust. In the field of heavy rock, which began the first revolution after the Beatles, things have been veering towards entertainment after a rather dense period, during which musicians drifting on stage in denims were criticized as not caring about entertainment.

A classic case of rock theatre is Jethro Tull, a group which has also been in the vanguard of that other trend, concept albums. With works like Passion Play and Warchild, Jethro Tull, led by the extrovert Ian Anderson on flute, has perhaps pushed rock to its limits in the form of showmanship.

And fans stayed loyal to Anderson, whose stand-on-one-leg-and-play-flute antics at first seemed too absurd for the music to be taken seriously.

While all the acrobatics on stage are manifestations of the stars' ego, their managers are keeping a wary eye on record sales. Nowadays a concert tour is conceived as much to generate album sales as to fill auditoriums.

Bands like Jethro Tull, Emerson Lake and Palmer, Genesis and Yes would gain more momentum from promoting their new records than all the one-night-stands they could cram into a diary.

As soon as they have made a small impact in Britain

Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Sunday, April 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're the one who makes out the family budget this week, chances are there'll be a little surplus after bills are paid.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're up to handling matters that call for firmness and persistence. What you start, you're likely to see through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a tendency today to dissipate your energies on goals of small importance. Sight on worthwhile targets only.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A problem can be avoided with one you're fond of by not expecting the other party to jump every time you snap your fingers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's not the time to rehash something a friend did in the past to perturb you. Let bygones be bygones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The co-operation you need from others will be denied you. Through other circumstances, what you hope to accomplish will be gained.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have more success with plans today if you deal with the top man instead of going through subordinates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't try to dominate the social scene today. Allow others in your company an opportunity to occupy the spotlight, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) In order to keep peace on the home front a compromise will be called for. Centerground will be the safest spot.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A task that you can normally handle with ease will develop some unexpected problems today. Be careful and patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're sharing something pleasurable with friends today, be sensible about dividing the costs. Let each pay his portion.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be overly anxious about the outcome of an important event and do something impulsive. It will be okay if allowed to take its course.

Win at Bridge

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Elly Culbertson once said that any time he could see all the cards, the Culbertson system would get him to the right contract.

Five clubs would be the right contract for today's hand. South would make it easily by counting the first heart, drawing trumps and knocking out the ace of diamonds.

When this hand appeared in the finals of a regional open pairs no one reached that contract. Those few pairs that did get to game all played in three notrump and most of them wound up making the contract.

It didn't require any great skill on their part. West opened the king of hearts and continued with the queen after South ducked. Then he led a third heart to clear the suit. South would ruff the six club, finally lead a diamond and be home free since East held that ace.

The one South who went down for a nice fat goose egg on the score was the one who made five defense. West did ospell the king of hearts, but shifted to a low heart at trick two.

This put East in the lead and East led the four of spades.

South ducked that to West's queen. A spade came back and East was careful to hold back his king so that all South could do was to run with his eight tricks and give up.

Unemployment Cost of Deflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said Friday virtually the only quick way to reduce inflation to "an acceptable rate" would be to implement monetary policies that would create unemployment.

In a Commons reply to Lorne Nystrom (NDP Yorkton-Melville), Mr. Turner said this is why he told the economic conference it could be two, three or even four years before inflation is brought under control.

To shorten that period would require the co-operation of the United States and Europe, where depressed economies have reduced their purchase of Canadian products.

Any unilateral action to curb inflation "back to an acceptable rate, whatever that may be" would have to be an unacceptable monetary policy "that would provoke massive unemployment in Canada."

Mr. Nystrom had asked what specific proposals the government had to get the economy rolling again and to provide more jobs.

The finance minister said his critics should not overlook economic stimulants that were in his last budget, Nov. 18, 1974.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) said the Bank of Canada had recently increased the money supply at an annual rate of 33 per cent. How could the finance minister justify this?

Mr. Turner replied that the money supply expanded at a slower rate than the economy last year and that, Gerald Bouey, governor of the central bank, already had said he planned to make more money available.

Mr. Turner's proposals at the conference, which ended Thursday, included a call for restraint by both business and labor. Price increases would cover higher production costs only while labor contracts would result in increases in the cost of living.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday that no group will exercise restraint unless there is some form of guarantee other economic sectors will do likewise.

"The government is relying on the facts and the evidence of the potential danger facing this country if there isn't moderation," Mr. Turner replied.

Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) asked what Mr. Turner would do "to rearrange his spending priorities to alleviate the critical housing situation." The Progressive Conservative housing critic said the housing shortage is a main inflationary force at a time when the residential housing industry is depressed.

Mr. Turner said the subject was one of the priorities emphasized by the provinces Thursday and "I took note of it."

Viet Orphans Toronto-bound

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-seven Vietnamese orphans will arrive here by aircraft Sunday for adoption in Ontario.

Rese Brunelle, Ontario minister of community and social services, said Friday the children will be transferred directly from the plane to Surrey Place, a ministry residential facility.

None of the children will be placed with adoptive parents until they have been medically cleared, which should be within five to 10 days, the minister said.

Adoptive parents will be notified by their Children' Aid Society.

Truck Gutted in Multiple Mishap

Early-morning multiple mishap east of Napanee on Highway 401 saw this tractor-trailer gutted by fire today. Four trucks were involved in accident that caused thousands of dollars damage but saw no serious injuries.

Traffic flow on the expressway was impeded by the mishap, which occurred between Highway 41 and the Palace Road interchanges.

Phnom Penh Fall Is Near

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Rebel forces thrust into the western and northwestern outskirts of Phnom Penh today. They burned refugee camps, sending thousands of panic-stricken civilians pouring into the capital. Black clouds from the refugees' burning huts rose over the city.

The government clamped a 24-hour curfew on the shrinking Phnom Penh enclave in an attempt to keep order, but the fall of the city seemed imminent. Shops were shuttered in the centre of Phnom Penh, and the refugees clogged the streets, many crying for food. Military police used rifle butts in vain efforts to control mobs streaming into Phnom Penh from the outskirts.

An air force T-28 fighter-bomber, flown by a pilot that the government called a "criminal" trying to destroy the Cambodian people and armed forces, bombed the military command's headquarters in the capital, killing seven persons, but no member of the general staff, the government radio said.

The rebel radio appealed to government troops to lay down their arms and join the insurgents. And there were reports that hundreds of rebel soldiers were infiltrating into Phnom Penh. Field reports said insurgent troops were on the road to the airport.

The airport was reported closed, and a government broadcast said several planes under contract to the United States government air-dropped fuel and ammunition into Phnom Penh and several other cities.

Lt. Gen. Sak Sutlsakhan, the armed forces chief and new head of the government, said resistance against the insurgents was continuing.

He ordered a round the clock curfew as the bombing of the military headquarters touched off panic among the population. Small arms fire could be heard as military police tried to control the terrified people.

Meanwhile, a chartered plane from Saigon flew over Phnom Penh, found the airport control tower unmanned and did not land.

"We circle the airfield for about one hour and 20 minutes," said the pilot, Dick Bridges of Fort Myers, Fla. "It was very spooky, there was nothing moving, obviously because of the curfew. The whole city was deserted. No traffic. No people.

"There was some artillery impacting about a half mile from the terminal and there was a fire."

Field reports said the Khmer Rouge were in Samreng village, one mile north of the airport. They said 1,000 government troops had formed a defence column along a railroad track parallel to Route 3, the road from Phnom Penh to the airport, which is four miles to the west of the city.

These rebel commandos are reported to have set fire to refugee camps northwest of Phnom Penh, and Route 33 was choked with panic-stricken refugees on foot, ox carts or motor bikes streaming into the city.

Military police fired the butts of their weapons in a futile effort to maintain order on the highway.

The refugees said the rebels were overrunning the airport.

Fleeing government soldiers said Khmer Rouge troops were mingling with the refugees and pouring into the city.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said U.S. cargo planes made several airdrop supply drops into the city.

"We will never surrender," Premier Long Boret said, but his troops obviously were unable to check the Khmer Rouge advance.

The premier said a news conference that U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean urged him Friday to invite Prince Norodom Sihanouk,the former chief of state and titular head of the government-in-exile in Peking, back to Cambodia.

Boret said he rejected the suggestion and the next morning the Americans left. The premier said he learned of the evacuation only a few minutes before U.S. marines landed to execute Operation Eagle Pull.

U.S. Senators Voice Hope Vietnam Evacuation Started

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senators say they hope the evacuation of Americans from South Vietnam already is quietly under way.

Jacob Javits (Rep. N.Y.) and Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.) also said President Ford would need congressional approval before using United States troops to evacuate South Vietnamese from the embattled country.

Their statements Sunday coincide with some skepticism in Congress about recommitting U.S. troops to South Vietnam.

Congress this week takes up Ford's requests for $722 million in additional military aid to South Vietnam and $326 million in humanitarian aid, plus authorization to use U.S. troops to evacuate the more than 2,000 Americans in South Vietnam and thousands of South Vietnamese who would be endangered if the Communist-led insurgents took over the whole country.

Ford asked for congressional action by the end of this week.

Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said on ABC TV's Issues and Answers that "my judgment is that Americans are moving out right now (from South Vietnam) and they ought to move quietly without any fanfare."

Javits, appearing on CBS TV's Face the Nation, said he hoped the evacuation would have begun by now.

Their views echoed weekend statements by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who urged Ford to begin the evacuation without delay.

Jackson and Javits said there was legal basis for the use of troops to evacuate Americans from South Vietnam, but each said he was lacking to justify using troops to remove endangered Vietnamese.

Both senators also said Congress would give the president a specific defined authorization to use troops in such a situation.

THINKS PROSPECT DIM

However, Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Maine), speaking on NBC TV's Meet the Press, said of the use of troops to evacuate Vietnamese: "The prospect that it would involve a massive use of American troops and a consequent reinvolvement in the war, I think, makes that a pretty dim prospect."

Vietnam Orphans Arrive at Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Tired and bewildered, 56 Vietnamese orphans arrived Sunday night at Toronto International Airport to begin new lives in Ontario homes.

Four of the youngsters were put into a waiting ambulance and taken directly to the Hospital for Sick Children. Officials said they were suffering from dehydration and malnutrition.

The rest of the children, each with a volunteer escort, were carried, or helped to buses which took them to a government-operated centre. There they all were given medical examinations and bedded down.

Most of the children were infants and arrived wrapped in white shawls and pink blankets. Those who needed immediate hospital attention had been marked with a black cross on the forehead.

The trip from Hong Kong to Tokyo to Vancouver, then to Toronto had been a tiring one for the children and for the staff and volunteer workers who had accompanied them.

Rene Brunelle, provincial minister of community and social services, greeted the airplane. He said adoptive homes had been chosen for the youngsters some time ago. He said 125 homes had been selected but he was not optimistic that any more children would be arriving.

Pediatricians examined the children in Vancouver and found their general health satisfactory.

Dr. Joseph Berg, one of the examining doctors in Toronto, said that of the children he had seen none had anything serious wrong.

"Most of them have some sort of skin infection or scabies and some are suffering from dehydration, but considering the circumstances and why they are here in the first place, they are really in quite good health."

Helen Allen, well known for her work with adoptive children and a consultant with the ministry, scoffed at some reports which said some of the youngsters were really sons and daughters of wealthy Vietnamese who had paid to have their children taken out of the country.

"You just couldn't even think that if you saw the condition all these children were in," she said.

North Vietnam Troops Repulsed at Xuan Loc

SAIGON (AP) — The embattled South Vietnamese government claimed damaging blows today to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces at Xuan Loc and on other fighting fronts.

Meanwhile, Premier Nguyen Ba Can announced formation of a "government of union" that he said would have the cooperation of the leaders of the opposition to President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Spokesmen for the South Vietnamese military command reported only sporadic fighting today around Xuan Loc, the provincial capital, 40 miles east of Saigon that has been the site of heavy action for nearly a week.

The spokesmen said air strikes in the region killed another 120 North Vietnamese. Heavy casualties among government forces also have been reported.

Loan Sharks Said Active In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Police say loan-sharking has obtained a good foothold in Toronto, and Metropolitan Toronto police and RCMP are co-operating to try to break that they regard as organized crime's biggest threat here.

Lucien Lessa — sharking — lending money at exorbitant rates and enforcing payment by violence—has been blamed for the murder of one man and the disappearance and probable murder of two more.

Dr. Jacob Shulman (NDP—Toronto-High Park) said in the legislature Friday he has information that another man is marked for death in a power struggle in the racket.

Royal Humane Society Honors City Youth

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A 20-year-old Bellevillian has become the recipient of what is believed the first award for civic merit presented in the city.

He is Scott Hagerman of Meadowvale Dr., who rescued a man who broke his ankle in a fall into the Moira River at the height of the spring runoff last year.

Saturday Scott — with his family — and friends — went before the city's police commissioners to receive the award from the Royal Canadian Humane Society.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said it was the first time such recognition had been given a Belleville resident.

Scott was fishing at the Lower Bridge last March when the incident occurred.

The man was climbing down a rope from the river wall for the closer look at the fishing run, when the rope broke. Scott, 6'3" Loyalist athlete, jumped in to the river to rescue the man.

Abortive Break-ins Expensive

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Break-ins can be costly — even if they're unsuccessful.

This is graphically illustrated by two incidents noted by Police Chief Douglas Crosbie in his annual report on city crime in 1974:

(1) A break-in at Royal Bank premises on Dundas St. saw intruders cause $21,500 to the office's computer system.

(2) An attempted safe-cracking at Hadley's on North Front St. was unsuccessful. But the thieves started a fire costing $10,000 in property damage.

Total loss in 336 burglaries was $64,000 — of which almost $2,300 was recovered.

Policing Costs Below Budget

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Policing Belleville cost $1,303,000 in the past year — less than expected.

The annual report of Police Chief Douglas Crosbie shows his department ended 1974 with a surplus of $22,500.

Biggest expenditure in the budget of the force was wages and salaries for 74 men and women. Their pay totalled almost $933,800.

The department's share of the cost of operation of the Quinte Regional Detention Centre — remand institution for four Quinte-Kingston district counties — was $45,200.

Lebanese Rightists Fight PLO

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Street battles in Beirut between Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese Christian rightists tapered off to sporadic clashes today after 28 persons were reported killed and 80 wounded by machine-gun and bazooka fire.

Banks and shops in the heart of Beirut were shuttered, and few persons ventured out on downtown streets. Scattered clashes were reported on the outskirts of the city, near several Palestine refugee camps. Clouds of smoke rose over several areas.

Casualty reports from government sources said the warring factions said 28 guerrillas, two militiamen of the right-wing Phalange party and eight Lebanese civilians had been killed since noon Sunday.

Three Phalangists and 27 Palestinians were reported wounded.

The fighting in Beirut began Sunday during the inauguration of a new Maronite Christian church which was attended by Pierre Gemayel, the leader of the right-wing Phalangist party, and many members of his party militia. They said they were fired on by Palestinian guerrillas.

Palestinian leaders charged the Phalangists with ambushing a busload of 25 Palestinian civilians driving past the church on their way to a refugee camp. Clashes spread to downtown Beirut and four suburbs. The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) accused the Phalangists of a "well studied and prepared plan of ambushes, criminal attacks and roadblocks."

Crosbie Says New Society Breeding Crime Spiral

Social permissiveness is a root cause of a current crime spiral and pressure must be brought on governments for needed reforms, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie warns.

His alarm is sounded in the chief's annual report on city police operation in 1974.

The report shows 16-per-cent increase in criminal offences — with vandalism and burglary major contributing problems — demanding police attention during the year.

The crime rise reflects a national trend, increasing pressure on policing, says Chief Crosbie.

"The underlying cause of most of our crime and other problems is the lack of discipline in today's society," concludes the chief.

Among reforms needed from government:

— More concern about probation, parole and temporary absence prison programs.

—Changes in the Bail Reform Act.

— Increased financial assistance to municipalities operating their own police forces (in the past week — presumably after the report was prepared — the provincial government has dropped to police grants to local governments).

Public groups — including churches and fraternal organizations — should be encouraged to interest themselves "in the way society is going," suggests the chief. They should bring pressure to bear on all levels of government.

Canadian communities have not yet reached the crime levels of those in the United States, said Chief Crosbie.

But at the current rate of crime increase "we are heading in the same direction" unless "strong remedial actions" are taken by governments, courts and police.

In 1974, criminal offences reported to his department — excluding Criminal Code traffic cases — rose to 3,258 from 2,964 the year before. The rate cases were cleared up remained virtually constant at 28.5 per cent.

The year was free of major crimes of violence — murder, manslaughter.

But vandalism offences rose to 705 from 498, costing $43,600, of which $3,139 was recovered.

Break-and rose to 536 from 446 in 1974. Total loss in burglaries for the year was $43,500 — after $2,190 had been recovered. Some 70 people were charged.

Assaults rose to 313 from 261, including nine wounding charges and nine assaults on police officers.

Frauds increased to 223 from 166. Offensive weapons cases totalled 18 — compared to two in 1973.

But decreases included: In 1974 89 cars were stolen, compared to 77 in 1975.

— Drugs, 62 offences compared to 87 — mostly marijuana.

— Sexual offences, nine compared to 18 in 1975.

Fatalities Decline

Fewer people died in traffic accidents in Belleville last year. But there were more mishaps.

The death rate dropped in four from seven fatalities in 1973, the annual report of Police Chief Douglas Crosbie shows.

In 1974 185 people — seven of them women — were charged with impaired driving, compared to 308 the year before.

There were eight charges of dangerous driving compared to 10 in 1973.

Driver Faces Five Charges

TWEED — A 21-year-old Marmora man faces five driving charges after a person caused about $3,200 damage after a wooden garage and a parked car among other things were damaged in two separate occurrences in little over an hour of each other Sunday.

Police said that about 7:30 p.m. Friday a vehicle driving north on Highway 14 about a quarter-mile south of Actonvale hit a wooden garage belonging to Hedy Revt of RR 4, Marmora causing $300 damage. The car sustained $250 damage.

Also in that incident, the vehicle took out a Bell Canada underground cable terminal box worth about $200.

An hour later police said the same vehicle struck a parked car belonging to Monty Chrysler of 74 Forsythe St. The car was parked in front of his residence and received about $1,600 damage. The vehicle which struck the parked car received $1,000 damage.

Chief Outlines How Half-way House Works

The city's police commissioners hope to meet with community groups to discuss the possibility of establishing a half-way house for people with alcoholic problems.

The project has been under investigation since early in the year.

Saturday Police Chief Douglas Crosbie gave the commissioners his personal assessment of a similar project successfully operating elsewhere — Cornwall's Friendship House.

Originally started nine years ago by a Catholic priest, the home now has a full-time director supervising an operation assisted by social agencies, the provincial government and run by a board drawn from the community. Hospitals, doctors, police and detention authorities use the facility to aid persons recovering from drinking.

The first step for Belleville is to determine need, suggested the chief. That would involve discussions with various social, religious and community groups in the city.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said there were several community organizations — including some church groups — which were seeking a project and his attention could be drawn to the chief's suggestions.

She recommended a meeting with interested groups.

Complaint Backfires

A complaint about police cruisers 9am a Bellevillian who is a volunteer environmental watchdog backfired Saturday when the city's police commissioners met.

The commissioners wound up complaining about the complainant for costing department time and expenses in checking what apparently turned out to be an erroneous criticism in the first place.

Such complaints are becoming a problem in waiting civic staff's time, warned Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said Clarence Young had month asked if emission control devices were not on the corporation's fleet of cruisers.

The eight vehicles had to be taken to a garage where mechanics reported everything in order, said the chief.

He said Mr. Young subsequently apologized.

"How much time did this staff complaint take — to have all these cars checked? demanded Mayor Jeffrey.

"It took at least half a day," said Chief Crosbie.

Complained the mayor: "Our staff, who are busy enough, are taking time to check into these false rumors continually — it has become a very serious problem."

Fund-seekers Leave Town

Police are still pursing complaints against two spiritual groups, who recently irked Bellevillans by soliciting funds.

Both groups—Hare Krishna and the Children of God — have left town, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie told the city's police commissioners Saturday.

Because of changes in the Criminal Code about begging, prosecutions could not be pressed, he said.

However, police now were seeking advice from the Hastings County Crown Attorney's office to see if charges for impeding the public could be laid in such instances.

Dinner Up In Smoke

TRENTON — A fondue party at the residence of Douglas B. Gearing at 21 McQuade Dr., ended sooner than planned early Friday evening with Trenton Fire crews arriving as unexpected guests.

A pot of oil on the kitchen range caught fire and sent the partygoers out into the night as rancid smoke filled the house.

Other than the inconvenience from unpleasant fumes no damage resulted, a spokesman for the Trenton fire department reported.

Maple Sap Running Again

With warmer weather maple trees in the Quinte district have renewed their sap run. It's now in full flow at sugarbushes like that of Charles Irvine at Fuller where Laird Redcliffe was collecting the fluid during demonstrations sponsored by the Moira River Conservation Authority Sunday.

Four Transports Collide in 401 Mishap

NAPANEE — Four truck drivers escaped serious injury today in an early morning crash involving four transports on Highway 401 about one mile east of here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee identified the drivers as John Wilson, 28, of 13 Campbell Cres. here, Robert MacKenzie, 29, of Toronto, Derrick Carruthers; 46 of RR 1 Hillsburgh and George Brooks 46 of Kingston.

Police said three of the transports were eastbound and the other westbound. The mishap occurred when Wilson's Dilkusa transport and MacKenzie's Maislin vehicle were involved in a rear-end collision.

Poli a said Carruthers driving a Cannon plastics unit, following the two, tried to avoid the accident but was struck by the trailer portion of the Maislin unit. The impact forced the Cannon actual

Parents Want Group To Meet Drug Crisis

Parents of young Bellevillans with drug problems are anxious to form a mutual organization, Belleville police commissioners were told Saturday.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey told the commission she had been contacted by some parents who feel the need for such a group.

Their suggestion was for a group akin to Alcoholics Anonymous where people discuss a common problem.

She said the parents are "desperate and don't know what to do."

Commission chairman James Driscoll said there had to be some parents who had solved the problem as the suggestion of sharing opinions might have merit.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie was instructed to sound out United Community Services officials for suggestions.

Official Plans Meeting Topic

A special meeting of the Quinte Planning Board will be held May 7 for discussion of official plans for the municipalities of Sidney, Thurlow and Frankford, it was learned at a planning board meeting Friday.

Separate sessions — with the first to begin at 1 p.m. in Sidney Township offices — will be held with each municipal council to outline consultants progress to date.

Trenton and Belleville — the only other members of the board each have completed official plan work and are waiting for provincial approvals.

Seeks Dam Study

MARMORA — Bryan Boyce, new resources manager with the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority, has requested a meeting with the village council to discuss a proposed preliminary engineering study of the Marmora Dam and a mapping of the flood plain. He will appear before council in May.

Realtors At Quinte Home Show

Paper work can be the most confusing aspect of home purchase.

At this years home show—sponsored by the Quinte Home Builders Association — two real estate firms will provide their market experience to help visitors with paper problems such as mortgage details.

Gerry Joyce, past president of the local real estate board and current vice-president of the provincial association, said "realtors can play a very important role in the house building industry."

"It is the realtor who has his finger the pulse of the market place — and can provide the booklet with information concerning what style of house is most popular at the time."

When people are at the home show deliberating over possible home improvements, "it would be a good idea for them to talk improvements over with the staff of the real estate booths to make sure they are not over improving their property," said Mr. Joyce.

Joyce Pealty and A.E. Le-Page will have booths at the home show to be held in Bet Bleecker Auditorium, April 17, 18 and 19.

Welcome to the Club

The city's newest service club, the K-40 Club, an offshoot of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville for Kinsmen members over the age of 40 held a charter night Saturday at George Vanier School. Here, president of the new club, Bob Lafferty, right accepts the charter from Kinsmen District Governor, John Jenkinson, of Brockville. There will be 28 members in the K-40 Club.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 40-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Sunday, April 13, 4:42 p.m. — grass fire at corner of Victoria Ave. and Halg Rd., no damage.

Taking the Plunge

Birgit Wulfroth, 16-year-old visitor on student exchange from Lahr, West Germany — Belleville's twin city — prepared to take scuba plunge at Blackburn Motel pool Sunday night with help from instructor Tom Horn. Organized by Quinte Aquarians scuba club the event was part of ongoing series of recreation programs organized for young visitors during their stay.

Shades of Thetford Mines in 1949

Prime Minister and His 'Comrades' Express 'Solidarity' with Asbestos Workers

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It appeared, under the signature of Prime Minister Trudeau's senior press Secretary Pierre O'Neill in the notice board in the Parliamentary Press Gallery sometime on March 28.

That was Easter Sunday.

The Press Gallery on the Sunday of a holiday weekend is about as lonely a place as you would find this side of dead centre of the Gobi Desert.

It was not exactly brimming over with newsmen on March 28 which was Good Friday nor again on the 29th the Saturday.

And the day after the appearance of the notice on Easter Sunday the federal public service was shut down tight — even the House of Commons Post Office and the government cafeteria in the basement — on Monday.

So from Good Friday through Easter Monday the Press Gallery was not exactly overpopulated.

Which may or may not have been the reason the Prime Minister dropped his news-bomb when he did — at a time when he also supposed to be listening to pronouncements from his office were tuned in.

Which in turn may be the reason so few people seemed to know that the Prime Minister had reverted to the days of his youthful protest back 26 years ago in 1949 when he marched the picket lines with the strikers at Thetford Mines an asbestos town 70 miles south of Quebec City.

His had sent off a telegram to the Confederation of National Trade Unions publicly signalling his support as Prime Minister of Canada for its 5000 striking members who again were picketing the asbestos mines and mills.

It read:

"Pelletier, Marchand and I express our solidarity with our asbestos comrades."

Pelletier is Gerard Pelletier the federal Communications Minister; and Marchand of course is Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

All three Trudeau Pelletier and Marchand had been "comrades" in the asbestos labor battles 26 years ago.

Those were the days when Pierre Trudeau was if not a socialist at least not a Liberal.

They were the days following his "black leather jacket years" when he rode out World War Two working a motorcycle cruising around Montreal's Mount Royal.

But back to his telegram to the strikers:

"Unbelievable" said former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker from his Ottawa home where he is still recovering from surgery. "Absolutely without Privy Council precedent.

"The wording of the Trudeau telegram, the use of the terms "solidarity" and 'comrade' need no interpretation. The true Trudeau emerges at last."

There is something else too that blends in with the colors of the new "true" Trudeau.

It is the failure of the Trudeau government to quickly condemn the Communist crushing of South Viet Nam.

And it is strange the prolonged silence and then little more than reluctant regret when you remember how the same government rallied throughout the piping indignation of External Affairs Minister Sharp — against the "brutality" and "brutality" and even "uncivilized" bombing of the Communist oil storage facilities around North Viet Nam's capital Hanoi by the Americans.

Almost every move the Americans made against North Viet Nam was denounced by Ottawa, And fast fast fast.

But democracy has dwindled down to a neutral condemnation of violence since the turning of the Viet Nam tables.

The New Democrats were even more articulate in their parliamentary attacks against the American and their client alliance of all the more profound.

To speak out against the Communist ravishing of South Viet Nam and its people says an official NDP spokesman would be "irrelevant."

One more thing.

A Canadian parliamentary delegation has visited Formosa — you know the free non-Communist China — but the Trudeau government declined to send along its chairman of the Commons External Affairs Committee as leader.

Odd what?

Not really in the face of the explanation that to send him might lend an aura of Cumberlin to the visit and horror of horrors perhaps offend the Communist Chinese on the mainland for whose reluctant recognition Mitchell Sharp so prostituted himself in such abject supplication.

Plan Should Be 'Local'

The essence of any disaster plan is that it is effective on the spot — that is, in the particular location that it happens.

The new provincial government concept, which reportedly is taking over from the Emergency Measures Organization, is vague on this score. It offers no plan than would give such an undertaking, no guarantees of effective action in the event of an emergency.

The Emergency Measures people are dismayed over events, but if the government insists on filling the vacuum then it will have to come up with something more foolproof that is at present apparent.

Does it intend to build on the old EMO organization — and to do so would draw on local experience and equipment — or does it plan to start afresh?

What for instance does acting provincial solicitor-general John Clement mean when he talks of developing task forces consisting of senior representatives of provincial ministries involved in alleviating such emergencies as major floods, forest fires, air crashes, epidemics and similar disasters?

How will this dovetail with evens at the local level? Nor can we discount either the possibility of nuclear attack? Nobody thinks much about that any more, or about such don't-bother-me subjects as bomb shelters and emergency food supplies.

Certainly the government is going to have to be much more explicit on this subject that is now evident. As Quinte EMO coordinator Angus Duffy is quoted as saying: "The big thing is to have an effective plan, so that when disaster strikes you're ready. An after-the-fact bandaid from the province isn't going to help . . ."

He's right of course, and we would like to think that the government does some serious thinking on the implications of its unpreparedness.

"BETTER MAKE IT LOOK GOOD GUYS... REMEMBER I'VE GOT TO FIGHT AN ELECTION ON THIS!"

Students Earn Praise

It may be trite to say that travel broadens the mind, but then it is, indeed, one of the most stimulating and illuminating of experiences.

Students have been coming back to schools in this area with tales of life in the Mediterranean lands. It has been an experience that has blended the culture of ancient civilizations with the realities of the present and of everyday life: being pursued on the one hand by peddlers — in Egypt — and on the other being frisked by police — in Israel.

From Al Hawkins of the staff of Trenton high school meanwhile comes a copy of a letter expressing appreciation of Hastings board of education's support of student trips.

Addressed to education director Eric Runacres, it describes a week-long visit to Mount Snow, Vermont, of a group of 28 students from Trenton, Belleville and Brighton.

There was the nine-hour bus trip without so much as a popped lunch bag, to the amazement of the driver. The students' good manners also impressed the New Englanders. A high school teacher from New York said she could hardly believe the way the youngsters behaved. A restaurant manager in Troy said they were the best group of teens he had encountered in his place.

The Canadians were unable because of their age to attend a party at a nearby lodge, to help pay the medical expenses of a local girl seriously injured skiing. Yet they managed to raise $25 from their own spending money to help bring the benefit to more than $1,000.

All told, it's a reflection of the fine youngsters that make up the majority in our midst. Mr. Hawkins adds his appreciation to Trenton principal Jack Sisson and to the principals of other secondary schools here who assisted with the planning.

It's Cheaper Abroad

While railroad officials are talking about a continuing decline in freight traffic, CN for one is making renewed efforts to woo passenger traffic.

The company's familier red, white and blue days and accompanying savings at certain periods are still in effect. There are savings for group travel, for family travel too and if you are a senior citizen or between the age of 12 and 21, as well as off-peak four-day round-trip fares.

Read the small print on some of the ads and you will also no find mention of a new CN-Amtrak (the U.S. system) tour of Canada and the U.S.

Study the costs though and you will find travel within Canada, even on a package basis, remains expensive.

It's cheaper to go abroad, as witness the following costs taken from side-by-side advertisements: Maritime Provinces, 10 days by CN — $587 per person, two in a room, includes transportation, sleeping car accommodation, specified meals, hotels, sightseeing; Spain, as offered by a Montreal travel company: Aloha Marbella — 14 nights including round trip jet transportation, breakfasts daily, seven dinners, golf or tennis, for $442.

Still, it it's a holiday at home you want, there is nothing so relaxing as going by train. In these days of quick flights to Florida and California, few consider that you can get there by train too.

Net Debt Nears $4,708 Million

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO—As noted recently this year's budget was a good one.

But it wasn't all that good.

Particularly, we still are over-spending.

Debt is going up—and up.

Last year there was an increase (estimated) of $501 million.

In the coming year this is forecast to jump to $1,211 million.

This will bring our net debt to $4,708 million and the per-capita debt to $585.37, an increase of nearly 400 per cent in 10 years.

Servicing of this debt alone runs to more than $300 million a year.

Perhaps even more alarming is the ever-increasing bite that public spending is taking out of the gross provincial product.

This is going up every year.

In the coming year about 16 per cent of the $6 million produced in Ontario in goods and services will be eaten up by provincial governments.

Only a decade ago economists would have been shattered by even the thought of this.

The reassurance is that Ontario in its spending rush is still a head-long than the rest of Canada.

Its forecast increase in spending for this year of 16.8 per cent is less than any other province in Canada except New Brunswick (16.6 per cent).

The federal government's rise is only 11 per cent (Only?) but its spending fields have been subject to less and less pressure and growth, as compared with the provinces'.

Then also we have a considerably better position on the growth of the take from the gross national product than the rest of the country.

Ontario's bite from all levels of government last year (federal, provincial and local) was 23.3 per cent, a growth of .8 per cent.

While the average for the rest of Canada was 46.5 per cent an increase of 2.5 per cent.

per cent it was approaching bankruptcy—or autocracy.

We now are getting near that mark, with the low Ontario rate saving the country as a whole.

But this question of the amount of money taken out of the productive for public spending is one which hasn't received enough attention and still isn't.

Conflicting Value Systems Bedevil Vietnam Tragedy

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Value systems, Asian and Western, are in crisis in the ongoing Vietnam tragedy.

The most poignant and in many ways the most difficult to understand relates to the children of unhappy South Vietnam.

Suddenly Westerners, parents with an instant or latest conscience, want to adopt an Asian child in a hurry. Those who have been trying to do so unsuccessfully for more than a year, have turned cynical now that the world is interested.

The newcomers—in Canada about 1,000 families—are denying Ottawa with telegrams for a Vietnamese child—can't understand why the South Vietnamese authorities will not let children go who lack definite adoption arrangements.

This rule will be harder on the Canadian families eager to adopt than American ones, since all the children flown to far to the United States are the issue of American-Vietnamese liaisons, often confused value systems at work.

To this columnist the most curious element in wasting children out of their Asian society and into a strange and demanding Western one, is that Communist sympathy in the North Vietnamese one apparently about to take over the whole take great care of their children.

I have seen day nurseries in the People's Republic of China, Cuba and East Germany and they are more than showplaces. They prove the promise of Marxist societies which can be brutal and restrictive in adult matters, that the children come first.

By comparison, the battered children of South Vietnam are war orphans, diseased waifs, street beggars, victims of a corrupt and militaristic society whose president is a practising Roman Catholic.

Will they do better by being moved from one "christian" society to another "Christian" non-Asiatic climate?

But in this desperately confusing mix of values in Vietnam, it is the Communists in victory, more than the South Vietnamese in defeat, who are going to take a terrible retribution of neo-Communist consonity-leaders if their actions during the two Tet offensives, 1968 and 1972, and the later battle for Hue are any example.

After the Americans and South Vietnamese re-entered Hue in 1968, they found hundreds of local leaders, mayors, supporters of the South Vietnamese government and its local administrative officials all tortured before they had been executed, the evidence still clear from their shallow graves.

Not that South Vietnamese officials are not barbarians. Newspaper offices in the West have been persistently approached to invite editorial making pleas for the political prisoners of the Saigon regime, some of them kept in cages like animals, long enough so they will never walk again.

But should we forget the depredations of American society through its military presence in Vietnam. Who will ever forget what has been done to South Vietnam's heritage of Vietnamese villages by U.S. troops accepting the presence of Viet Cong supporters and village arsenals?

All this represents value systems in crisis and in jeopardy. The Canadian role did not participate in these Vietnam horrors, but as North Americans we appear to share the guilt felt by many Americans whose country did commit great atrocities in South East Asia.

Getting back to the children, if they must come, let not our guilt be passed on to them. They have suffered more than enough.

The Intelligencer:
The Citizens' Bureau has served the citizens of the area well. Far better, and at much less cost than some of the agencies that are doled out so much of the taxpayer's money on a regular basis. I think the Bureau is a bargain at twice at any price.

Your cheerful comments forgot to say that while running the Belleville Citizens' Bureau, stress put Mr. Crowder in hospital with a heart attack. Likewise, your omission of the fact that stress had a similar effect on the late Charles Hart in the Trenton operation.

Messrs. Hart, Hockley and Gerling, gave freely of their time voluntarily when funds ran out.

A RACKER.

Editor's note: Shortly before Mr. Hart died we were pleased to express his appreciation of an editorial praising the concept and work of the Citizens' Bureau.

A Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer:
Over the three years of its operation the Citizens' Bureau has more than proved itself. The sum of $30,000 provided employment for local people and gave the city a very-much-needed service; when compared to the continuing expense of the established agencies over the years, it is a mere drop in the bucket.

Committee to Investigate Picton Lock-up Facilities

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — A special committee will be named to review the situation at the Picton Jail and report to town council said Picton Mayor Donald King following an inspection of the lockup facilities by members of Picton town council Saturday.

The tour of the jail came as a result of a recommendation of the Police Commission to "rectify a most deplorable situation."

Picton Police Chief, Charles Fletcher, stated that the cells now are used for "incarcerating drunks until they sober up — a place to protect them where they won't hurt themselves or other people."

Chief Fletcher pointed out that the present cell structure is as such that suicides are a potential threat. The three cells have no toilet or basin, floor drain or light, containing only a small cot. The lock-up area is cleaned "only when really needed."

At present, the only way in which a person may relieve himself while incarcerated commented Chief Fletcher, is by using a can which is placed outside the cell door."

Tourist Association Seeking New Members

PICTON — The need for a larger membership highlighted discussion at the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association's Annual Banquet here Friday night.

The Association's Vice-president, Robert Anthony, operator of a trailer park at Morrison's Point stressed that membership is not growing and that "we, as a tourist organization, have to pull together and work together."

"Only through a joint effort can we convince the tourist to take a vacation in Quinte's Isle."

Competition is getting keen, he said, and it was up to the membership to make the Association "a viable force."

Prince Edward County Warden, Clifford Walker, in addressing the Association, recognized that tourism had "the greatest potential of any industry" and that there is a demand for it, and it "should be developed to the utmost."

Hobson Seeks Liberal Nod in Altered Riding

BANCROFT — With the prospect of a spring provincial election in the wind, a North Hastings-Peterborough County resident David Hobson, announced today that he will seek the Liberal nomination for the new Hastings-Peterborough riding.

Mr. Hobson, 39, who teaches at North Hastings Secondary School in Bailieboro, has been involved in politics for a number of years and ran as a liberal candidate in Peterborough County in the 1971 provincial contest.

DAVID HOBSON

While announcing his try for the candidacy, Mr. Hobson said "we had a very smooth training of the two riding associations but this new riding is really massive. There are 25 different townships."

An active supporter of the liberal's Eastern Ontario Development Plan for the diversification of light industry into areas like North Hastings, Mr. Hobson said, "I think the idea of developing mineral sites in the North Hastings area is first rate. Because of the geological complexities of this area and its use by schools for study, it would be my personal project to have a permanent geological school built in the Bancroft area similar to the live-in schools in conservation areas."

Dave Hobson is married and he, his wife Annie and children Shane Byron and Kim live on a farm near Apsley where they raise beef cattle and prize-winning Irish Wolfhounds.

Missing Boaters Found

BLOOMFIELD — Two area boys were rescued from a swamp by searchers early today after being adrift for several hours in a canoe.

Richard Fynn, 16, and Daniel Hadaik, 19, both of RR 1, Bloomfield, launched their canoe at Pearsall's Bridge on Highway 14 shortly after 10 a.m. Sunday with plans for a trip to Allston Bridge.

When they failed to arrive at Bridge by 8:45 p.m. Mrs. Arthur Fynn, mother of one youths telephoned police.

A search was started on foot by constables Douglas Pettkey and Douglas Andrews and Corporal Lorne Grice of the Picton OPP. Also assisting police by the boys fathers and William Matchlis and Harry Oram.

The boys were discovered by the search party at 3 a.m. this morning.

The missing youths said they became lost on the trip and decided that best plan was to remain in one spot until help arrived. Both are reported in good condition.

Two-hour Task

There wasn't too much fire in a burning building Sunday morning, but firefighters were on the scene for over two hours since fire broke out inside the attic.

burning inwards from sparks landing on the roof. The fire originated outside the ground level rear door, Ontario Porvincial Police are investigating the cause of the fire. Structural and water damage could total $8,000 Fire Chief Graham Mouck said.

Knights Sponsor Dance For Area Police Forces

TRENTON — Three police forces in this area enjoyed the fruits of their labor Saturday as guests of Trenton Knights of Columbus.

Off-duty members of the Ontario Provincial Police at Brighton, CFB Trenton's military police detachment and Trenton police department — all with their wives — were invited to a dance and social evening.

The invitation was a gesture of appreciation for helping the Knights with a project to acquaint the public with purposes and aims of law enforcement.

In an effort to get one aspect of enforcement to the public, the Knights had a display this weekend in a King St. building. Enlarged photographs graphically depict wilful damage to property, a growing concern to law enforcement agencies costing millions of dollars a year.

The show named Crime Costs opened Friday and continued Saturday with attendants explaining visual presentations and distributing literature.

Early-morning Blaze Damages Variety Store

STIRLING — An early morning fire here Sunday that caused extensive damage to a variety store is still under investigation by Belleville OPP. No cause or estimate of damage has been given.

Stirling fire chief Graham Mouck said volunteers were called to the scene about 10:22 a.m. at Front St. West when storeowner Lorne O'Hara failed to extinguish the fire himself.

Chief Mouck said he thought the fire was out by 11:15 but later was forced to reattach fire hoses to extinguish further flames in the attic. The upstairs apartment, rented by John Bonnin and his family, suffered water and fire damage.

Third County Book Off the Presses

MADOC — Another historical book was presented to the Hastings County population Friday. A Pilgrimage of Faith, written by three Madoc area women, has been added to the list of recent publications. Alma Blackburn, Alma Moorcroft, and Blanche Sandford were autographing copies of the 420 page book for buyers at Trinity United Church.

Printer Maurice Goulah said he has printed two other books besides this latest Hastings County work. Pilgrimage of Faith was funded through the federal governments New Horizon program for senior citizens as was a book written in Cloyne — Ozen and Ase, said Henry Wisniewski, dept of health and welfare official who attended the Trinity event.

Mr. Goulah said Ozen and Ase is on its second printing of 1,000 copies, and another local book, Them Were The Days written in Tweed, recently had a second press press run of 1,000 completed. This last book received assistance through another government grant, L.I.P.

While the joint authors of Pilgrimage of Faith were autographing copies, Alma Blackburn was asked a few questions about the work entailed.

She said the beginning of the book occurred in 1967 when they started to gather a bit of history for the 50th anniversary of Eldorado United Church.

"It got so interesting we were determined to do a complete history as it was involved with all the other churches." Mrs. Blackburn said. "It kept mushrooming. It included all the churches in Madoc and Madoc Township, and went out to Elzevir and Tudour a bit.

Ann Landers

Her Baby Near Death and Deaf— Another Mother Is at Fault

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter. It might help millions of children.

Dear Mother—Somewhere today our baby is very sick and it's your fault. He may be totally deaf as a result of his illness, and that's your fault, too.

My son is 19 months old, too young to be immunized against measles. But your child who was "just getting a bad cold" was well over that age when they played together at the laundromat.

Why on earth didn't you see to it that your child had the vaccine as soon as he reached his first birthday? Don't tell me you couldn't afford it. Our own public health department charges 50 cents. If you can't pay, they will give the shot free.

I'm glad your child recovered from the measles' "hot like." I am happy for you. But my little one is desperately ill. He will live, the doctor told us this morning, but he'll probably suffer from a serious hearing impairment for the rest of his life.

How will I explain to my son that he is handicapped because some thoughtless, irresponsible mother didn't bother to have her child immunized and he caught the illness from him?

I'm not writing to you personally. I am sending my letter to Ann Landers because this problem is bigger than our own two children. It involves all children everywhere.—Heartsick Mother

Dear Mother: I'm printing your letter because I believe it is an extremely important one. My consultant has this response to Dr. John Andrews, a pediatrician in Chicago who has taken mighty good care of my three grandchildren.

Dr. Andrews says you are correct—so child should be immunized against measles until he has reached his first birthday. Immediately thereafter, however, he can and should be protected. Usually the one shot also includes immunization against rubella and mumps as well. This protects the child for life against these three diseases.

Most public health departments (city or county—look in the phone book) will give the shots free if you cannot afford to pay a nominal fee. Of course all practising pediatricians will give the shots, but it costs considerably more since the vaccine is expensive.

Thank you for writing. I urge every mother who reads this column to immediately immunize every child who has passed his first birthday.

Dear Ann Landers: I take exception to your comments which were a glaring putdown to ice hockey and its fans. No hockey fan wants to see injuries occur. Hockey is, however, a contact sport, and injuries are unavoidable.

A case in point: Recently a visiting team's player was injured at Madison Square Garden. As he was taken off the ice, the New York fans gave him a standing ovation. Does that sound like "bloodthirsty sadism"?

If you want blood, don't go to a hockey game—go to a prize fight where grown men beat each other senseless for millions of dollars. I suggest 10 knocks with an ice-cold hockey puck for you, Eddie. Signed—Irwin Ranger Fan

Dear Irate: Thanks for expressing your point of view. But please don't send me to any prize fights. That is the ultimate in legalized mayhem and manslaughter.

Clothes for Average Canadians - Hard-wearing & They're Washable

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Designer Showcase, showing here before touring the country, has chosen clothes for average Canadians, not fashion freaks.

The show's sponsor is a washing product and most of the clothes chosen from the spring and summer lines of nine Canadian designers are washable.

John Warden offers several pieces in silvery pame velvet that feels as if it should be hassled with kid gloves but is actually acetate-and-nylon velour.

The Viva line, designed by Linda, is mostly heavily-pebbled crepe that is all polyester—almost as rugged as blue jeans. She sends out dresses of the '30s, shirred and with angel sleeves and bias ruffles flirting with pretty feet.

Leo Chevalier's label says that even his silver grey coat may be "washed with care." It is a rayon-and-polyester blend and comes with leather-look buttons.

Marilyn Brooks uses cotton sage and blue blossoms set for a bikini with a wrap skirt, white, in sanel tricot.

All pastel blooms on a black ground, and Elva Gobbe makes a similar ensemble with hot orwhite, in sanel tricot.

Communication: Anything That Works

TORONTO (CP) — Speech therapist Mary Hickson will try anything to get her students to "talk."

Her class in total communications means, as Mary describes it, "anything that works, including sign language, finger-spelling, typing, gesturing, lip-reading and touching."

The class is an experiment conceived from her feeling that some of the 1 that rearedd children she saw had definite potential but that she was getting nowhere with them.

After studying a program in Picton, Ont., where a friend was teaching sign language to deaf adults, Mary took the course and then convinced her school principal and the Metropolitan Toronto School Board to set up an experimental class at M. J. McCordick School.

Since it started last fall, a second class has been established and another teacher hired.

Miss Hickson said all of her students, ranged 6 to 14, have made tremendous progress.

"At one day they were doing what I had thought it would take months to do," she said. "These children had a backlog of words. They knew what please and thank you meant, but had never been able to use them.

She found teaching them vocabulary was not difficult. What was hard was teaching them how to communicate using their vocabulary in the abstract.

Miss Hickson declined to go into semantics over the controversy among educators of the deaf, that teaching sign language to deaf children will force them to communicate only with other deaf people who use sign language.

"The children were not communicating with anyone before," she said.

She also said many had never had a friend before and, in the light of the progress being made to the class, that some may not be retarded at all.

The program includes gross motor activity and fine finger-control exercises, based on play.

Miss Hickson said: "Many of these children have never learned to play the way a normal one-or two-year-old plays with his toys, learning language. It's no fun for a mother if her child can't respond and it's frustrating when any response she does get is unintelligible."

Language is learned on the floor, so the children use play for communication therapy.

"The children don't even know how to play. Some have been allowed to touch things because they couldn't crawl to their hands and would break them."

More Tranquilizers Given To Women Than to Men

TORONTO (CP) — Pharmacist Ruth Cooperstock of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation said Tedesday her studies show that physicians prescribe twice as many mood-altering drugs to women as they do to men.

Mrs. Cooperstock said her study, started three years ago, shows that the tranquilizer Valium, sleeping pills and other psychologoic drugs are prescribed mainly to women.

She said one physician said this is because "females are more emotional and more prone to acting out."

"It is about time we woke up and . . . started questioning the pill pushing and unnecessary surgery we've been buying," she told a meeting of the Ontario Status of Women Council.

Mrs. Cooperstock said that the Ontario Medical Federation agreed at a recent conference that tranquillizers should be prescribed for no more than two weeks at a time and only in emergency or extreme emotional circumstances, such as a bereavement.

"My studies indicate that tranquillizers are being taken for an average of 3 days or more and sleeping pills 23 days despite warnings to the contrary from the federation."

Mrs. Cooperstock said the pharmaceutical industry is one of the second most profitable in the world today with an annual profit of 10 to 13 per cent" because of the heavy use of mood-altering drugs.

She said 55 million was spent on "just one strength" of Valium in Ontario in 1972.

Dr. Marion Powell, director of the Population Centre, University of Toronto, told the meeting she feels most strongly about advertisements in medical journals on the deficiency of the hormone estrogen as it relates to women.

"On one page, an ad depicts a man with a caption suggesting he has estrogen deficiency," she said. "Turn the page and it shows a haggard woman of 55. In subtle ways, the ad is inducing physicians to prescribe estrogen to the women, to relieve the marital stress her husband is going through because she lacks the hormone."

Dr. Powell also said women are subjected to more unnecessary surgery than men.

"But I don't think it is a deliberate mass thing," she said. "Both men and women practising medicine are equally responsible."

Mrs. Cooperstock said her research shows a minimum of 25 per cent of hysterectomies are unnecessary.

Doris Clark

Her Young Relative Desperate for Help

Dear Doris: I am worried about my friend's young brother. The four children lived with a cruel stepfather for years and this youngest one is really damaged, emotionally. Now the stepfather beat him so badly with a wire cord that even relatives he hadn't seen in ages had words with him about this beating.

He is 20 now and living with us. I am trying to do what I can for him, but he has no idea of the value of money, is heavily in debt, and he seems depressed all the time. He shuts us out of his mind when we talk to him.

There is a lot of tension in our marriage since he has been with us. I think the mother should be more responsible for him, but you can't make people do what they don't want, can you?

This boy will fall flat on his face if we let him go on his own.

Unhappy Marriage.

Dear Unhappy: It would be heartless not to help your young brother-in-law, if you possibly can. His needs love and moral support — desperately. At the same time he is damaging your household, which means you must help him to become independent. The mother has her own problems.

This is where trained counselling can be of tremendous help. A social worker can help you to see more clearly what to do about the boy, your husband and yourself.

If there should be mental illness developing here, action in the direction of professional help is urgent.

Aquarobic.
The only sewage treatment system for individual households to be accepted by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

Aquarobic. You may not know the name of this revolutionary, new, home sewage treatment system, but the Ontario Research Foundation is very familiar with it.

The people at ORF, working in consultation with the Ontario Ministry of the Environment, tested Aquarobic for 12 full months. The results: Aquarobic was accepted for use in Ontario for individual households.

Hundreds of other people . . . owners of full-time dwellings, cottages, chalets . . . have come to know Aquarobic in the past year as the only practical solution for their home sewage treatment problems.

The completely automatic Aquarobic system is the first true alternative to the septic tank. It was perfected and is marketed by a 70-year old Canadian company, Waltec Industries Ltd. The company guarantees every system for 10 years.

Just how much waste water can Aquarobic handle? The answer: Aquarobic can treat up to 400 Canadian gallons of raw sewage per day, the waste water of up to 10 persons.

Sophisticated engineering design often allows Aquarobic to be installed in an area as small as one-fifth the size needed for a septic system. This makes Aquarobic particularly valuable to owners of lots with irregular shapes, rocky terrain, many trees or other limiting site conditions.

If you're concerned about the proper treatment of household waste at your home or cottage, you owe it to yourself to find out more about Aquarobic.

Quinte Cuisine

Clive Jones, English instructor at Loyalist College for the past two years, is a bachelor and has consequently learned to fend for himself in the kitchen. Mr. Jones, who leaves this spring for an extended stay overseas, suggests this recipe as an easy and wholesome dish suitable for a single meal, or as a good addition to a menu when entertaining friends.

Sweet Salad

The ingredients are listed in quantities sufficient for one person and can be multiplied according to the number of dinner guests.
one hard-cooked egg
two oz. medium cheddar cheese two small apples
half head lettuce
one handful of spinach leaves
½ cup raisins
½ cup unblanched almonds
one tomato (optional)
a few chopped chives or sliced green onions one handful of fresh mushrooms
½ avocado (optional)

Hard cook the egg first, so that it has time to cool before being used in the salad.

Break the lettuce into small pieces. Chop off the spinach stems, and then slice the leaves finely. Mix with the lettuce in a salad bowl.

Remove the core of the tomato and cut into six or eight segments. Add to the lettuce. Add only a few chives or onions, being careful that the harsh taste of onions does not become dominant.

Slice the apples — a little lemon juice will prevent discoloring — then slice the mushrooms, and lay these on top of the salad.

Peel and slice the egg, and add it, followed by the avocado, cut in small chunks, and the cheese, cut in ½-inch cubes. Then add the raisins and almonds on top of the rest of the salad.

This doesn't need a dressing, and makes a complete meal when served with hot crusty rools or brown rice, and a light white wine.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

She's Brothers' Keeper

Leith DeTracy, executive director of the Big Brothers Association in Belleville, has the job of finding men who will volunteer time each week to spend with boys who have no fathers or attentive uncles and older brothers. Funded by the Kinsmen, the group's driving force has been Roly Thomas, one of the executive who hired Mrs. DeTracy to head the otherwise male organization.

"We match very carefully," she explains, "so that the interests and personality of each boy are similar to those of the man who'll become his friend. At the moment, I have at least a dozen boys who want, and need, a Big Brother. But I only have two adults on hand."

Supplying a boy — any between 6 and 16 who have no other male influence in their lives — with a Big Brother is a painstaking process. Mrs. DeTracy's work includes interviewing prospective candidates, discussing cases with mothers, school teachers and psychologists, and getting to know each boy's special needs.

She is presently assisted by Zelf Bernstein of Wanbore, who has a professional background in counselling teenaged boys. They work as a team, sharing their impressions and information.

"I can feel something for the mothers we see, who have to cope with boys without a husband to help them. My husband's often away because of his job, so that gives me a little insight into what it's like," she says.

Mrs. DeTracy explains that the role a Big Brother plays is not as part of the boy's existing family. The boy may become a part of the man's home life to some extent — husband's often away because of his job, so that gives me a little insight into what it's like," she says.

Mrs. DeTracy explains that the role a Big Brother plays is not as part of the boy's existing family. The boy may become a part of the man's home life to some extent — husband's often away because of his job, so that gives me — but basically the relationship is simply one-to-one.

Ideally, as the boy feels increasingly secure that he is receiving undivided attention from his Big Brother, emotional or behavioral problems he might have had tend to decrease.

The men are encouraged to take a firm stand with the boys, she says, and are advised not to be permissive, and not to try to "buy" affection with gifts or expensive outings.

"One little boy wanted his Big Brother to buy him a pizza," Mrs. DeTracy recalls, "and instead the man got all the ingredients and made the pizza at home with the boy's help. It's the doing things together that's important."

The Big Brothers Association provides some counselling and guidance for the men, but they're pretty well on their own once the initial meetings are over," says Mrs. DeTracy.

Any men, single or married, with families of their own or without, who would like further information about the project, may phone the Big Brothers Association at 962-3600 to leave their names for future contact.

Nurses Convention

'A Profession with Responsibility'

A dream and professor of the school of nursing at the University of Western Ontario in London says the nursing profession carries a great responsibility towards the present generation which has been beset by the results of a turbulent century.

Dr. Josephine Flaherty told area nurses here Saturday, "our generation has inherited the results of a turbulent century — both its benefits and its ills. Our generation is the one for whose health care present and future, the nursing profession carries a large responsibility."

She was speaking to a dinner meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter, Region Three, Registered Nurses Association of Ontario (RNAO) marking the RNAO's 50th anniversary.

"Every period in the RNAO's history has been marked by issues and problems that seem to be more complex and challenging than any of those which went before," commented Dr. Flaherty, an RNAO past-president.

She continued, "I can't help but be struck by the ability our profession has shown to respond to the issues — those related to society and its needs and those related to nurses and their needs."

"Rarely if ever have these two sets of needs been in adversary positions," remarked Dr. Flaherty.

She pointed out there has been "a subtle but distinct change" in nursing which has brought the profession "to the threshold of what may be its finest hour."

She said it has become "one of the most active and aware groups of professionals in the country. Nursing as a social force is being seen and heard as never before."

Dr. Flaherty admitted nursing has had its failures and noted "the persistence of discrimination against men in nursing. Female nurses have enjoyed officer status in the Canadian Armed Forces since early in this century — men received this status only during the last decade."

Win Donaldson holds nurses' special honor.

Nurses—50 Years Later

About 150 nurses, members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter, Region Three, Registered Nurses Association of Ontario (RNAO) returned to the site here Saturday where 50 years ago, the RNAO was officially formed.

On Saturday, April 10 1926, the RNAO elected its first president in the Quinte Hotel and on the following day, convened the first meeting of the newly elected board of directors which began the task of establishing committees to deal with some specific problems facing the professional association and its 526 members.

In commemoration of the event, six chapter members present with 50 years or more experience in nursing were recognized and as an added touch, three student nurses were noted as those who would embark on the next 50 years.

Dr. Josephine Flaherty, an RNAO past-president, told the group, "the next 50 years have seen Ontario nursing grow from embryo to maturity — the next 50 years may see us self-actualize and become fully-developed."

Canadians Don't Fear Depression

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians appear to have no real fear of a depression except in some parts of Quebec and Ontario motor cities hard-hit by the slump in the automobile industry, senior newspaper executives suggest.

The executives, surveyed on the eve of the annual meeting of The Canadian Press, Canada's national news-gathering agency, also agree generally that the public is getting fed up with strikes that affect public service, such as transportation, hospitals and the mails.

However, Robert Gibbens, business editor of Montreal Star, said the "biggest single economic issue among ordinary people is why food prices go on rising when we're in a recession."

He echoed a general feeling among the executives that inflation has not yet been licked and will get worse if labor demands bring on too many production-crippling strikes.

But none of these problems, the executives agree, indicate that a full-scale depression is in the future.

Seek Change

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An official of Canadian Forces Long Service Pensioners Association said Sunday it is campaigning for a new government definition of veteran in an attempt to increase the number of persons eligible for veterans' benefits.

At present the official government definition of veteran is someone who has served in a war zone. The last officially designated war zone was Korea, 25 years ago.

Leeds MP Says Return To PC Principles Sought

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, said Saturday a group being formed within the Conservative party cannot be considered as right wing. He said the group wants "to return the party to Conservative principles."

It will provide "middle-of-the-road" alternatives to the policies of the Liberal government and of persons in control of the Conservative caucus, Mr. Cossitt said in an interview.

"There is a feeling that the six or eight people who now control the caucus and the party follow policies foreign to Conservative philosophy," he said.

Mr. Cossitt said the group feels persons in control of the caucus represent a socialist approach to problems in the country.

He said that 11 members of Parliament attended the first meeting of the group two months ago and 28 were at the second meeting. Thirty-two of the 95 caucus members now are identified with the group, he added.

Incentives Urged To Care for Elderly

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Bette Stephenson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, suggested Saturday tax incentives to encourage families to care for the elderly in their homes.

She told a health-costs session at a policy conference of about 400 Ontario Progressive Conservative women that there are "all kinds of disincentives" for home-care for the elderly.

Among them is the scarcity in communities of trained people to assist temporarily or relieve families who might want to go on vacations, she said.

A member of the audience said that building an additional bedroom to provide for her parent only increased municipal taxes for the family home.

A tax benefit for families similar to that now paid the elderly might balance some of the disincentives, Dr. Stephenson said.

"At the moment there is nothing, absolutely nothing."

Belleville McFarland, Lionel Botly, intercepts a pass intended for Syracuse Stars Angie Defelice (6) in Saturday's Flori Goegan Night at the Memorial Arena. Botly was one of the McFarlands who came out of retirement for the contest. Goalie Don "Turk" Barclay was glad he did, on this occasion. The contest finished in a 6-6 draw.

Minnie Remembers When It Was for Him

This isn't the first time the 1939 Belleville McFarland's have reunited in their old home. Eight years ago the World Champions put the same kind of game on for another of their teammates.

Around this time of year in 1967 the McFarlands staged an exhibition match for Minnie Menard. The flashy little speedster lost an eye while playing in an exhibition game for Belleville Seniors against a team from Napanee.

Menard was one of the players who returned to Belleville for the Memorial Game.

"It's good to see the guys get back together," said Menard, "I'm only sorry that this had to be the reason."

"It's funny," said Menard, "you never hear from any of these guys or see them for years, but as soon as somebody needs help they're right there."

Now 41-year-old, he played with and against Goegan on various teams, in different leagues throughout the United States and Canada for nearly 19 years.

Minnie recalled how tough things were when he lost his eye.

"I was through playing hockey and I didn't think I'd be able to do much of anything. The guys helped me along and gave my wife all the help she needed. Flori and Eileen (Goegan) were just great with Lorretta (Mrs. Menard). When they had that game for me and handed me the cheque afterwards everything just started coming together. Things started looking brighter."

Menard has never forgotten that emotional event. "It is probably the greatest thing in my life."

He went on to explain, "It's strange what everybody on that team felt for each other. The only way I can think of to explain it is to call it camaraderie — even though it's more than that."

"It isn't the same with hockey teams today. Kids playing hockey now just don't relate to each other the way we did," he added.

His "camaraderie" as he calls it is expressed just by the fact that the jolly little Frenchman was here. He travelled 1,500 miles, from Desmoines, Iowa, just to pay his respects to the family and appear in the hockey game.

"What the hell," he shrugged, "they all gave a lot for me. I'm glad I could give a little back."

Though he knew no-one would come, Menard went out and pushed 300 tickets in Des Moines.

Because of the circumstances surrounding the game this was the benefactor from the same type of contest. Menard was asked for an objective opinion of what happened at the Memorial Arena Saturday.

Quite simply, he stated, "what this whole thing boils down to is an act of love. We all care about each other that much."

A Little Slower Than 1959 But Nobody Seemed to Mind

The fastest game on earth took on a slightly slow dimension Saturday night as members of the 1959 World Championship Belleville McFarlands pulled their skates, sticks and equipment out of mothballs and reunited at the Memorial Arena to take on the Syracuse Stars.

It was an exhibition game made in heaven. The fans loved it, the players loved it and the scoreboard loved it as 12 lights beamed the 64 score at the end of 60 minutes of play.

About 1400 people patronized the event through the front doors of the Memorial Arena and how many more purchased tickets and couldn't make it to the contest are yet to be tallied.

All proceeds from the event went to Eileen Goegan and her three sons, Mike, Grant and Gary, to help them iron out the rough spots after the untimely death of the head of the family, Flori, in late February.

Flori, a defenceman with that great McFarland team, had settled in the city in the late 40s. He then went on and won the Allen cup with the club in '58 and in '59 was an integral part of the McFarlands bringing the world title back home.

Previous to the game's opening faceoff, Mrs. Goegan was presented with the first portion of the canvassed funds. Her eldest son, Mike, was presented with the McFarland's number 2, the number which was worn by his father. That number will never again be donned by a McFarland player.

Fans, both young and old, were treated to the shenanigans and the serious side of hockey while watching the contest. Father time had dimmed the smooth polish of the McFarlands, but underneath a dull exterior it was easy to see there remained the glistening epitome of a hockey team.

As one spectator said, "Man, it's easy to see why they were the world champs."

Another onlooker smiled and said, "They ain't so young any more, but they still got it."

Wayne 'Weiner' Brown and Davey Jones, both from Belleville ,were up to their old tricks as they glided around up and down the ice leaving many of the fans with their jaws drooping.

John Paul Fayette and Minnie Menard were another pair who were slowed slightly by the 16-year interval between the world championship and Saturday's contest. Even 'Mean' Joe Lepine portrayed his part on the McFarland's of '59 as the bulking defenceman bucked himself in front of goalie, Don 'Turk' Barclay, and stepped into any Star who harassed the Turk.

It was a night that brought back memories by many, but it was also a night that became a memory for many. Over half the people who attended the contest were too young to remember the extravaganza of 1959. Nevertheless, they were there requesting autographs, asking questions and watching, in awe, the unit of heroes in their maple-leaf crested uniforms.

The McFarlands held a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period on goals by Fayette and Jones. The second frame ended in a 4-4 deadlock. Botly scored his second and Brown added the other, in the third period. George 'Goose' Gosselin and Lou Smrke tallied to give the McFarlands a tie.

Doug Harvay, a Belleville resident playing for the Stars collected a goal and an assist.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, APRIL 14, 1975

Time has taken its toll on a few of the Belleville McFarlands as big Joe Lepine will verify. Lepine, a defenceman with the world champion team, rests on a chair between shifts in Saturday night's exhibition game at the Memorial Arena.

Goegans Follow Hockey Tradition

Though Flori is gone, what he left behind will go on for a long time to come. The hard nosed defenceman with the World Champion Belleville McFarlands was well known throughout the Quinte area and in sporting circles across Ontario and through the United States.

More than that, Flori left a legacy of hockey players to the city of Belleville. His three sons, Mike, Grant and Gary will not only carry on the ceg nomen, but also their father's hockey tradition.

Mike, at 22, has already played through the minor ranks and junior 'B' level in the city. This past season he spent with Stanley Structures of the Gas House Hockey League. His father played for the same team and the two had just completed a game when Flori was stricken. His eldest son finished out the season with Stanley and on behalf of the team accepted the league championship trophy after the club rolled to a 22-1, won-lost record.

Grant, the middle man, has already established himself as a versatile and extremely talented hockey player. The 19-year-old just completed his first full season with the local junior B, Belleville Bobcats. Grant is hoping to further his education and his hockey career by attending university.

The youngest Goegan, Gary, 16, is still an unknown commodity. He spent last year playing with the Belleville Yardmen Minor Midgets (a city all-star representative) and is expected to remain in the minor ranks for a few more years.

Mouth Guards Disappearing

As a follow-up to my letter of November 4, 1974, concerning "Facial injuries in minor hockey", I beg to report on a survey carried out in the month of March during the House League playoffs.

As was feared the mouth guard is disappearing in the older age groups, the Midget and the Juvenile. Every shift of five players saw at least one of their number without any mouth guard, neither internal nor external. That meant 20 per cent of the players in these two divisions have chosen to take advantage of the new Minor Hockey rule which no longer requires the external guard, and wear no protection at all. The tragedy lies in the fact that most of these boys have had no orthodontics and reckless players, and hence need this very protection the most.

And even the innocent suffer as was seen in a game played March 27. A forward ran into an elbow, not a forceful blow, and saw one of his good front teeth fall into his hand. He was wearing an internal guard and I am certain an external guard would have prevented any injury.

A few external mouth guard has made its appearance in the local scene. It gives the most solid support with a minimum of discomfort. It has extensions up both sides of the face which fasten solidly to the helmet. For added protection to the eyes and cheekbones this helmet can be fitted with a clear plastic shield, which make protection for the head complete.

In this same mouth it was noted that many boys are playing with inadequate helmets i.e. not approved by the Canadian Standards Association. This inadequacy leaves the player susceptible to the most serious head injuries, concussion, fractures, and brain hemorrhage.

Most goaltenders in Belleville Minor Hockey, also in house league and all-star, wear a potentially dangerous and illegal, combination of mask and helmet. The Rule clearly states there can be only one finger's breadth allowed between the two pieces of equipment from the top of the ear canal across the top of the head to the top of the other ear. This rule is intended to prevent the accidental contact between a shaft and stick or puck which could result in serious injury.

The off-season is a good time to pick up bargains in hockey equipment and I urge parents and players to choose their new equipment carefully.

Peewee Title To Wellington

Wellington has another Ontario Minor Hockey Association champion today.

Members of the Loyalist Coach Lines Peewee hockey club arrived in the village early this morning, accompanied by wailing sirens signaling the team's Peewee D provincial championship.

The Loyalist youngsters wrapped up the title, Sunday, in Cayuga, with a well-earned 6-5 win, taking the best of five final in four games.

Coached by Bill Greer, the Wellington team won the first two games of the series, earned a tie in the third, and won it all, on the road.

Loyalist waited until the second period to find the range in Cayuga, Sunday, but when the Wellington skaters began to produce, it was with a four-goal burst.

Cayuga's Craig Baird opened the scoring with the first frame's only counter.

In the second, John Jackson, Glenn McQuaid, Mark Nelson and Don Macdonald pushed Wellington into a comfortable lead.

Loyalist kept the pressure on in the third to hold a 5-1 edge in the scoring.

McQuaid potted his second of the game and Jay Ramsbottom rounded out the scoring for Wellington.

Cayuga's final goal came off the stick of Chris McSorley.

Earn Washington Trip

Joern Rennesberger, a third year player, and Theresa Deak, in her fifth year, will represent the Quinte area in the Brunswick "Bowl. Your Way To Europe Tournament".

The local pair will travel to Washington, D.C. for the 10th Annual International Tournament Finals, May 23, 24 and 25. The two, both from Belleville, won the expense paid trip to the U.S. capital at Belleville Brunswick Bowl, Sunday.

To make it to Washington, and to Europe, the pair had to bowl the greatest number of pins over their averages.

Rennesberger carries a 144 average and he rolled a 190, 46 pins over. Deak rolled 81 pins over her 151 average.

Mrs. Eileen Goegan accepts a cheque of nearly $5,000 from Jack McBride, master of ceremonies at the Flori Goegan Memorial Night, Saturday at the Memorial Arena. The presentation was made at centre ice, just prior to an exhibition game between the world champion Belleville McFarlands and the Syracuse Stars. Here, from left-to-right) Jack McBride, Eileen, John and Tony Goegan (Flori's brothers), and the three boys, Grant, Gary and Mike.

Canadiens Dump Canucks

Lockett Looks Good But Not Good Enough

GUY LAFLEUR

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Ken Lockett was an unexpected starter in goal Sunday night for Vancouver Canucks in their first-ever Stanley Cup playoff game against Montreal Canadiens.

Vancouver coach Phil Maloney decided to use Lockett, who allowed one goal and had two shutouts in Vancouver's last three regular-season games, after helping the Canucks gain first place in the Smythe Division and a bye into the quarter-finals.

Lockett, a former star with University of Guelph, Ont., Gryphons, played well, but it was not enough to stop Montreal from defeating the Canucks 5-1 in the opening game of their quarter-final series.

In other quarter-final openers, Philadelphia Flyers topped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3, Buffalo Sabres clipped Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 and Pittsburgh Penguins nipped New York Islanders 5-4.

Maloney, who used Lockett instead of regular goalie Gary Smith, said "goaltending was not our problem" Sunday night.

He said Lockett "made some good saves for us," but "we had 21 shots and they had 30."

Lockett, 27, played two seasons with Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League after leaving Guelph. He was purchased outright by the Canucks from the Clippers during the off season.

He said he was told around noon Sunday that he would be in goal against Montreal.

Guy Lapointe and Guy Lafleur each scored twice for Montreal, who blew a 2-0 lead in the first period but scored two unanswered goals in each of the last two periods.

Maloney, defending his decision to start Lockett in place of Smith, who played the majority of games for the Canucks this year, said:

"Both players, some excellent goal for us in some pressure time at the end of the season. Ken on his own deserved a chance to start. He looks good enough to get us into first place. How can you turn around and say he isn't good enough to play in the playoffs? I have to think of that."

Smith has been bothered by a groin injury but Maloney said he'll start Tuesday.

Goals by Bill Barber, Reggie Leach and Jim Watson in a span of two minutes and 37 seconds early in the final period carried Philadelphia, defending cup champions, to its comeback victory over Toronto.

Rick MacLeish scored the first two goals of the game and connected with seven seconds remaining to complete his three-goal effort for the Flyers. Patrick Division winners.

Dave Williams, Blaine Stoughton and Darryl Sittler replaced for the Leafs, who held a 3-2 lead entering the final period. The goals by Stoughton and Sittler came within a 25-second span after Andre Dupont of the Flyers was ejected with a match penalty by referee Andy van Hellemond for hurling Toronto's Dave Dunn during their fight at 17:38.

At Buffalo, the Sabres got first-period goals from rookie Danny Gare, Gilbert Perreault and Fred Stanfield and went on to top the Hawks.

In Pittsburgh, the Penguins got goals from Vic Hadfield, Ron Stackhouse and Peter Lafrarnboise in the first 14 minutes and then withstood a furious Islanders assault in the final minutes of the third period to take the win.

Leduc and Houle Hopping Over Losses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros have at least four things to say about them on tonight when they met San Diego Mariners in the third game of their World Hockey Association best-of-seven quarter-final playoff.

The first thing is the fact that the Mariners hold a 2-0 lead in the series after a 7-6 victory in San Diego Saturday night and another loss would put the Toros on the brink of elimination.

The second factor is that tonight the Toros will have a home-crowd cheering for them.

A third incentive is an angry Toros general manager, Jack Houle, who is running out of patience with the team's undisciplined style of play. "For three years, I've been telling them to lighten up," said Houle after Saturday's loss.

And the fourth incentive is an equally angry coach Bob Leduc, who also had been frustrated by his team's error-prone play.

"Something's going to have to sink in with the guys," said Leduc. "It's tough to win in the playoffs when you have to score eight goals."

In playoff action Sunday, Minnesota Fighting Saints took a 2-1 lead in their series against New England by bashing the Whalers 8-3 while Cleveland Crusaders cut Houston Aeros' lead to 2-1 with a 3-1 win.

Quebec Nordiques are closest to wrapping up their series after taking a 5-0 lead over Phoenix after goalie Richard Brodeur's shutout in a 3-0 win over the Roadrunners on Saturday. Saturday's other game saw

MIKE WALTON

Houston beat Cleveland 5-3.

The Toronto game is the only one scheduled tonight. Action resumes in the other three series on Tuesday with Quebec at Phoenix, Houston at Cleveland and New England at Minnesota.

George Morrison and Terry Ball each scored twice to lead Minnesota in its home-ice victory.

The Saints built a 5-0 lead before the Whalers got their first goal late in the second period.

Injuries continued to hamper New England. They have not had the services of high-scoring centre Tom Webster who suffered a back injury in the first playoff game. Defenceman Brad Selwood didn't play Sunday and the Whalers lost winger John French in a back injury Sunday when he crashed into the boards with Minnesota's Bill Butters.

Minnesota's Mike Falkon, who had a pair of key assists, said New England "definitely has their problems" playing on Minnesota ice. "I can't figure out why. They've got a well-balanced team. We're just fortunate to be up two games to one."

"When the score is 8-3, there are a lot of things we'll have to work on," said Larry Hillman and Tom Edur scored third-period power-play goals for the Crusaders' victory, breaking Houston's string of playoff victories at eight, dating back to a year ago when the Aeros took two steaks.

"We never have won the third game of a series after losing the first two," said Cleveland goalie Gerry Cheevers. "That makes a big difference. When you lose the third you kind of go through the motions in the fourth."

Hillman said it made a more important difference. "Now they know we can beat them."

Twenty Minutes Plenty Of Time for Flyers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Any pretenders to Philadelphia Flyers' Stanley Cup throne are in for a battle, if Sunday's Maple Leafs-Flyers game is any indication of the way the National Hockey League playoffs will go.

After two periods Sunday night, the Flyers were losing 3-2. They had taken only 13 shots on goal, and faced the prospect of killing two minutes and 32 seconds of the major penalty Andre Dupont had incurred for head-butting in a fight with the Leafs' Dave Dunn.

But the Flyers, veterans of only eight years in the NHL, did not panic, said coach Fred Shero.

"In between the second and third periods, we talked about the situation," recalled Shero. "I told the boys there was nothing to worry about. Twenty minutes is a lot of time.

"I told them to leave the rest to us. Twenty minutes, four goals and 14 shots later, the Flyers skated away with a 6-3 triumph in the opener of their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

If there was any confidence problem, it was in the Leafs' dressing room.

"We're the expansion team and the Flyers are the veterans," said Toronto coach Red Kelly. "Tomorrow we have five guys in this playoff for the first time."

It wasn't an auspicious debut, although Leafs goalie Gord McRae drew compliments from his coach for his first quarter-final appearance. McRae started in Toronto's 3-1 first-round series victory over Los Angeles Kings, and after his four goals against a Flyers team that took last week off with the bye earned through its Patrick Division championship.

"McRae is my best goaltender," Kelly said. "That's why he played."

Sweden Wallops Poland

DUSSELDORF, Germany (AP) — Tord Lundstroem and Dan Labraaten each scored four goals as Sweden blanked Poland 15-0 Sunday in the most lopsided game in the 1975 Group A world hockey tournament.

It was the Swedes' fourth victory in six games.

For Poland, it was the second defeat in succession during the weekend. The Polish team lost 8-2 Saturday to Czechoslovakia, while the Soviet Union remained undefeated in four games games with a 13-1 triumph over the United States.

The Soviet Union wound up the first round of the tournament in Munich with a 5-0 record, Vladimir Vikulov scored three goals to lead the Russians to victory over the Americans, with opened the second round for both teams.

The Czechs are second with a 3-1 record and the Swedes, who outshot Poland 54-13, are 4-1.

In another second-round game Sunday, Finland defeated the U.S. 9-1. It was the seventh loss in a row for the U.S.

Morales Leads Cubs Over Expos

CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Morales drove in three runs and Pete LaCock knocked in two to back up the four-hit pitching of Steve Stone and carry Chicago Cubs to a 7-0 victory Monday over Montreal Expos in a National League baseball game Sunday.

The Cubs scored three unearned runs off Steve Rogers in the third inning with Morales driving in one and LaCock slinging in a pair.

They chased Rogers in the fifth with another three run uprising. Don Kessinger led off with a walk and scored on a double by Bill Madlock. Rick Monday was intentionally walked, both runners advanced on a passed ball and when catcher Barry Foote threw wildly to third, Madlock scored.

Morales then singled to score Monday. Two walks and Morales' single brought in the final run in the seventh.

Stone, making his first appearance of the season, struck out the side in the second inning, fanning five of the first eight batters he faced and seven in the game.

Underwood Credits Catcher For Victory in Pitching Debut

Tom Underwood made his major league pitching debut Sunday and performed like a seasoned veteran.

Philadelphia's 21-year-old left-hander held St. Louis Cardinals to five hits and got help from Greg Luzinski's home run to post a 2-0 victory in a National League baseball game.

In the rest of the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, New York 3; Chicago 7 Montreal 0; Cincinnati 10 San Diego 3; San Francisco took both ends of a doubleheader from Atlanta, 5-0 and 4-3, and Los Angeles downed Houston 7-4.

Saturday, St. Louis got by Philadelphia 7-5, Chicago beat Montreal 6-3, Atlanta defeated San Francisco 7-4, Houston downed Los Angeles 7-5, and San Diego edged Cincinnati 3-2.

BOB BOONE

"He's cool," Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark said of his young pitcher. "He was just as cool the first time I saw him, two years ago."

The reason, Underwood said, was the man he was throwing the ball to—catcher Bob Boone. "I didn't know the hitters," Underwood said. "Bossa did. Bossa got me just threw the ball where he wanted it."

Bruce Kison pitched a three-hitter in the Pittsburgh victory and gave up homers to Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub of the Mets.

Cincinnati's Don Gullett pitched a two-hitter and drove in a pair of runs with a single to highlight a seven-run burst in the fifth inning against the Padres.

Morgan also had a two-run single in the fifth. All of the fifth-inning runs were unearned as Steve Arlin, Diego's Dave Freisleben because of three infield errors.

Jim Wynn's three-run homer, breaking a 3-3 tie, and Steve Yeager's solo drive boosted the Dodgers past Houston, offsetting Ken Boswell's three run scoring singles for the Astros.

Rookie John Montefusco pitched a five-hit shutout in the opener while Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews each drove in a pair of runs in the San Francisco - Atlanta doubleheader.

In the nightcap, Peter Falcone made his major league debut by checking Atlanta on four hits, the only damaging one being Vic Correll's two-run

Split Doubleheader with Tigers

Medich Puts Yanks in Win Column

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees have finally won a ball game.

Normally, that wouldn't be so surprising—but it is the way New York "finest" have been playing so far this season.

The Yankees, on paper one of the strongest teams in the American League, had gone nearly a week without a victory before finally breaking the ice Sunday.

"The fans seem to be worrying more about the early losses than the players do," said Doc Medich, whose two-hit effort Sunday earned the Yankees a 5-0 victory in the first game of a doubleheader with Detroit Tigers.

The Yankees then reverted to early-season form and dropped the second game, their fourth loss of the year, by a 5-2 score.

Elsewhere, Cleveland pounded Milwaukee Brewers 3-1; Baltimore Orioles routed Boston Red Sox 11-3; Kansas City Royals stopped Minnesota Twins 5-3, and Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from California Angels, 7-5 in 12 innings in the first and 5-4 in the nightcap. A first game between Oakland and Texas was rained out.

Saturday, Boston edged Baltimore 3-2, Detroit beat New York 7-2, Oakland got by Texas 5-4, Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-3, Milwaukee edged Cleveland 6-5, and California defeated Chicago 5-4.

After Medich pitched the Yankees to their triumph of the season, Lerrin LaGrow tried the Tigers to their third. LaGrow fired a four-hit effort and Willie Horton knocked in two runs in the second game at Yankee Stadium.

Horton's two run single highlighted a three-run rally for Detroit in the third inning of the first game and over the 11-inning.

The Yanks won the opener as Medich struck out five, walked two and limited Detroit to six singles by Gary Sutherland in the first and Art Kusnyer in the third.

John Lowenstein tied the score with a leadoff home run in the ninth inning and Rico Ellis' leadoff double home two more runs, carrying Gaylord Perry to his 200th major league victory as Cleveland beat Milwaukee.

Brooks Robinson got four hits and scored four runs, leading Baltimore over Boston. The Orioles collected 10 of their 15 hits off Luis Tiant, who had a 19-3 record against them since joining Boston.

Hal McRae drove in runs in each of his first three appearances, leading Kansas City over Minnesota. Lifting his RBI total to seven this season, McRae doubled home a run in the first, singled home one in the third and doubled home another in the fourth inning as the Royals mounted a 5-0 lead behind Steve Busby.

Ken Henderson knocked in four runs, including two to cap a three-run rally in the 12th inning as Chicago beat California in the first game of their doubleheader. Bill Sharp and Alex Orta each drove in two runs as the White Sox won the second

A Win and a Loss in OMHA Finals—Three Series to Go

With one provincial title in the records; another team forced to settle for runner-up honors and two more clubs carried to the brink of elimination, the fifth area team involved in these final series took a stranglehold on a record three straight championship.

Wellington Loyalist Coach Lloyd Powers put the provincial D Fred Norman Trophy in the village's new arena by taking Cayuga in the championship final.

Marmora Bantams, needing only one win to take the D honors in their series with Teeswater, found it just wasn't their weekend when they bowed in games Friday, Saturday and Sunday by scores of 8-7, 5-3 and 5-4, to lose the series 3-1.

In Mitchell, Brighton OPP Peewees, shooting for the C crown, were turned back twice on the weekend, by scores of 8-5 and 8-7 and now trail 3-1 in games in the six-point series.

Fourth game in the final is scheduled for Brighton, Saturday, at 1.30 p.m. Should a fifth game be necessary, it will be played in Mitchell on a date to be announced.

Brighton coach Elgie Currie, while explaining that his squad had its troubles on the larger ice surface at Mitchell, was satisfied that the OPP youngsters had given it an excellent shot and remain in the running.

"The kids played well and they enjoyed themselves. That's the main thing," commented Currie.

At Picton, the Kiwanis Bantams kept their hopes alive, taking a 5-4 Sunday win over Exeter Hawks in the B title series, after losing Saturday, 13-3.

The Picton team trails 3-1 in games with the fifth match set for Exeter, Saturday. If a sixth game is necessary, it will be played in Picton, Sunday.

In Juvenile AA championship play, Trenton Birt's Handy Stand moved to within one win of becoming the first club to take three straight provincial crowns in that division by scoring convincing wins over Oakridge Village to lead the set 3-1 in games.

Sunday, Birt's roared to a 10-1 win after posting a 7-3 Saturday victory.

The team has a chance to win it all at home, Wednesday night when the clubs hook up in the fifth game.

Bob Cameron fired three goals to lead the Sunday attack. Bob Thompson clicked for a goal and four assists while Randy Barre, Brian McKintosh, Rick Matheson, Dave Lewis, Jeff Peckitt and Bruce Leecham rounded out the winners' production.

Dan Creighton spoiled goalie Gary Crandell's bid for a shutout when he counted the lone Oakridge goal halfway through the final frame.

Saturday, Birt's said it with a two-goal burst from Cameron and singles by Scott Poole, MacKintosh, Lewis, Matheson and Thompson.

Coming for the visitors were Craig Meadon with two, and Creighton.

The championship will be decided at Memorial Arena tonight (Monday) at 7.30 p.m.

Sparked by the Pope brothers, Norm and Terry, Cornerstone battled its way to seven teens.

Norm fired two goals, including the winner, while Terry scored once and picked up two helpers.

Other marksmen for Cornerstone were Doug Jodoin and Roger Johnson.

Looking after the goal production for the Dairymen were Al Ray, Jerry Lucas, Carl Boomhower and Moe Hunter. Brian Smith picked up a pair of assists.

Both teams stuck to hockey with only seven minor penalties handed out. The winners drew three of the two-minute sentences.

Jack Nicklaus – Makes 30 Footer

Nicklaus Takes Fifth Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus stood on the 18th hole, Augusta's par-three Red Bud hole, looking at a 40-foot sidehill putt.

His ears were still ringing from the cheers of the thousands fading the long par-five No. 15 behind him where Tom Weiskopf had just knocked home a 13-footer for a birdie that sent him into the lead of the 39th Masters golf tournament with three holes to play.

"Sometimes you get a feeling about these things," Nicklaus said afterward. "I thought I could make the putt. I decided to use a different style. I decided to hand-stroke the putt rather than hit it . . . So I struck it and it rolled in. that, for me, was the tournament."

Weiskopf, momentarily shaken, left his five-iron tee shot 60 feet short on No. 16 and watched his approach putt roll to the left, still 18 feet away. He bogeyed and there was a two-foot skirt in those dying moments of one of the greatest golf tournaments ever played.

Nicklaus emerged the winner with an unprecedented fifth Masters title.

He finished with a four-under-par 68 for a 72-hole score of 276 but called it "the greatest Masters I have ever played, better than when I set the record (271) in 1965."

Weiskopf and Johnny Miller were one shot behind at 277, both barely missing birdie putts on the final green that would have tied them for the championship.

The 37-year-old Miller came from 11 shots back after the first two rounds to narrowly miss carrying Nicklaus into a playoff.

After an opening-round 75, Miller fired successive rounds of 71-69-68, setting a record 202 for the last 54 holes and 131 for the last 36.

Weiskopf, at 32 three years younger than Nicklaus, made his fourth runner-up finish in the Masters.

Nicklaus picked up the $40,000 first prize and moved within striking distance of Miller as the year's leading money winner. Miller has earned $146,078, Nicklaus now has won $140,43, and Weiskopf has $112,488.

Hale Irwin, the reigning U.S. Open champion, also gave the last day fans a thrill by shooting an eight-under-par 64. The course records previously made by Lloyd Mangrum, Nicklaus and England's Maurice Bembridge. He finished with 282, tying Bobby Nichols, who had a 68. Former champion Bill Casper shot 70 for 283 and sixth money.

After 10 holes, Nicklaus and Weiskopf were tied, 11 under par, with Miller only two shots back. No one else was a factor for the title.

At the 11th, a formidable par four, Weiskopf dumped his second into water and Miller, in one of his few miscues, three putted, missing from two feet. Nicklaus now led Weiskopf by one and Miller by three.

Miller got a shot back with a birdie on the par five 13th. Nicklaus and Weiskopf parred.

Tension heightened at the 420-yard 16th. Nicklaus put his approach on the fringe, 40 feet from the cup, and putted to the other fringe 20 feet away, three feet, 11 under, and Nicklaus putting for a bogey five. Just was a shot back with Miller behind him. Weiskopf birdied two back. All three birdied the from six feet, a shift of two long 15th.

Then Nicklaus sank the 40-Now Weiskopf was in the foot putt on the 18th.

Guards Lead Kings Attack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guards Nate Archibald and Jimmy Walker led an early second-half surge to help Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeat Chicago Bulls 102-95 in the only National Basketball Association playoff game Sunday.

Larry McNeill scored a game-high 28 points as Archibald scored 19 points and Walker eight during the first 4½ minutes after intermission, increasing the Kings' 55-51 halftime margin to 77-61.

The victory evened the best-of-seven Western Conference semi-final at 1-1. The Bulls won Wednesday night's opener 95-89 in Chicago.

In American Basketball Association playoff action Sunday, Kentucky downed Memphis 111-99 to win its best-of-seven semi-final 4-1, and St. Louis defeated New York 100-89 to take a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final.

In the NBA Saturday, Washington stopped Buffalo Braves 120-106 to even its Eastern Conference best-of-seven semi-final at 1-1, Houston Rockets defeated New York Knicks 118-98 to win the best-of-three first round series 2-1, and Seattle Supersonics downed Detroit Pistons 109-85 to win the first-round playoff 2-1.

Saturday in the ABA, San Antonio defeated Indiana 110-109 after Indiana had taken the first three games of the best-of-seven quarter-final, and Denver stopped Utah 130-119 to take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final.

NEW YORK (enter) — The United States Tennis Association made it official Saturday—the laws has been deleted from its name. The change was authorized at the USTA's annual meeting in February, but only became effective with the Saturday announcement.

Allison Wins Rebel 500

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison watched the leaders drop out ahead of him, then won a mad sprint over the final 16 miles to take the Rebel 500 stock car race Sunday.

Allison, driving a Matador, took the lead for the first time with eight laps to go and held off Darrell Waltrip and his brother Donnie Allison to win the race by about three feet.

Dave Marcis, three laps back, was fourth and Coo Coo Marlin, nine laps back, finished fifth.

Allison got his chance when David Pearson, duelling for the lead with Bennie Parsons, got reckless on Darlington's tight first turn.

With less than 25 miles to go, Pearson pulled inside of Parsons and the two cars headed side by side into the turn. It didn't work.

The cars touched each other and Parsons was pushed into the concrete retaining wall with Pearson locked to his side.

Bobby Allison earned $15,060 for his second National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National victory of the year.

Snyder Wins Again On Buffalo Lark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The only way jockey Larry Snyder knows how to win $100,000 stake races is by riding Buffalo Lark, which is what he did Saturday to take the $140,200 Pan American Handicap at Gulfstream Park in Hallandale, Fla.

"I've only won two $100,000 races and they've both been on Buffalo Lark," said Snyder. "Trainer Joe Bollero told me to let him come running out of the stretch and take the lead if he could make it easy.

Buffalo Lark stalked Duke Tom for more than a mile before taking the lead at the head of the stretch and going on to record up second for $28,040. Duke Tom made his $5,000 supplemental investment look worthwhile by getting $14,020 for third, ahead of Stagecoach.

Meanwhile, Wilfrido Ocuna, 23, one of Mexico's leading jockeys, died Saturday from head injuries suffered in a spill last week at Calienle Race Track in Tijuana, a truck-automobile accident said.

Ocuna remained unconscious and paralyzed on the left side of his body from the time of the accident until he died despite four hours of surgery to remove a blood clot from his brain after the spill last Saturday.

Elsewhere on the U.S racing scene Saturday, Kentucky Derby prospect Wicked Part became a stakes winner for the second time at Baltimore's Pimlico with a mild upset in the second division of the $97,825 Survivor Stakes.

Wicked Park ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:45 3-5. In the first division of the stakes race, William Farish's Tinker Fox won with a time of 1:46 3-5.

Ridden by Joe Morcicle, the leading apprentice jockey in the U.S., Wicked Park was sent to the front approaching the first turn and was not seriously threatened, winning by seven lengths.

IN MEMORIAM

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of my dear father, who left us peacefully away April 14th, 1972.
Dearest Dad and dearly mourned.
Heart of my heart, thought of my thought,
Often, my darling, my tears will flow
Because you were here before my eyes,
But never the one in my heart I chose.
The stars seem dim as I whisper low,
My own darling husband, I miss you so.
— Never forgotten by wife Vera.

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of sadly missed Harry Alexander who passed away three years ago today, April 14, 1972.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near;
Only those that have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
— Loved, daughter Allison.

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away April 14, 1972.
Wonderful memories, woven in love,
Sweet.
To the greatest I honestly had,
Deep in my heart a memory is kept,
We love for a son I will never forget.
Beautifully sleeping, resting at last,
The words weary troubles and pain are past,
Heaven has suffered,
In patience you bore,
Till God called you home to suffer no more.
— Lovingly remembered, your mother.

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of a grandson, Ronald Alexander, who passed away April 14, 1972.
Days of sunset, O'er hill and dale,
Tears in silence often flow,
Thinking of you, dear grandson, through out the years,
Though you left us many years ago,
— Always remembered by Grandma Hunter.

BABCOTTE — In loving memory of our father and husband, Percy Babcotte, who passed away April 14, 1972.
Sweet memories, precious and dear,
Memories of a loved one always near,
Memories we cherish, memories we keep,
Memories that make us laugh and weep.
— Sadly missed by wife, Mary and family.

BABCOTTE — In loving memory of our dear father, Percy Babcotte, who passed away April 14, 1972.
Dad's memory is dearer today,
Than in the days that have passed away,
His memory is sweet as a flower,
For he was a kind father to me.
— Sadly missed by daughter Joan.

BABCOTTE — In loving memory of our dear grandfather Percy Babcotte, who passed away April 14, 1972.
In memory, a daily thought,
In our hearts a place,
Dearly missed by your grandchildren Carol, Jacky and Susan.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE, SEDE OSOL

Tuesday, April 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your powers of concentration won't be in full force today. Mental discipline is called for to keep your mind on your work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep close tabs on your possessions. Don't leave anything lying around that a stranger may take a fancy to.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An agreement made with a close friend will be broken when an offer you think more appealing comes up—unless you keep your word.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't accept help you don't absolutely need today. The aid could have strings that would be hard to cut.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Proceed slowly and cautiously on new projects at this time. Get all the facts and figures before taking each step.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22) If you have self-doubts about your ability to handle a tricky situation don't let them become apparent. Others will lose faith in you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You won't get very far if you try to sell another idea on an idea only half-believe in. Best not to bring it up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Oversights are likely if you conduct your business hastily today. Don't let yourself be rushed beyond your pace.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't attempt to do two things of equal importance or both will suffer. Determine which is the most immediate. Concentrate on it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Save the embarrassment of having to make excuses for something you promised to do for another. Put it at the top of your list.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A favor is required in a situation you're responsible for. Those you're dealing with must be aware you're calling the shots.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do what you know to be right. Don't be overly sensitive as to what another may think. She's only an observer.

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

Persistent Fever Sign of Trouble

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am writing in regard to our 13-year-old daughter, who for a year now has had a slight temperature. It runs about 99.4, and she just gets it a while in the afternoon or evening, and not every day.

We were wondering what could cause this. We have had her to a doctor, but the tests never show anything. She has no pep and has a heart murmur. What do you think about this?—Mrs. F., H.

I think you may have cause for some concern.

The average body temperature, as almost everyone knows, is 98.6 degrees fahrenheit, although elevations of up to 99, even 99.5, degrees are considered to be within normal range after an active day.

In your daughter's case, I would regard the 99.4 as indicative of some trouble, especially since the reading has been obtained over a considerable length of time—a year, according to your letter. At 17, does her body temperature should have become stabilized from the periods of fluctuation expected during her early years.

Low-grade fever is only a symptom, not a disease, however, so it would be wise for you to begin looking for its cause. There can be several.

The most common is fever of undetermined origin (FUO is the medical shorthand for it) is an infection, and physicians frequently begin with this assumption either to find the source of the infection or to rule it out. Other disorders that can be infectious nature can produce a chronic low-grade fever. Collagen (or connective tissue) disease comes to mind as an example.

In the female, especially, we often suspect a urinary tract infection. At her age, the possibility of tuberculosis must be considered, if your daughter has not had a tuberculin skin test and a chest x-ray, she should have.

Another thought in passing. Since you live in a rural area, the possibility of undulant fever from an improperly processed milk supply might be investigated. This, however, as never is intermittent, low in thermonize and similar to a heart valve ing should also be investigated. This condition is called "subacute bacterial endocarditis." Rheumatic fever is another possibility.

I've given you a lot to think about, with the hope that it will not raise ghosts for you, but impress upon you the complexity of dealing with a low-grade fever and fevers of undetermined origin in general. It has been, and continues to be, a puzzler for physicians.

The possibilities listed above can be investigated rather simply with modern medical equipment for blood agglutination tests, blood cultures, urine cultures, and others. Some, however, may require a brief hospital stay.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife and I are recent newlyweds, and I suspect that she has a "crack" in her neck by sliting it from side to side.

She says it feels better after popping, but I'm getting worried it might be harmful. Is it?—D. R.

No. It is probably nothing more than a nervous habit but can become habit-forming. One concludes his head continuously can be fatal.

This goes on all night and he just doesn't get proper rest and sleep. My daughter has had him checked, and her pediatrician tells her the boy is healthy and will outgrow this habit by the time he is 10 years old.

Is there anything that can be done to help him stop during his sleep? — Mrs. H. C.

I have an image of grandmother sitting in the darkness of a still evening and listening, flinching with each "bump, bump" that might echo from this kid's bedroom. If he is like most head-bangers I've known, you can't help but have some concern.

Head-bangers are always with us, and while the practice may have its humorous aspects, for parents—grandparents, too—it can be a source of great apprehension. I can tell you that the banging rarely results in damage to the head or brain. It is not a sign that the child is a dimwit.

Why an otherwise healthy youngster will begin this self-destructive habit behavior is a mystery. There seems to be no good answer for it, nor any reliable solution. One noted pediatrician says youngsters tend to be of the more serious type. He suggests that this may be a form of more cuddling than other youngsters.

Holding of the knees is in imitation of the fetal position, and it is a comfortable position for babies, providing them with an extra bit of warmth. Perhaps a warmer blanket, firmly tucked, would help.

The head-banging should end long before his 10th year. If it does not, I consider that late, you could have more than just reason for being passively head-banger on your hands.

While you're waiting for the disturbing practice to end, try some measures to make it a bit less worrisome for you. Put some extra padding around the head of the crib or bed. I recall a father who cut out the headboard and replaced it with plywood. Much of the infant's satisfaction is really from the sound produced.

Concern about the lack of sleep and rest in children is usually unwarranted.

Another thought about the head-banger. It often begins at about the time in the child's life when mother stops running into the bedroom to quiet bedtime wailing. You already know from experience that the child does not wake up in the morning with his head bloodied from an evening's head-banging session. Try ignoring it for a while, and see just how much attention-getting is involved.

Jim: You are an actuary. How about some articles that show how to take out insurance against any and all bad breaks?

Oswald: "Six clubs is a pretty good contract for North and South. Five clubs which makes easily is much better than three notrump. In the second case if North made the decision to let South play in three notrump."

Jim: "West opened the queen of diamonds and South studied the hand for some time. Finally he came up with an insurance play to guarantee his contract with two overtricks. He carefully played dummy's king of diamonds on West's queen and then plunked his ace of diamonds on dummy's king."

Oswald: "He had seen the need for two entries to his own hand and this play insured them. He was now able to knock out East's ace of clubs and get back to his hand with a diamond to run the rest of the club suit."

Jim: If you want to torture yourself, just try to bring home six clubs against the lead of a trump, a heart or the queen of jack of diamonds. It will be torture because you will fall one trick short."

Ontario Milk Producers To Get Big Market Slice

ATHENS, Ont. (CP) — The chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board said Saturday the quota for Ontario milk producers' share of the Canadian market will be increased at least 1½ million pounds this year.

The increase is intended to fill the gap between production and demand with Canadian rather than foreign dairy products, Georges McLaughlin said at the annual meeting of the Leeds County milk committee in this community 15 miles northwest of Brockville.

"In the past year, Canada has imported more than 60 million pounds of butter," he said.

Immigration Dominant Factor in Population

OTTAWA (CP) — The population increase from immigration probably surpassed the effect of births and deaths last year, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Saturday.

David Lewis To Be Active

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — David Lewis, federal NDP leader, said Saturday he will continue to promote the ideals of democratic socialism and the NDP after he retires as leader in July.

His will try to help find solutions for the problems of inflation, unemployment, hunger, Mr. Lewis said at a dinner in his honor organized by NDP riding associations in the London area.

He said later in an interview that he does not think he will seek public office again.

"I think I will continue teaching and maybe write on Canadian socialism," Mr. Lewis said.

He said he will endorse no leadership candidate at the party's federal convention in July in Winnipeg.

"Immigration will tend more and more to become the dominant and governing variable in the determination of any policy for population growth in Canada," he said in a speech prepared for delivery in Vancouver.

Indeed, although one projection would have had immigration surpassing natural increase only in the year 1983, it is likely that this event has occurred already, in the year 1974."

His speech, text of which was released in advance of delivery, was to a joint meeting of the Community Planning Association of Canada and The American Society of Planning Officials.

Total population now is about 23 million and is growing by about 1.3 per cent a year.

Mr. Andras said Canada, like the United States and many European countries, is experiencing a fertility rate lower than replacement levels.

Phnom Penh Is Quiet As Rebels Infiltrate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cambodian government was reported to be still holding Phnom Penh today despite claims by the Khmer Rouge radio that Communist insurgents were "penetrating deep" into the city and occupied the airport.

In South Vietnam, fighting continued on three sides of Saigon and the Viet Cong blew up a bomb dump at the big Bien Hoa air base 15 miles north of the capital.

Cambodian troops in Phnom Penh told reporters the insurgents were at the northern outskirts of the city but had not entered in. The city was quiet and the government radio continued to broadcast.

Field reports said the town of Takhmau, six miles south of the capital, was abandoned to the rebels after it came under heavy fire. At least 198 government soldiers were reported killed or wounded, and six 105mm howitzers were left behind.

Reporters in Phnom Penh said the Khmer Rouge still held a marketplace astride the road to the airport. Reports Monday night said the government had airlifted reinforcements to the airfield to join about 1,000 troops trying to hold a line along the railroad parallel to the highway.

Sydney Schanberg of the New York Times, one of the six Americans known to have remained in Phnom Penh, said he drove through the Pochentong market and saw no rebels, but they made no effort to stop him.

Schanberg talked by radio with a charter plane circling the capital. Reporters aboard the plane said the University of Phnom Penh, about halfway to Pochentong airport three miles west of the capital, appeared to have been turned into a major government military base.

Schanberg said the government defence lines were within three miles or downtown Phnom Penh at some points. But field reports indicated a lull in fighting on the city's fronts, punctuated by rocket fire.

Six rebel rockets were reported to have fallen on a textile mill inside the western sector of the capital, raising a cloud of black smoke visible from afar. Refugees continued to stream into the capital from the northwest, and they reported heavy rocket fire there.

Khmer Rouge broadcasts monitored in the Thai capital said the Communist-led Cambodian insurgents took the town of Prek Phnoun, on Phnom Penh's northern outskirts, and were advancing on a bridge less than four miles from the centre of the city.

One broadcast from the insurgent station said the city "is on the point of collapse."

Metric Shift Mad Says Meeks

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City councillor Stu Meeks believes Canada's switchover to the metric system is "madness" and wants to enlist support for a protest from his city hall colleagues.

Ald. Meeks told council Monday night he will introduce a motion in two weeks' time calling for support against the metric switchover.

The change, he claimed, will cost billions of dollars mostly to consumers — and cause "mass confusion."

He called it a regressive step in a period of spiralling inflation, and a major threat to small businessmen and national identity.

"It's a radical change and should not be implemented without a plebiscite of the people," said Ald. Meeks.

He said he will ask his resolution be forwarded to local, provincial and federal politicians so "they may assist where possible in stopping this madness" and to Association of Municipalities of Ontario.

Macdonald Gives Warning

Alberta Could Produce Gas Famine Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald warned Monday of a potential natural gas shortage next winter and said Alberta will be responsible if it occurs.

"It's possible . . . because of a political decision by the Alberta government," he said as the Commons resumed debate on the powerful and controversial petroleum administration bill.

The proposed legislation, unofficially called Ottawa's mini-House, would give Ottawa unilateral power to set the price of crude oil and natural gas. But it would not force Alberta, the main energy-producing province, to sell oil or gas against its will.

This could cause a shortage by next year in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and western Quebec, Mr. Macdonald said.

He referred to an application two years ago by TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. to pipe greater quantities of natural gas from Alberta to outside markets. Approved by the province's energy resources conservation board, the application has not been exported because Alberta government because it wants assurance of higher prices, Mr. Macdonald said.

Hearings are planned in the province's ex-post facto review of natural gas, currently selling for 48 cents a thousand cubic feet. But they have been delayed pending more negotiations between Ottawa and the provinces on a price mutually acceptable to consumers and producers.

Mr. Macdonald said he hopes an agreement will be reached and that Alberta will approve additional exports from the province to meet outside needs.

Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and the Montreal area depend on Alberta for natural gas, while British Columbia is self-sufficient. Little natural gas is produced in Atlantic provinces.

The current 60-cents price was set last year. Earlier contracts negotiated by TransCanada averaged 44.5 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Mr. Macdonald has said the planned Alberta hearings could result in a wellhead price of more than $1.

Natural gas exported to the United States already sells for $1 and an increase is expected to be announced soon, perhaps as early as the end of the week. Sources indicate the cabinet has been considering an increase of 50 cents to 60 cents.

Mr. Macdonald has said a higher export price is Ottawa's top energy priority. But he told Monday that domestic pricing also is an important question.

The new Alberta price, whether set by federal-provincial negotiation or otherwise, is scheduled to take effect Nov. 1.

With this deadline fixed at the wholesale level, it is important to give gas companies time to apply for retail price increases, Mr. Macdonald said.

Future oil prices also figured strongly in Monday's debate, the first on the bill in three months.

The national energy conference last week did not agree on the $6.50-a-barrel rate for domestically-used crude oil. Exported oil is priced at $11 a barrel.

Further negotiations are planned. Mr. Macdonald later said Monday that he hopes Saskatchewan, the second largest oil-producing province, will decide before Thursday if further negotiations are complete.

Alberta has said it will refrain from increases while "meaningful" discussions are going on.

Reports indicate that Alberta wants an increase of $2 to $3 in the retail price. Every $1-a-barrel increase translates into a three-cents-a-gallon raise in the retail price of heating oil and gasoline.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said he will not object if the government fails to negotiate acceptable oil and natural gas prices with the provinces and is forced to use the petroleum bill to set prices for the balance of 1975.

But the bill, if approved as drafted, should not be used again and again in the future, Mr. Macdonald said earlier no new price agreement might be reached during 1975. Negotiations could take longer.

Fighting Continues In Beirut Streets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fighting with machine-guns and grenades continued for the third day today in Beirut streets between Palestinian guerrillas and a conservative political party's private army.

Most businesses, schools and government offices remained closed. The usually hectic traffic slowed to a trickle.

Sniping and hit-and-run bombings took several more casualties this morning, bringing to about 80 the number of Palestinians, militiamen and bystanders reported killed. More than 100 persons were wounded, the warring parties and police said.

Premier Rashid Solh still refused to order the 15,000-man Lebanese army into action.

The cabinet authorized use of the army, but the premier relied on the security police, un-uniformed, limited power at his disposal to deal with the combatants.

Strange Objects Seen in Sky

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Residents of the city got an unexpected, unexplained display Monday night as UFO objects were sighted high in the sky about 10 miles to the north and west.

Falling into the category of unidentified flying objects, they were described as round in shape with pinpoints flashing red, green and white lights.

They were seen by at least nine people, including a Brockville provincial police officer and his wife, who said several of the objects disappeared abruptly after they were first seen about 9 p.m. but that one stayed in view until about 10:30 p.m.

A check of Uplands Airport officials in Ottawa indicated nothing was recorded in the area on their radar screens.

Indians Refuse Land Lease

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Concern about the environment by Indians on the Alderville reserve prompted them to reject a $40,000-a-year land lease offer from Reed Resources Ltd. to build an $100-million oil refinery on the reserve, says John Beaucage, reserve education liaison officer.

The rejection came at a meeting Saturday of 33 of the members of the reserve and representatives of the environment ministry, he said Monday.

Petrosar, a private Canadian company, originally planned to establish an oil refinery near Sarnia, about 20 miles west of here, but met too much opposition from a local citizen's group. It then proposed to lease about 200 acres of reserve land and establish the refinery on it.

Fear that the rural setting of the area would be destroyed and concern over air pollution and safety also were factors in rejection prompted the rejection, said Mr. Loukes.

Petrosar told the Indians there would be four years of construction involved in building the refinery and jobs for 250 skilled and 50 unskilled full-time employees, not including the men required for construction, estimated at 2,000 men for 2½ years.

Most Missionaries Have Left Vietnam

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly all 200 missionaries from the United States have left South Vietnam in the face of the uncertain situation, say reports received here.

At least seven Canadians and Americans are missing in areas seized by the Viet Cong, including Mr. and Mrs. Norman Johnson of Hamilton.

Two others from the U.S. remained in captured regions to try to continue their work, and a few missionary doctors and a few relief workers are staying in the Saigon area as long as possible.

But most U.S. missionary personnel have pulled out.

"They had to be evacuated in case the encroaching northern forces take over Saigon as they've taken over everything else," said Rev. Louis King of Nyack, N.Y., in charge of overseas personnel of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, the largest mission group in the area.

"There also is a strong possibility of intense anti-American breaking out at any time," he said. "If this sentiment grows, our people ought not to be there."

The exodus of missionaries, teachers, nurses, pastors, technicians and others has been going on the last two weeks.

However, about a dozen Americans of Catholic Relief Services and a reduced U.S. crew of Church World Service, working through the Protestant Vietnam Christian Service, still are on duty there.

So were key personnel of a Seventh-day Adventist hospital in Saigon, including six U.S. doctors.

Ford Pledges To Maintain U.S. Strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford said today the United States must keep its military forces strong to maintain detente with the Soviet Union and keep the confidence of Western allies.

Ford told a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution that he would never submit a defence budget that would "sell us short or shirt that balance (of nuclear forces) against America."

He called on each member of Congress to make a similar pledge.

"A posture of deliberate weakness is most dangerous when the worldwide military balance threatens to deteriorate. But at any time weakness would be folly for the United States, a great nation, with interests spanning the globe," Ford said in his prepared text.

IRA Threatens To End Ceasefire

BELFAST (AP) — The Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing threatened today to end its two-month ceasefire "unless the wild men of the British army" are hemmed in more closely.

The threat was in response to a statement at the weekend by the British commander in Northern Ireland, Lt.-Gen. Sir Frank King, that his forces would have smashed the IRA guerrillas if the truce leaders had not accepted the truce Feb. 10.

King criticized the release of more than 200 alleged terrorists in the ceasefire and said they were back on the streets ready to resume fighting to drive the British out of Ulster.

"Unless the wild men of the British army like Sir Frank King are brought under control," said the IRA, "credibility of the British government will cease to exist and it will be difficult to look upon the government as an authority with whom agreements can be made."

Merlyn Rees, the British minister of state for Northern Ireland, told the House of Commons that one of the detainees to be released was a Protestant who tried to assassinate him last May. Rees gave no other details.

Rees also said King did not intend his statement as a criticism of government policy.

"His remarks have caused political embarrassment and the general has expressed his regret to me," he said. "The general made a mistake."

The Big Assignment

Lawrence (Larry) Kells will have his briefcase increasingly crammed as the time nears for Belleville's 100th anniversary celebrations. Monday night his appointment as general chairman to co-ordinate all 1978 city centennial year projects was announced in city council.

Kells Heads Belleville Centennial Body

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville has its Centennial Year activities chairman.

Lawrence (Larry) Kells — for years well-known area educator — has agreed to head what's hoped will be the city's biggest celebration in a century.

His appointment — ending a two-year search for the right man willing to volunteer for the task — was announced to city council Monday night by Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Mr. Kells will develop and coordinate the celebration program.

Among his assignments will be playing official civic host at all events during the 1978 Centennial. In his task he will be assisted by his wife, Margaret, as official hostess.

The search for the right man has been the job of a special centennial-year steering committee.

Mr. Kells was superintendent of Belleville's public school board from 1944 to 1968, then became superintendent of school administration for Hastings County when the education system was expanded. He retired in 1970.

His community involvement has included an active role with Kiwanis Club projects.

As yet, his centennial-year role is still evolving.

"It's going to develop as time goes on," Mr. Kells said after he was introduced to city council. "But what the development is to be has to be determined."

He will organize his assignments from the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Meantime, said Mayor Jeffrey, the city centennial department will prepare a 1975 operating budget for the centennial program.

Electric Dryers Good Economics

Soap may be a luxury to students in third world countries but in this county's 23,000 elementary and secondary school students electric dryers are just downright economical.

The Hastings County Board of Education recently accepted a $7,275 bid from Huntington Laboratories of Canada to supply enough electric hand dryers for three or four schools this year. Since the policy was implemented three years ago the board now has 13 schools which use electric hand dryers.

A spokesman from the business section told trustees Monday night the recovery cost for the hand dryers was three years. "It's economically sound," said the spokesman. He also said it was an ongoing program to update school equipment.

Apparently, ordinary paper towels have been used by students to plug the sewers which created repair costs onto the board. Five companies supplying these hand dryers, placed tenders on the purchase.

Tender Approved For Street Project

Reconstruction of Sidney St. between College and Tracey streets should be under way at the end of this month.

The estimate came from city engineer Jos Angelo after council awarded the contract for the project.

Lowest tender from six bidders came from Korsan Ltd. of Cobourg for $298,672.

The other tenders ranged from up to a high of $327,167. Besides street widening, the project also includes:

— Sidewalk from College to Tracey Park Dr. on the west side of Sidney.

— Sidewalk from Parkdale Dr. to Tracey on Sidney's east side.

Ald. Joe Cox questioned if local residents were being assessed more because the project involved a four-lane road.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the residents were paying the same rate as it is were a typical residential street.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said extra footage for sidewalks had to be acquired to protect trees in the area.

Underpass Step Closer With Engineer Study

City council has moved a further step closer to engineering the underpass at the Cannifton Rd. highway link.

Council Monday night approved an agreement for professional engineering services for design and construction administration of underpassing the Canadian National Railways main line on the Highway 37 route between Highway 401 and the city centre.

The agreement for the grade separation project is with Tulloch Sims, Hubbell Associates. It follows council Jan. 20 approved the consultants' functional planning report for the Cannifton Rd. scheme.

It is the latest preliminary move in determining the traffic route by shifting the road further east beneath the tracks, linking it as a four-lane artery into Station St. near Bridge St.

Cost of the grade separation, originally has been estimated at $2,852,000 — of which the city will pay about $468,000.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles; Checks Itch
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.
And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.
In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and relieves irritation less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.
Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).
Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Kente Parents Ask Board To Reinstate Principal

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A group of parents has petitioned the Prince Edward County Board of Education to review its decision to transfer Eugene Bright, principal of Kente School in Ameliasburg to a teaching position and has stressed willingness to co-operate in a study tracing causes of the move.

It was agreed by trustees at a meeting last month that Mr. Bright should be transferred next term to a teaching position at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton.

Chairman of the parents' committee, David Shoots of RR 1, Carrying Place told board members, Monday, "we are very concerned about the general policy of how the board reaches a decision of this kind — the mechanics of the operation."

He suggested a small committee of trustees should confer with a committee of parents of Kente school children then report to the board for further action.

Mr. Shoots asked board members to make a decision on this proposal and to notify him within the next five days. "We come positively, we wish to co-operate, we wish to provide evidence," he said in an interview with trustees.

Before Mr. Shoots' presentation, by trustees, board chairman Douglas Caley requested board solicitor Richard Byers to clarify the board's position in such a discussion.

Mr. Byers said, in principle, it is improper for the board to discuss anything of a personal nature in public.

"My advice to the board is that they neither confer the right nor should they discuss specific items at this forum," he stressed.

Mr. Shoots said he had a statement signed by principal Eugene Bright authorizing the board to release all material concerning his transfer.

The information was not released on the solicitr's advice.

Mr. Shoots said a comment, curious problem exists between the committee and trustees and asked if definite steps have been taken to appoint a new principals.

Board chairman Douglas Caley replied, "My answer to that is the way of your business."

Mr. Caley said should a new principal be named the press would receive first notification.

Mr. Shoots said the parents' committee represents 90 per cent of the 261 families with children attending Kente School.

He emphasized the group is concerned with retaining a high level of performance at the school and satisfaction in school programs.

Roy Stevenson, a member of the parents's group, said appointment of a new principal for Kente is the business of those with youngsters enrolled there.

Mr. Caley agreed but stressed trustees are elected by the public and that's the announcement is their decision.

Mr. Stevenson read portions of a report on Mr. Bright's work submitted by the county's director of education John McNeil.

Early parts of the report termed conditions at Kente "the best since 1969" he said.

Dan Brady, another committee member asked if the board would reverse a decision if there was further and adequate evidence introduced.

Chairman Douglas Caley replied, "I've said that myself, I have seen situations reversed."

Mr. Brady said the committee hopes the board will take no further action until all evidence submitted is reviewed fairly.

"We came to discuss principles with an "le" not "ai"," he said.

The parents' committee submitted evidence to the board including results of a parent poll.

In all 261 forms were returned of 267 parents reached. It said that 96 were satisfied with Kente School while 36 expressed dissatisfaction.

The survey revealed that 175 parents would support Mr. Bright and 13 would not.

At a public meeting in Kente School last week, 75 persons supported Mr. Bright until trustees pressed specific items fed facts to warrant his dismissal.

The board received the committee's evidence, including an analysis of Mr. McNeil's report.

Board Approves School As Site for New Pool

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward County Board of education Monday night passed approval in principle for construction of a covered swimming pool on school property.

The decision followed a presentation by Ed Rae, chairman of the Prince Edward Swimming Pool Committee.

Mr. Rae said the junior Olympic-sized pool, proposed for construction at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute will be built at a total cost of $225,000.

He predicted it can be installed for $300,000 but a ten per cent allowance for inflation and unforseen expenses has been included.

Maintenance of the pool centre will be undertaken by the custodial staff of the high School with costs of operation and maintenance to be divided on a 50-50 basis between the school board and the parks and recreation department.

The operation schedule will include Monday through Saturday and special Sundays as reported by the pool supervision committee.

The pool supervision committee will include the high school principal or his appointee, two school trustees, two members of the parks and recreation committee, one member of County Council, a member of the swimming pool committee and a liaison with the custodial staff to maintain communications.

In outlining costs of the pool Mr. Rae noted a provincial grant of $75,000 is available and a Prince Edward County council grant of $125,000 is anticipated.

Cash and pledges for the project to date total $58,000 leaving $74,000 to be raised in a county-wide campaign.

Empty Car Hits Office

PICTON With income tax returns due shortly there may be a last minute rush to accountants offices but tax consultant Ted Rose today was unprepared for his first driveway customer.

Two plate glass windows in his office at 294 Main St. were shattered at 7 a.m. when a driverless car backed in a head-circle on Main St. hitting the curb.

Phyllis Pomeroy, of Bridge St. Picton, had left the car with the motor running in front of Lipson's Store thinking the vehicle was in park. It had been left in reverse and backed across Main St. striking the tax office.

Damage to the vehicles was estimated at $300. -

Violets Bring Funds For Viet Nam Orphans

HILLIER A Hillier Township housewife has started unique fund drive to assist homeless Vietnamese children.

Mrs. Pearl Roberts has raised more than 1,000 colorful African Violets in all shades and sizes to sell in her effort to collect money for the needy youngsters.

The plants, priced from 50 cents to $2., are a hobby that she has turned to a source of funds for food or medicine.

"I like growing violets and I like children," remarked Mrs. Roberts.

She said she first sold her violets about a year ago to raise money for children in foreign countries who needed foster parents.

Response to her project was excellent and encouraged her to organize the program, this time for Vietnamese orphans.

Mrs. Roberts says all of the money earned from the sale of her plants will be forwarded to the Kuanyin Foundation in Saigon to be used in helping the orphaned children of Vietnam.

Mrs. Roberts noted originally she hoped to adopt a child in Bangladesh but this proved impossible.

Now, she said she feels she can offer assistance through the sale of her violets.

The hundreds of plants grown for sale are thriving in the damp and living rooms of the Roberts home on the old Highway 33, immediately south of the hamlet of Hillier.

Community residents interested in supporting Mrs. Robert's project can inquire about purchasing the plants by calling 399-2306.

Crop Insurance Grows As Input Costs Mount

NORTHPORT — Unpredictable weather and high input costs are encouraging an increasing number of farmers to take out crop insurance, says Walter Pulver, a crop insurance salesman for Prince Edward County.

"Farmers estimate that it will cost more than $100 an acre to plant their corn this spring," remarks Mr. Pulver, "and at those figures, they don't wish to take a chance."

Crops insured under this program include white beans, soy beans, forage seeding, fall wheat, spring grain, corn and vegetable crops. Five hundred and seventy crop insurance contracts were written last year, says Mr. Pulver.

The Picton office of the ministry of agriculture and food reports that 22,000 acres were insured for nearly $3,000,000 during 1974.

Dutch Immigrant Finds New Home in County

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

BETHEL — "I like the people of Prince Edward County — you can't beat them — I wouldn't want to leave this county now for anything."

A Dutch immigrant in 1953, David Doorbos of RR 8, Picton, had never operated a tractor prior to his arrival in Canada. Now one of approximately 23 successful back-hoe operators in the county, Mr. Doorbos enjoys his occupation. A veteran of 17 years, Mr. Doorbos says you have to enjoy the work to do a good job.

"What I like the best about back-hoeing is when the customers call me back for another job. You realize that they are satisfied and this means a lot to me."

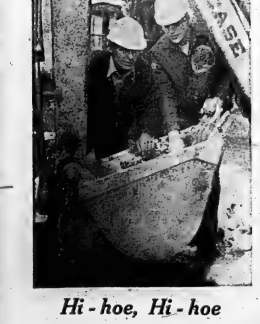
One of the disadvantages, he says, is having to work six days a week to make up for the winter months. A back-hoe is capable of penetrating some frozen ground but is "extremely hard on the machine."

One of the biggest problems facing back-hoe operators, said Mr. Doorbos is the high cost of maintenance and the initial investment of a back-hoe. A new back-hoe costs from about $22,000 to $26,000.

"Very few back-hoe operators in Prince Edward County derive their entire income from back-hoeing," Mr. Doorbos comments. "The machine is there when required, but many have additional pieces of equipment, such as a grader, dump truck or bulldozer."

Because of his fondness for Prince Edward County, Mr. Doorbos confines his jobs to the county proper where "there are enough back-hoe jobs for all 22 of us."

Mr. Doorbos' son, Davis, Jr., has been operating a back-hoe since the age of 12. Now in his final year of high school, he expects to purchase a small bulldozer to assist in his father's business.



David Doorbos (right) is one of 23 backhoe operators in Prince Edward County. Here, the RR 8, Picton resident and his son, David, Jr. prepare for another session's work with a checkup of their backhoe.

REAL ESTATE:

Home Ownership A Cash Resource

Ed. McCleary
J. E. McAllister
Realty Ltd.

Sometimes is everyone's lifetime, for luxury or necessity, there may be a requirement for a large amount of cash. Today's homeowner is probably the best prepared individual to cope with this "need-for-money" problem. His equity in his home is a ready source of cash.

Let's assume he bought his home about 10 years ago for $20,000, and has now reduced his mortgage, to $10,000. Since home values have risen, his house is probably now worth 100,000, which gives him an equity of about $30,000. On a conventional mortgage basis, a bank may loan him 75% of prime, or $80,000. Thus, after paying off his existing $10,000 loan, he would come out with $70,000 cash or about what he paid for his home 10 years ago.

I am not suggesting that everyone run out and refinance their homes. I do point out, however, that another excellent reason for owning a home is the increasing equity produced through rising prices.

Oil Prices Likely to Rise Despite Stalemate at Federal-Provincial Parley

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The failure of the recent first-ministers' conference on oil policy is regrettable—but what did you expect?

The producing provinces, naturally, want something closer to the world price for the oil they sell. In their view, selling crude at $4.50 a barrel is like giving money away.

The consuming provinces, just as naturally, think the price is high enough already, levels, which now are spending 40 per cent of our gross national product.

And Mr. Davis' own government, a couple of days earlier, had brought down the kind of inflationary budget that mother could make.

price rise would cause. For each increase of $1 a barrel, he said, the consumer price index would rise one per cent and 7,400 fewer jobs would be created in Ontario.

That argument got nowhere, after all, who (apart from the people) cares about inflation any more?

The inflationary process is an economic money-making machine for governments at all levels, which now are spending 40 per cent of our gross national product.

And Mr. Davis' own government, a couple of days earlier, had brought down the kind of inflationary budget that mother used to make.

Ontario was on much firmer footing when it presented its figures on what had become of the extra money that consumers have been paying for oil since April 1, 1974, when by government decree the selling price was raised to $6.50 a barrel from $3.80.

Out of the $2.70 increase, Ontario says that $1.73 went to the tyranny of Alberta—the major producer—while 90 cents went into the federal treasury and the other eight cents went to the oil companies.

With the price of oil soaring all over the world, an extra eight cents a barrel would hardly persuade the oil industry to redouble its Canadian exploration efforts. Little wonder that some drilling and exploration teams pulled out of Canada.

Saskatchewan offered the most sensible idea heard at the conference. Premier Blakeney suggested that the selling price be boosted, that the increase be channelled into a publicly-owned Canada Energy Security Fund.

The money in the fund would be invested in the development of new hydrocarbon reserves, and of substitutes for petroleum.

That's the vital need that has been overlooked in the confusion and development must be a systematic and continuous process.

federal-provincial haggling over prices, royalties, taxes, and constitutional rights and privileges.

Unless the rate of exploration success is restored to something like the reasonable level that prevailed before the 1970s, there won't be much left for production left for governments to haggle over a decade from now.

Too many economists have become mesmerized by their own theories, and too many politicians have believed their own speeches.

They have forgotten that the oil and gas business is tough and risky, and that exploration

Teams of trained personnel can't be held together while governments play games with them; first offering incentives, next clamping on restraints.

An oil-price increase is probably inevitable, hard as it may be on millions of consumers.

But by all means let's ensure that the increase doesn't simply add to the swollen treasuries in Edmonton and Ottawa, but instead is earmarked—as Premier Blakeney proposes—for development of essential future supplies.

Help for the Needy

The efforts of a Kingston couple to have food supplies shipped to the starving in Bangladesh is commendable, and it seems that their initiative at last is bearing fruit.

At the same time it is pertinent to mention once again the plight of many people here at home.

On a number of occasions we have referred to the health and housing problems of the native people of Canada. This too has been echoed in a letter to a Kingston newspaper by an Oakville reader.

Peter F. Frank says he has read with concerned interest about Terry Leonard's trial and tribulations in getting food to the starving in Bankladesh. However, the following day he read that about 200 Indian residents of Fort Ware, B.C. face starvation.

It must be said that the problems of the Indians stave as much from government welfare and its attendant sapping of initiative and boredom, as from the fact the white man's materialism is alien to their nature and in any event has passed them by. But that is no excuse for turning a blind eye to the native people.

Again, it could be said many of our pensioners are unable to maintain even a subsistence level because of their sheltered circumstances and the inflation that renders their economic lot even more difficult.

Canada reportedly is quadrupling its contribution to the world food program for 1975, but isn't it a fact that many are underfed, nourished and ill here at home?

Has this occurred moreover to Ontario Premier Davis who suddenly is evidencing an interest in foreign aid? He said recently he was planning to meet with church representatives to discuss the province's participation in foreign aid programs.

Which programs does he have in mind, and who will be the beneficiaries? The public should have answers to such questions. At the same time we should remember the old axiom that "charity begins at home".

Bus Strike

The absence of bus service in Belleville through strike action could cause increasing hardship to pensioners and others unable to pursue their normal routine of work, getting to the stores and so on.

The parties by now should be reaching some kind of settlement. The longer the stoppage lasts, the more the attendant difficulties and dislocation of the public interest.

Civilian Amputees Too

Canada has abut 2,300 living war amputees; but what is not very well known is that there are almost ten times as many civilian amputees.

The figure, according to the War Amputations Key Tag Service is 22,000. Unlike other disabled or handicapped groups in Canada, civilian amputees have no central organization of their own. Those injured in industrial accidents may be assisted through Workmen's Compensation or accident insurance. Many, but by no means all, auto accident victims who lose a leg or arm, are helped by insurance. Thousands of other non-war amputees have to make do on their own, and a surprising number of these are children.

Through their civilian liaison program the War Amputations of Canada organization seeks out and helps civilian amputees. Help includes counselling, advice on artificial limbs and in some cases, the buying of limbs.

Funds for this work come entirely from the annual sale of key tags across Canada which has been under way for the past few weeks.

There are many claims on the pocketbooks of Canadians these days, especially when the needs of underprivileged people overseas is concerned. It is easy to overlook the fact there are many in need of help at home.

As cited above, children are among those requiring help. Teenagers too, such as a 16-year-old like Michael Henry from Lethbridge, a community 60 miles northwest of Calgary. Miss Henry lost her right leg just below the knee in a farm accident when she was ten.

Loss of a limb is a traumatic experience for anyone; but particularly for a young woman; and there are not a few in this category besides Marion Henry. However, they are able to lead relatively normal lives through the work of this organization. It deserves our support.

Viewpoint

Brockville Recorder and Times

Ontario treasurer Darcy McKeough has sounded the warning knell that bigger than usual property taxes can be expected unless municipal councils and school boards do a super trimming job on budgets.

Mr. McKeough told municipal leaders recently the provincial government cannot provide the money the municipalities will need this year. Grants will be limited as the province attempts to rein - in on expenditures. As a result, he told the municipalities they must also cut back on unessentials. Restraint is the key word this year for municipalities which have been relying heavily on the province coming through with increased financial aid each year. It won't be coming this year. Mr. McKeough said the Ontario government is attempting to provide leadership to check inflation and he expresses the hope municipalities would do likewise.

Whereas in a general election, by the majority of the ridings there is a sitting member who is well known to the voters, the election machine 75 spread out and the campaigns and issues tend to be province-wide rather than local.

As for the polls the results have been striking.

But there are two important factors that influence if not announce them.

These are that in 30 years the Liberals have never shown the capacity to mount a good campaign and that in every general election in that time they have dropped sharply from the beginning to the end.

The Immigration Hassle

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You can't say that Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras didn't ask for it — an amusing shuffling of his department, the Trudeau cabinet, and the entire government in all their tender spots.

And perhaps it is only poetic justice that the good-natured, if sharply spoken redskin should have come from one of the Minister's own constituencies in Thunder Bay.

You will remember that in presenting his "Green Paper" on immigration — it hinted that re-imposition of a quota system might not be an altogether bad idea — he invited what he hoped would be a national public debate.

He has been getting some high profile — and flamboyantly exhibitionist — response from blacks, especially Haitians in Canada illegally, picketing his office and blackguarding him as a racist.

This sort of nonsense he can dismiss in the sure knowledge that the vast majority of thinking Canadian taxpayers will ignore it as so much protest-type propaganda. Real and unwelcome intruders.

But the letter from Thunder Bay, aimed as it is at the soft underbelly of government policies, he scarcely can ignore.

Because it is funny, and it is to the point.

It comes from a medical practitioner who, while initially agreed to sign his name and use his office letterhead, might not appreciate public disclosure of his identity.

So he shall remain Anonymous, although it is a pretty safe bet that Mr. Andras knows him and might even include him in his circle of Northern Ontario friends.

He writes:

I think it is a very good idea on your part to solicit the views of Canadians before you formulate your new immigration policy.

Being a taxpayer of considerable sums (what else, the man is a physician) and the medical profession, so read the National Revenue tax statistics, as is the lot of the income tax pole! I thought I should like to put in my two cents.

First of all I don't think that race, creed, color or religion should be at all considered in accepting immigrants as long as they are willing and able to work.

With so many Canadians having been convinced by Prime Minister Trudeau that this work ethic is a lot of baloney, it would seem imperative to replace the work-ethic with some fresh workready blood from abroad.

Of course it might be prudent to give special consideration to postal workers, longshoremen, train handlers and inspectors, airport runway cleaners, railwaymen, teachers, nurses, and bilingual construction workers who wouldn't be afraid to live in Quebec.

If you find it impossible to be impartial and have to give extra points for any particular group perhaps it should be for sterility, thus raring on baby bonuses, reducing controversial abortions and in general striking a blow against the population explosion.

I would, however, caution you against admitting too many veterinarians, the total whose specialty is growing grain.

Considering that grain has been no longer marketable either from Vancouver in the west or Thunder Bay in the east, and that future grain movements could be at best sporadic I would advise admitting only livestock men and cowboys.

Those ready for ranching, cattle could be driven south on the west that is, if Mr. Trudeau ever improves its relations with the United States.

We are no longer to be the breadbasket of the world, better France's loyal cousins and contemporaries — aging generals with Civil War experience.

The latter could be useful, bearing in mind it has been the Soviet Union's practice since in Portugal and in Latin America to have loyal party members in old generals and proved themselves to be leftists in uniform.

A bit of flak came to the outwardly homogeneous Spanish Army with the arrest of two young officers who refused to carry orders, but more important had given rise to a critical study of the Spanish officer class, pending the first such analysis since Franco came to power in 1939.

The forces of the opposition are divided and split, and each pushing its own solution, again typically Spanish and ominously similar to 1936 when left and right could find a political answer only to the devastating Civil War.

Uneasy Times for Spain

By JOHN D. HARRISON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Western Europe's socialist nation these days is France's Spain, if it is indeed still socialist. Spain is the aging and healthy chief of state physically declining while the traditional Spanish forces of left and right seem to be taking enormously historic positions for the change.

What makes the uncertain political future for Spain even more uncertain, is the unfolding of events in next-door Portugal.

For decades, the fascist Peninsula was a secure haven as far as strongmen Salazar of Portugal and Franco of Spain in control were concerned. This was the style of the 40s, 50s and 60s.

But all this has changed. Salazar is long gone, his chosen successor Marcelo Caetano in a Brazilian exile, along with the reformist Portuguese General Antonio Spinola who overthrew him.

Leftwing elements in Portuguese Army, navy and airforce committed to a colonial and confrontationist policy have created a government in Lisbon moving toward Communism.

All this makes the ancient and bitter differences which General Franco's death put on hold in Spain has kept under control and which are now emerging, so that fatalism so typically Spanish, to make a battlefield out of their country again.

On the far right are the still powerful elements of the National Movement, Franco's base of support, but also political component the Falange Party is mustering its ranks for an anticipated leftist orientation from the Spanish labor unions, now in constant and illegal strike positions.

There is the Spanish Army still commanded by General Franco's loyal cronies and contemporaries — aging generals with Civil War experience.

The Army could be counted leaning in mind it has been the force that overthrew fascism in Portugal and in Latin America who have kicked progressive colonial generals and proved themselves to be leftists in uniform.

A bit of flak came to the outwardly homogeneous Spanish Army with the arrest of two young officers who refused to carry orders, but more important had given rise to a critical study of the Spanish officer class, pending the first such analysis since Franco came to power in 1939.

The forces of the opposition are divided and split, and each pushing its own solution, again typically Spanish and ominously similar to 1936 when left and right could find a political answer only to the devastating Civil War.

Bancroft Advisor On Parks Council

BANCROFT — According to Charlie Hunt of Bancroft, his appointment last week to the Ontario Provincial Parks Council is a direct result of "the grassroot people of the area making a reasonable request to the government."

Mr. Hunts appointment to the council was announced by Hasting MPP Clarke T. Rollins who indicated that the council is designed to advise the minister of natural resources on the development of provincial parks, to monitor, to make suggestions on the implementation of the Algonquin Park Master Plan and on hunting ad fishing in a number of other park-oriented matters.

"This is the type of thing that I have been involved in for years," said Mr. Hunt, who credits his appointment to representations made to Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources and to Arthur Wishart, advisor to Premier Davis, by local sportsmen at meeting held in Bancroft and Toronto.

Mr. Hunt will attend the first council meetings in May with firm feelings about the uses that should be made of provincial parks.

"I can honestly say that I don't feel biased against any group," said the new appointee, "there is lots of room in Algonquin Park for all types of users."

Mr. Hunt also feels that the "reasonable" use of wheels to portage a boat in the park and the use of 8-horsepower motors in Algonquin should be considered.

"There are some good points in the Algonquin Master plan about fish management," said Mr. Hunt." A fish biologist has been appointed to do a survey of the fish in the park and there are a lot of factors involved in that. But there are going to have to be a few more restrictions on the fish caught and taken out of the park. I think the emphasis should be on sport fishing not on fish for food."

Although Mr. Hunt's prime interests are in hunting fishing and recreational use of provincial parks, he said," I hope that I will be able to consider all the groups that would use the park. I'm sure that the ordinary people will go along with any reasonable plan."

Library Gets New Look

The Bancroft Public Library Board has been considering a major revamp to the facilities in the municipal building on Flint St. Meeting together on Friday were Barbara Tate, chairman Rea Callaghen, secretary Carla Malusek, Frances Vance and Librarian Bonnie Murdock.

Library Seeks Public Input to Improve Service

BANCROFT — The members of the Bancroft Public Library Board have been grappling for the last several months with the problem of space in the library area of the municipal building on Flint St. in the village.

After considering possible alternate locations such as the old Bell Telephone building, the board, under chairman Rea Callaghan has decided to remain in the present location and to make changes in the organization and scope of the present facilities."

The board has sought the assistance of Barry Robinson of the St. Lawrence Regional Library in Kingston to re-design facilities and to assist with removing unnecessary books from circulation.

In the new revamped set-up, which should be completed by July, the children's area of the library would be moved into the present reference room and a comfortable sitting area would be set up for adults in the main room.

The board has also decided to participate in a study of public libraries throughout the province.

The study is being conducted by the Ontario Provincial Library Council and is designed to "improve Ontario public library service and to find better ways to meet the information needs of the people of the province."

Bancroft Public Library users are invited by the board to mail comments and criticisms and suggestions about the Local library services to the board at Box 127 Bancroft by May 8.

"We would like to know users comments on things like, is it easy to borrow books and materials they need, how often do they use the library, and are they happy with the services offered by the local library board," said the survey material.

"We want to have the answers and comments mailed to us," said Mrs. Callaghan," so that we know how we can improve the present library services."

Fox Rabid

SHARBOT LAKE — A rabid fox has been shot on an area farm north of this community. "We received confirmation today." said Herbert Phelps, a resident of the Armstrong Rd. Mr. Phelps shot the fox after it attacked the family dog. As a result, the dog will have to be quarantined for six months. If it has not contracted rabies, it will be given inoculation against the disease after the incubation period.

No Increase Desired

MARMORA — Bert Gray of the municipal council here says he hopes it will not be necessary to increase water rates to village residents. However, he notes he is concerned about increasing costs in the water system. Mr. Gray says a major portion of the cost involves leaks in watermains and these must be located and repaired soon.

Shannon to Toronto

MARMORA — The village council has authorized Clerk-Treasurer William Shannon to attend the 39th annual conference of municipal clerks and treasurers to be held in Toronto June 15-18.

No Takers

MARMORA — Because the village has received no value or help from previous offers, the municipal council here says there is no point in submitting a list of potential projects to the Crown Valley Conservation Authority for students to be employed in a summer make-work program.

Subsidy Requested

MARMORA — The village council will apply to the provincial ministry of transportation and communications for a $15,000 subsidy for construction work. Approval will mean a similar amount can be used from the village's fund.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

JUDY

Fourteen can be a difficult age. You need the security and love of a family who cares about you and yet you want to be trusted to handle a growing sense of independence.

Judy is 14. For years this sweet-faced young girl was burdened with responsibilities too great for her age. She had the care of four younger children and never had a chance to be a little girl herself. Now Judy needs an adoption home where she can be the youngest or the only child. She doesn't want to lose touch with her brothers and sisters but she realizes that if all five were adopted together she would still try to maintain the mother role.

If that happened, the adopting mother would have trouble winning the children's loyalty and affection and the younger ones would be confused as to who really was in charge. Though usually opposed to the separation of families, the Children's Aid Society feels that in this case a parting would be better for everybody.

Judy is an attractive girl with brown hair, blue eyes, fair skin and freckles. She is in good health, having had successful open heart surgery some years ago. There have been no problems since but she has an annual check-up. Her background is Swedish, English and French Canadian.

Average or perhaps above, Judy is a good student in Grade eight and loves school. She wants to be a nurse.

Judy has a great sense of fair play and gets along well with children of all ages. An active youngster, she enjoys hockey, skating, baseball and swimming. She is interested in poetry, both to read and to write. Religion is important to her.

Judy needs parents who will help her believe that to them she is a very special person and who will understand the importance of her maintaining contact with her younger brothers and sisters.

To inquire about adopting Judy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2E2.

BCVI OPEN HOUSE

Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute will hold an Open House on Tuesday, April 27, from 7 to 10 p.m.

Crafts displays, exhibits, activities of local interest groups, and presentations associated with daily activity at B.C.I. will be offered by the school and its community. Staff and community members will meet over refreshments in the course of the evening.

KINETTES GARAGE SALE

Belleville's Kinettes Club is holding a garage sale April 26 to raise funds for their special charity, the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

From 1 to 5 p.m. at the Kinsmen's Swimming Pool on Dundas Street, the Kinettes will be selling a variety of items, ranging from large pieces of furniture — a television set and beds have been donated to the sale — and household goods. Some handicrafts made by the Kinettes will be sold also, but there will be no used clothes.

The project, for which Judy Belnap is chairman, is the club's "spring cleaning for profit" venture. Their slogan is "Our junk may be someone else's treasure."

LADIES' CLUB

The Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club held its regular meeting recently when Mayor Robin Jeffrey spoke on the downtown core.

Mayor Jeffrey told the women that the appearance of the heart of cities should be a major concern of all persons and she outlined Belleville's plan for renewal which includes apartments, recreational facilities, shopping and businesses as well as multi-level parking.

NURSES

Are nurses submissive? Dr. Josephine Flaherty, a past-president of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, does not think so but says nurses have been regarded by many people as being submissive. "Certainly, Florence Nightingale was not," she told an RNAO chapter meeting here Saturday. "If she was assumi today, she would probably be president of the Ontario Nurses Association."

Ann Landers

Homosexual and Bisexual— There Is a Difference

Dear Ann Landers: Upon reading your column for many years and I'm beginning to wonder if you know the difference between a homosexual and a bisexual.

For the record: Gay people have a definite preference for members of their own sex. Bisexuals go both ways but they usually end up with a member of the same sex.

You seem to have a lot of sympathy for the woman who is used as a cover by a gay. But apparently you are unaware of all the guys who are victimized by bisexuals. Many switch-hitters return to their wives (or husbands) time after time with gay companions. Wives and husbands have legal means of coercion, but gays who become involved with married bisexuals have no legal recourse whatever.

Speaking strictly for the gays, I ask you not to confuse us with the bisexuals who can't make up their minds. I agree—it is a rotten thing for a gay to deceive a woman and use her as a cover, but it is equally rotten for a bisexual to deceive a gay or a butch by using him or her as a new kick and then going back to a husband or a wife.—Den In Evanston

Dear Ev: That whole scene is like playing tennis without a net. It's too far out and totally incomprehensible to me. I'll take your word for it, and thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am still hurting from a bad letter signed "Another Stepdad With A Failure-To-The Neck Kid."

I was raised by a stepdad who was a wonderful father to me. When I was 15 he died and my mother married again. My second stepdad was the pain in the neck.

Now I have a stepson. Because I know what it's like to have both kinds, I am determined that this boy by my husband's first marriage will never feel rejected. He chose to live with his father and me rather than with his natural mother. I couldn't love the boy more if I had given birth to him.

I have every wonderful man and wife stepchildren under their roof will stop for a moment and think of the unwarranted battles that child is fighting. I know because I have been there.

Dear Friend: Thanks for a letter that came straight from the heart. Your husband is lucky to have such an empathetic and compassionate wife. I hope he appreciates you.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column for two years. I started when I was 12. I have written to you at least 10 times but you have never printed any of my letters. All my letters were every bit as interesting as the junky ones that have been reading in the paper lately.

I have decided you are a fake and that you make up the letters yourself. I'll bet you don't even read the ones sent in by the public. If I see that letter in the paper I will die of the shock.—An Unbeliever

Dear Un: Where do I send the flowers?

Sorry if I disappointed you but have you any idea how many letters I receive every day? I can't possibly print even a small percentage. I try my best to select the letters that represent a cross-section of humanity—or the ones others can learn from.

The reason this letter made it is because I received a letter from people who had the same complaint.

ILO Attacks Discrimination

GENEVA (Reuter) — The 125-nation International Labor Organization (ILO) has chosen the International Women's Year to launch a powerful attack yet on discrimination against women.

The world body has come up with the conclusion which women claim to have known for ages—female is throughout the world are over-worked, under-paid and under-valued.

Delegates to the world body's annual conference here next June will be asked to issue a declaration proclaiming the rights of the world's two billion women workers and to draw up a plan of action which would commit member-countries to take specific measures to promote equality.

Officials of the ILO, which groups representatives of governments, employers and workers, said this would represent a major landmark in the fight for equal treatment.

A woman worker's lot has improved over the past 10 years, but she still has a long way to go before she is on a par with her male colleague, they said.

"Today's working woman may earn only half as much as a man in the same job but she sometimes works almost twice as long as her husband each week if her duties in the home are taken into account," an ILO team of experts said.

Average women's wages in manufacturing industries vary between less than 50 per cent—in Japan—to about 83 per cent—in Sweden—of those of men doing the same job, they said.

The team, in a report prepared for the conference debate—said the time is ripe for a full-scale assault on sex discrimination because women are slowly taking a more active role in the world's labor force, of which they make up roughly one-third.

More married women and mothers are working than ever before, more women are taking up part-time employment and yet there still is discrimination which starts in the cradle . . . and is subtle but brutal," the report said.

Ways to restore the balance included better careers for women, better social security, flexibility in working time for mothers, guaranteed re-employment after childbirth, and more child-care services—and more help from husbands in the home, the experts suggested.

One of the pre-requisites of actual equality is "a more equal sharing of the burden of housework and the care of children between men and women," the ILO team said.

The report, which will be a topic of study at the conference, added: "Despite the progress in a number of countries towards a greater sharing of parental responsibilities in the home and of domestic tasks by other family members, the heaviest burden continues to remain with women almost everywhere."

All recent studies on the subject showed the time spent by women, including those with full-time outside jobs, far exceeded that spent by men on domestic labor. "Married women workers with children are the worst victims of this inequity," the team said.

Women tended to start their working lives "with several handicaps including deficient education, vocational guidance and training. Unemployment among women has also risen in some countries.

"In many countries efforts to correct this situation have been largely thwarted by traditions, attitudes and job policies which limit women's work prospects," he said.

Women in developing countries have a particularly tough time because of economic under-development, unemployment and poverty. Rural development policies rarely took practical account of their needs, it thought to prepare them for agriculture and crafts.

"Drudgery in the fields is combined with household drudgery, multiplied by the lack or inadequacy of water and of cooking facilities, and the absence of child-care services," they said.

The report said that the failure of women to receive the same money as men for the same work "is one of the most blatant forms of discrimination."

The general wages situation was improving, however. "There has been wider recognition of the relationship of equal pay to the whole question of equal opportunity and treatment for women, and there still are practical difficulties to be overcome," they said.

"In male-dominated societies women's work is apt, without reason, to be regarded as of less value than that of men. Advancement should be based on individual ability and inclination but it is not," they said.

Teen-ager Enjoys Elders

Dear Doris: I agree with the person who wrote in expressing concern about the thought that is given to the senior citizens.

I am 14 and enjoy talking and meeting with these people. I spend some of my friends agree with V.J. and are willing to give up some of our time to spend with the elderly people and do what they want to do if it means just spending time talking or going out and bowling a couple of games.

We want to be more than just a pen pal. We want to get out and do things with them. After all, where would we be today without them?

Concerned Youths.

Dear Youths: That's a good question. Where would we be? And you can take that in more ways than one.

All young people have certain wise and loving older ones to thank for their start in life, for the wisdom they acquire, and for the love which helps to teach us all the meaning of a good life.

What's more, many mature friends enjoy the conversation and interest of younger people and will respond if they are given half a chance. More power to you!

Dear Doris: Our Senior Citizens' Club needs material for our social afternoons, like the skit The Model T Ford and any other humorous skits or readings.

We are a happy group of Golden Agers; most of us can always see that silver lining regardless of the dark clouds.

The Sackville Kinsmen sponsor our club and have provided us with beautiful warm rooms with cozy kitchens. The members are all young men and are most kind to us.

Young folk are really wonderful, aren't they?

God Bless.

Dear God Bless: I am sending you an assortment of skits and readings, as well as a list of skits and games which are available from us here, for 25 cents each and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your group is a going concern. Yes, young people are wonderful. When they see a cause they throw themselves into it heart and soul; and more and more they are coming to recognize the assets and courage of some of our older citizens — the people who have helped to build this land.

Confidential to Thinking Big: If more people were "thinking big" a great many more creative efforts would be made — and a great many more successes talked of! Most of us feel a bit timid about reaching for the moon.

If you have had an unusual experience and feel a creative urge to write it down, you are justified in making the effort — in spite of your own doubts of your ability to put thoughts on paper.

You will find the first paragraph most difficult, so just write what comes into your head. By the time you are on your third, you will be into your subject enough to be less self-conscious.

Teacher of Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has named Robert G. Heyer, a St. Paul, Minn., junior high school teacher, as 1975 Teacher of the Year and presented him with a crystal apple in a White House ceremony. Heyer, in turn, gave the president a wire sculpture of two apple trees made by his Grade 9 students.

DESIGN 834-005
Main and Upper — 1154 sq. ft.

Lower Floor — 580 sq. ft.

Four levels of practical and efficient living space are found in this attractive split level home. There are three bedrooms on the upper level and a bonus of an extra bedroom or study at ground level, with a separate entry.

The kitchen, dining area and well-lighted living room are on the main level. The full basement under this area includes the utilities and space for a king-sized recreation room. The laundry, washroom, den or fourth bedroom and garage are at ground level.

The four levels offer a convenient layout for a growing family. Efficient use of the building volume should achieve maximum economy of construction and the home will fit a 40 foot lot with ample side yard space.

While best suited to a lot with a wide side slope, the house can be built on a flat lot by using excavated material to raise the grade in front of the living room. The exterior is stone (or it can be brick) veneer with horizontal siding as the house is suitable for any type of heating.

Plans for Design 834-005 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

Alberta's Homes for Aged Still Discover New Goals

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty years ago Alberta began pioneering a system of nursing homes and homes for the aged.

Direct community involvement, provincial funding and an emphasis on self-sufficiency were key features of the scheme, which evolved from a few scattered lodges into what may be the largest construction program in the country.

But government planners say care for the elderly still is in "an evolutionary stage."

"One of our big problems is that we're pioneers in this field" said Ben Johnston, a director with the Alberta Health Services Commission, "AHSC" which administers nursing care.

His said increasing needs of the elderly are leading to new goals in programming and community involvement.

"At one time people were content to place relatives in institutions and leave them there. Now the public is taking more interest."

Alberta's network of housing for the elderly began in 1958 when the province agreed to pay capital costs for 50 lodges.

Since then, the province has paid for more than 100 lodges accommodating about 12,000 residents—believed to be the most on a per-capita basis in the country. In 1971 the lodges were supplemented with self-contained town houses and four-plexes for persons able to care for themselves.

The lodges are run by local-elected district boards which handle daily operations, financing and admissions.

Residents are charged $115 to $130 a month for self-contained units and a minimum of $32 for lodge accommodation, depending on ability to pay. Deficits are picked up by municipal taxpayers.

Linked to the development of housing was establishment of the Alberta nursing-home plan in 1966—the first of its kind in Canada.

Under it, Alberta assumed responsibility for those not well enough to take advantage of the housing scheme. Admittance qualifications are based on need and there is no age limit.

Nursing-home patients are charged $3 a day for standard-ward accommodation $5 for a semi-private and $8 for a private ward, the government paying a subsidy of $11.25 a day for each patient.

The province originally took over private homes on a contract basis, later restricting expansion to non-private and voluntary organizations. The government assumed complete financial responsibility until it became eligible for some federal assistance this year.

Planners feel they are entering a new era in care for the elderly.

"In the past, many senior citizens had few expectations and demands," said Tim Cranfield, project manager with the Alberta Housing Co.p.

"Now we're finding that senior-citizens housing is being sought by people closer to age 65 than 75. These people are used to having more things."

Improved structural design, public education, community involvement and better in-home programming are seen as priorities.

Structural design and location of housing has already undergone dramatic change, with each home individually designed and often built in the centre of town.

"Before, private homes were pushed off in the back of the town," said Mr. Johnston. "Now they are usually in the centre, so that interaction with the community increases."

Many homes provide self-contained shopping malls, banks, hairdressers, outdoor gardens, barbecue pits, and allow-ances for pets.

John Kitchen, a resource co-ordinator with AHSC, said residents "are encouraged to continue their former activities in the community as much as possible."

Planners say enriched programming within the homes is a key area of development.

"The evolution of Alberta's nursing-home system has children born out of reformist," said Joan Gales, a nursing consultant with AHSC.

"Today we are better able to assess the type of care individuals require and more emphasis is being placed on reactivation and diversional activities."

Such programming includes occupational therapy based on the learning of new skills and social activities such as wheelchair dancing, card parties and even beerfests. Some homes have set up self-governments, with one group raising funds for a school bus "to chauffeur them all over the country."

The development of care for the elderly in the provinces has not been without problems. Government officials say there are many homes which lack desired facilities and local feelings still block acceptance of large homes in areas where other forms of housing would be too costly.

Mr. Johnston said planners still are battling the concept of institutions for the elderly as places "where people go to die." Public education and acceptance of old age is seen as "the real key" to providing a satisfactory lifestyle for the elderly.

Bundle Lodge in Calgary, part of Alberta's network of senior citizens' housing, was opened in December, 1971, to provide housing for 43 persons in lodge-type accommodation. About 100 lodges have been built in the province since Alberta got needed housing for the elderly in the 1950s. (CP Photo)

Device Seen Answer To Towering Infernos

OTTAWA (CP) — When it comes to fires in tall buildings the old sound-the-alarm-and-run tactic of evacuating a building is inadequate, The solution may lie in better communication, a

A voice communication console, now mandatory in all multi-storey office buildings under the National Building Code, is designed to enable two people to call the fire department, warn workers, reroute them around blocked stairwells, cope with faults in their own fire-alarm system and even help bed-t-attack victims leave the building.

The Dominion Fire Commissioner's office here offers a three-day course to volunteers that instructs them on how to manage the communication system, said he has found women's voices are preferable to men's because "a booming voice coming out of nowhere" can be disconcerting.

"With women the voice is constant and they don't get excited."

Instructions are issued to workers on each floor by a system of speakers, on the principle that the sound of the human voice is more informative and reassuring in an emergency than a screaming alarm.

The fire commissioner's office expects by the end of 1975 to have trained enough people to staff the 50 federally owned or leased buildings across the country having more than 12 storeys with consoles and operators. So far, 18 buildings, mostly in Ottawa, have the units.

Assistant fire commissioner Stuart Hornby said the system is necessary to handle the volume of traffic in an emergency.

"In a high-rise office building, if everyone wanted to leave the building at the same time, it would simply be impossible. To avoid panicking, this is the only way to evacuate an office building effectively."

Six persons are trained in each building to operate the console and three to operate the phones. In an emergency only one operator and one person on the phones is required but the backups are available if necessary.

There will also be fire monitors who will stand by the floors for their department. Public address systems on each floor will advise the recommended action in an emergency.

Mr. Duncan said the system costs about $2,000 for each floor but it pays for itself in saved man-hours after just a few alarms.

He said under the old system up to three hours is required to evacuate 2,000 employees, give the all-clear and get everyone back to work.

Grants Help Ease New Home Cost

By COLIN BRUCE ?

Canada's senior governments are trying to make it easier for first-time home buyers.

Last week the provincial government, inside the most recent announcement of $1,500 grants to first-time home-buyers — a budget gesture too—addressed by some as both a building trade incentive and a forerunner to a spring election.

Under the title Ontario Home Buyers Grant Program the scheme gives the purchaser an immediate $1,000 and provided the buyer remains an occupant of the same home, the province makes two consecutive, annual payments of $500.

Bob Marcotte, president of the Quinte Home Builders Association said Monday, "this is a great scheme . . . one that buyers should be knocking down doors to get at."

A federal program, announced a year ago, provides $700 grants for first-time buyers moving into new homes only.

If the home buyer is moving into an old home, he can get an immediate $1,000," said Mr. Marcotte. "If he's moving into a new home, he can apply for both programs for a total of $1,500."

Over two years, the new home buyer will get another $500 from the provincial kitty, the total grant $2,002, said the association president.

"This is great news for everybody," said Mr. Marcotte.

The grants are not necessarily for the downpayment but can be used for anything at all, he said.

In the provincial scheme, a housing unit can include condominiums, mobile homes . . . anything that represents permanent living accommodation with sleeping and cooking areas.

Any home buyer older than 18 can apply for the grant provided the home is purchased after April 8 and before Dec. 31, 1975.

Applications for the grant system now are being accepted and further information is available by called toll free, Zenith 8-5000.

Higher Service Costs Mean Small Education Deficit

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education Monday night learned the consumer price index does not cover entire item and that the cost of services and supplies for the board rose 19.5 per cent last year.

Belleville chartered accountants, Wilkinson and Company, handed the board its year-end financial report which revealed the board overspent $54,228 on a $26.6 million budget in 1974.

Stirling trustee Donald Williams congratulated the board for being within 2 per cent of its budget. The small overexpenditure is considered normal and is compensated by later tax payments from the contributing municipalities.

Mr. Williams asked why the cost of services and supplies had jumped almost $200,000 in one year. Other budget items, including salaries and replacement costs, remained relatively constant and showed little increase.

Superintendent of business Ken Wormald said the increase was due to an above normal inflation rate in some areas of supplies, including paper products and construction costs. He also said the cost of light, power, gas and water has also increased dramatically in one year.

He said these items have increased in price more rapidly than many of the items on the consumer price index. The board spent about $2.5 million in 1973 compared to $3 million last year. Inflation again is expected to increase the costs of these services and supplies this year.

Mr. Williams asked the business section to compile a list of services and supplies which contribute the escalating costs. At the meeting auditors informed the board the books were in order and that elementary and secondary schools received their proportionate amount of funds.

City Extends Contract With Humane Society

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City hall has shifted gears — for now — in its drive to replace Ontario Humane Society (OHS) animal control services.

Instead of immediately organizing its own controls, city council Monday night decided to retain the OHS for the rest of the year while it more thoroughly explores city-run alternatives.

The decision — coming less than three weeks before the OHS contract runs out — brought a prologue of criticism for the society's management from one city councillor.

The criticism was fired by Ald. Stu Meeks at OHS manager Tom Hughes, who had been attempting to negotiate a new — costlier — contract with city hall. Mr. Hughes went before council two weeks ago to warn that a city-operated service might not only draw public criticism for its inadequacy but prove a discomfiter in the long run.

"I have absolutely no faith in that man whatsoever and I think he's leading this city up the garden path," charged Ald. Meeks.

He claimed the city was helping pay for services being extended by the OHS outside Belleville boundaries.

As an alternative to OHS animal controls, city engineer Wilbur Purcell had investigated construction of a shelter on city-owned property and contracting out dog control services. For the project he had secured approved building plans from the provincial agriculture and food ministry.

Last night, the city manager had proposals to council locating the animal shelter on Wallbridge Cres., adjoining the public works yards. The firm of Morden-Guthrie was suggested to prepare specifications, costing $600.

Ald. Ben Corke was among councillors questioning the expenditure until the city knew exactly the ramifications of a city-run service.

Mr. Purcell said council has not been on record on deciding whether to operate control services would cost. This would be contracted after tenders are called.

But, it was felt one warden with 4 vehicle could do the job satisfactorily.

Council, said Mr. Purcell, had to distinguish between OHS services and the dog-control operation the city was contemplating.

Ald. Paul Russell said the proposed city-run shelter at times might not be able to accommodate all the dogs caught. He felt as yet there were "just too many questions" on the issue.

The OHS cancelled its contract last year when it disovered it was facing a deficit in its Quinte branch shelter west of the city. It proposed a new per capita agreement raising its rates from 75 cents to $1, (about $25,000 on the city's present population) then $1.10 in July and $1.25 next January. One fear around the council was a change in the notice of termination from six months to 90 days. But, at the last council meeting, Mr. Hughes had hinted this was negotiable back to six months and suggested the city try OHS services for another year.

Ald. Wally Dever estimated last night retaining OHS services for the remainder of the year would cost another $1,800.

Drivers Sought

Belleville's Central Volunteer Bureau is looking for drivers to donate time to help senior citizens move about the city during the city transit strike, now in its second week.

Ruth Burrows, director of the bureau, said Tuesday "we're getting more calls than we have drivers."

The strike is particularly difficult for the senior citizens who are not using our service for shopping but to meet medical appointments," said Mrs. Burrows.

Any drivers interested in donating time are asked to call 962-1353.

Council Remembers Years of City Service

City councillors Monday paid tribute to one of their former members in hospital illness—suddenly had to quit civic service.

He is Arnold Orr, for many years widely known as an educator in the city before taking up municipal office on professional retirement.

Mr. Orr was principal of Belleville Collegiate for a decade before becoming a Hastings County education superintendent.

When he retired he bid for council and was three from 1964 to 1973 — running high in the polls in election until sudden heart problems unexpectedly forced his resignation. One of his appointments was member and chairman of the Quinte Planning Board at a crucial time in its formative years.

Recognition of his service came as Mayor Robin Jeffrey presented him with a plaque for an "outstanding municipal servant." She called the award" only a token — that represents what all in this city would like to say."

Ald. Orr said his enforced retirement left him feeling "I was leaving a job unfinished."

More Talks Planned
Transit Strike Now in Second Week

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Talks between the transit commission and 25 striking drivers and mechanics are expected to resume this week. The Intelligencer learned today.

Marylea Burtt, chairman of the commission, said during a telephone interview that she had been talking with union negotiators and that a meeting has been agreed to.

No date or time has been set for the renewal of talks.

Mrs. Burtt said she will contact her two commission members immediately to go over the developments and come to some agreement on meeting arrangements.

Talks between the two groups broke down and a strike called April 6 with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers demanding a one-year contract with an across the board increase of $1 an hour and the commission offering an immediate 75 cents an hour with a subsequent 18 cent-an-hour raise effective July 1.

Lawrence St. Pierre, chief union negotiator, said during a telephone interview Tuesday, "It's a very intelligent move to get back together."

"We looked like bloody fools bargaining table and see if our minds can be changed."

"We've taken a serious look over our demands . . . the meeting must be a meaningful one," said Mr. St. Pierre.

Deficit Reported

Low-rental family and senior citizens housing projects ran up an operating deficit of $441,150 in 1974.

Belleville pays $23,000 as its share of the cost, the bulk of which is subsidized by federal and provincial governments.

During the year there were 219 family units and 163 senior citizen apartments in operation.

Deficit on each unit totalled $1,181.

Under the shared-subsidy agreement with senior governments the city pays 7.5 per cent of operation losses.

The federal share of the deficit totalled $230,250 while the province's Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) pays almost $187,926.

Collection on Display

City council Monday night agreed the Wellington Community Museum could borrow part of the valuable collection on the history of lighting owned by the Hastings County Museum.

The collection traces the evolution of lighting from ancient to recent times.

Council agreed on the move after Ald. Stu Meeks pointed out local museums have a reciprocal program of display exchanges.

Free Meal for Visitors?

A suggestion that Belleville sponsor a meal for visiting conventioneers prompted no action from city council Monday night.

The request came from the Association of Certified Survey Technicians and Technologists of Ontario, who plan their annual meeting at the Four Seasons Hotel June 6-8.

"We don't get into this type of sponsorship unless it's a conference we invite ourselves. " said Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Program Seeks Funds

A summer project for preschoolers in northeast Belleville is seeking community assistance.

The program, Hillcrest's Head Start For Preschoolers, is being partially funded by a federal Opportunities for Youth Grant.

However, project representative Alanna Watson, wrote council the program will need an additional $600.

Mayor Jeffrey told council the original grant for supplies has been cut funding.

The project, to accommodate up to 40 youngsters a day recommended by local education and community volunteer officials, is aimed at developing preschool skills.

Council tabled the request for two weeks.

Merchants Polled on Hours

A request from a Front St. merchant to exempt bicycles sales and service shops from general store hours regulation was laid over Monday by city council.

Home Hobbyists Can Reduce Building Costs

Do it yourself home improvements pays big dividends in both dollars and satisfaction to the handyman, says Gary MacDonald, manager of Arthur A. Ellis and Son Ltd.

Mr. MacDonald said as labor costs continue to increase, more and more home owners are turning to the use of their hand with a hammer and saw.

"Our home hobbyist business has more than doubled in the last four years," he said.

"You must remember that every project you consider, whether you construct it or you'll be talking about the same on one of that for labor," said Mr. MacDonald.

"Anyone who is even half handy can cut his cost of home improvement by a half."

Belleville and area residents will have a first hand opportunity to see what is available to the home handyman at the Quinte Home Builders Association Home Show to be held in Ben Bleecker auditorium beginning April 17 and continuing through the weekend.

"About 25 per cent of our business is from the home owner who has realized the money he can save by doing the job himself," said Mr. MacDonald.

Keegan Urges Plain Talk

Are people turning off on city hall because council reports are too technical?

Ald. Arthur Keegan says he fears so.

In fact, he claimed Monday night, the wording of many items on city council's agenda is couched in such official language — with no explanations — that people cannot understand council proceedings.

The councillor based his views on the fact that council meetings are broadcast and it's therefore difficult for listeners to grasp details from the legal terminology or resolutions, bylaws and other proposals.

"I'm trying to create more interest in the listening public," protested the councillor as colleagues pointed out council's agenda also carried explanations of all recommendations.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said "there's no effort on the staff's part to disguise information. It's just the contrary," he said.

The remarks were prompted after Ald. Keegan questioned the exact location of parkland on Cascade Blvd. which council declared a community centre to qualify for provincial grants.

Moped Mishap Injures Girl

The second Belleville resident in a week has been injured in a traffic accident involving a moped a motorized bicycle.

City Police Chief Douglas Cronshie said today a 13-year-old youth was injured at 6:45 p.m. Monday in a parking lot on Pine St. when the moped she was riding was in collision with a parked car.

The girl, whose name was not released, is listed in fair condition with mouth injuries at Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston following her transfer from Belleville General Hospital.

A Belleville women suffered minor injuries during the weekend when the moped she was riding left a service station lot on North Front St. and was in collision with a car.

Bureau Request for Funds Referred to City Manager

The Citizens Bureau now ready to re-open its consumer-advocate service in Belleville — Monday night asked city council to consider a $4,700 grant.

The agency, first launched in late 1972, said it needs the money to fill out a $12,000 federal grant so it can meet its projected operating costs.

Council referred the request of the city manager's department for consideration in city hall's budget — debate on which is expected later this month — after hearing from Vera Heimbach, vice-chairman of the bureau's board of directors.

Mrs. Heimbach said the bureau expects to return its operations next month to Belleville from Trenton — where it moved last year in order to keep operating with a federal Local Initiatives Program grant awarded the Trenton-based Quinte District Labor Council.

Mrs Heimbach said later the bureau now has secured office premises on Coleman St. north of West Bridge St.

Tam O'Shanter Puts Emphasis on Hockey

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

Twenty-two-year-old Gary Green of Guelph, executive director of Tam O'Shanter Hockey School, is a young man with a mission.

A graduate of Guelph University, Green does not believe that a quality hockey school needs is spice its menu with activities unrelated to hockey.

Young people attending Tam '75, with headquarters at Albert College and on-ice instruction at Trenton Community Gardens, will find the emphasis is on hockey.

"We believe that students at our school deserve every possible chance to obtain as much hockey knowledge and training as we can supply," states Green.

"It is our intention to combine discipline with enjoyment, keeping in mind that there is a time for work and a time for play.

"Hockey instruction is No. 1 in our program," he emphasizes.

A typical day at Tam '75 will begin at about 7.30 a.m.

Following a 15-minute lecture, 90 minutes of on-ice instruction is on the schedule.

Returning from the arena, the young students will attend lectures at Albert College followed by a break for soccer or swimming.

A conditioning program is also an important part of activities. Each student will have a separate program, depending on his age, size, strength and ability.

Another 90-minute instruction session on the ice is planned in the afternoon and later in the day, lectures, films, opportunities to quiz the instructors and free time round out the day activities.

"We're also offering something different in the night lecture, during which the boys will learn the importance of obtaining an education," adds Green.

"We definitely will not be pushing pro hockey as a career," says Green. "Only pro game is not all roses and wine and we'll be making that plain to the boys."

Instructors with the school are Trenton Golden Colts Campbell, Toronto Toros' Jim Turkiewicz, Jack Valiquette who played for Oklahoma City Blazers during the 1974-75 season and is expected to move up with the parent Toronto Maple Leafs for the 1975-76 campaign, Jim Jones, Vancouver Blazers and Rick Jodoin, Quinte Bay Checkers.

Since Green believes in giving separate instruction to goaltenders, defencemen and forwards, he has lined up qualified instructors to handle those individual duties.

Goaltending instruction will be the responsibility of David Monte, a 23-year-old who is Kansas City Scouts' property, and Steve Broyles.

Campbell and Turkiewicz will instruct defencemen and the forwards will receive instruction from Valiquette, Jones and Jodoin.

"Since we'll be able to provide individual instruction, everyone will be kept busy during the on-ice sessions," Green explained.

There is an extra local flavor to Tam this year. Belleville's Peter Fleming and Trenton's Ted Brown, both with extensive hockey background at the minor league and college level, are on the school's staff.

"We're making a special effort to bring in more boys in the older age groups this year and if they contact us, we'll try to fit them in to the program at times when it would not conflict with their work commitments," offered Green.

Day school rates for boys who will not require boarding, is $5 per week.

Deadline for registrations is May 1.

Complete details can be obtained by contacting Tam O'Shanter Hockey School, care of Albert College, Belleville.

The school will run from July 20 to August 20.

McCorquodale Finally Number One

When you're second best you try harder That was exactly what Finlay "Corky" McCorquodale did at Quinte Curling Club on the weekend.

With that little extra effort, Corky skipped his mixed rink, comprised of his wife, Heiei, vice, and Eve and Bill Spinelli, lead and second, respectively, to the championship of the Bay of Quinte Curling Club Mixed Closing Bonspiel.

Two weeks ago Dr. McCorquodale skipped a men's rink to the consolation title of the men's club championship. In the same week he had to settle for consolation honors in the mixed club championship.

There were no seconds for Corky last week though as he walked through five rinks on his way to the title. In all, there were 48 rinks participating.

Frank Morrell was runner-up in the first event. He finished with five wins and a loss, Losing only to McCorquodale. Jean Sisler was vice of the rink and Nick and Dot Banuk were second and lead.

Symposium Is Popular Everywhere but Here

Tam O'Shanter Hockey School's special symposium for coaches, scheduled for the Four Seasons Hotel in Belleville, July 27-August 2, has already reached the halfway mark in enrolment.

But Gary Green, Tam O'Shanter executive director, is puzzled by the fact that of the 100 registrations on file to date, only one is from the Bay of Quinte area.

"We have one Belleville resident registered," said Green, "and it's hard to understand the meagre response from this district when one considers that the symposium will feature some of the most knowledgeable men in hockey."

Among those leading their knowledge to the symposium are Philadelphia Flyers' coach Fred Shero; Team Canada '74 coach Billy Harris who is now associated with Toronto Toros; Junior A Peterborough Petes' coach Roger Neilson; Austrian National Team coach in 1974, Paul Carney; sports psychologists Dr. Richard Loseth and John Marshall, and physical fitness expert Peter Elson.

Father David Bauer will also be in attendance and while he will be not of the lecturers, he will take part in panel discussions.

Information on the symposium is available from Tam O'Shanter Hockey School, care of Albert College, Belleville.

Reid's Takes QHL Crown

Injuries and vacation commitments depleted the ranks of Reid's Dairy of the Quinte Hockey League for much of the final playoff series grith pennant-winning Cornerstone Builders but today, the Dairymen have the championship. Extended to the full five games by a determined Cornerstone squad which battled from behind after dropping the first two games of the six-point final, Reid's said it in impressive style, Monday night at Memorial Arena.

Moe Hunter scored the only goal the winners needed, early in the game, and Lucas went on to score later in the game in a row and put it out of reach of Cornerstone.

Ralph Boomhower was in on three of the scoring plays, getting assists assists — Carl Boomhower, Al Ray and Jim MacKay.

The winners took three of five minor penalties handed out and add slide for a five-minute fighting major.

Money Question Unanswered

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Olympic Association (COA) wound up its annual meeting during the weekend without resolving the key issue of assistance to athletes preparing for the 1976 Olympics.

"It will require six or eight weeks to assimilate and analyze what we have learned," said Lee Crowell, COA executive director.

The crux of the problem stems from a decision taken by the International Olympic Committee last November to permit broken-time payments to be made to athletes forced to take time off from their employment to train.

During the three-day meeting which wound up with an extra executive session last Sunday, plans were laid for 400 Canadian athletes to attend the Pan-American Games in Mexico City in October and the Winter and Summer Olympics next year.

Abby Hoffman of Toronto, a veteran international runner presented a plea for broken-time payments for the athletes.

She said 300 questionnaires had been sent out to determine exactly what athletes-to-training needed in order to survive. A total of 150 replies were received.

"From what Abby showed us, there is a gap between what the athletes feel they need and what we felt was required," Crowell said. "This is why we now have to review and reevaluate before we can make any definite moves."

Although no final decision was reached, it was learned that the executive emerged from the meeting with an "approval in principle that financial support should be steered to athletes.

L.A. Star Picks Up Where He Left Off Last Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Catcher Joe Ferguson of Los Angeles Dodgers recalled the bases-loaded jam that Mike Marshall had pitched out of and declared: "That's when he's at his best."

Marshall's work helped the Dodgers beat Cincinnati Reds 5-2 in the Los Angeles home baseball opener Monday after three season-opening losses in Cincinnati.

Elsewhere on a slim major league schedule, Chicago Cubs beat Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2, Philadelphia Phillies edged New York Mets 4-3, San Diego Padres defeated San Francisco Giants 3-1 and Oakland A's beat Kansas City Royals 3-2 in the only American League contest.

The Dodgers-Reds final score was 5-3 and it was the same in the eighth inning when Cincinnati had three runs on base, one out and the power-hitting Johnny Bench and Tony Perez coming to bat.

Marshall, the Cy Young Award winner as the best National League pitcher last season, struck out Bench and, after going 3-2 on Perez, got him to hit into a force play ending the inning.

Ron Cey and Jimmy Wynn hit homers for the Dodgers off Cincinnati starter Jack Billingham in the first of the four-game series at Los Angeles.

In relief of Doug Rau, Marshall blanked the Reds for 2 3-3 innings.

"It's always a struggle when you face Rau," Marshall said after the game. "I really had my work cut out for me, but I'm tickled pink whenever I'm out there. There's no greater thrill than to face the best in the world at whatever you're doing."

Marshall used his assortment of screwballs plus the fast ball.

Rick Rosachel, Oscar Zamora and Darold Knowles teamed up on a six-hitter and pitched the Cubs over the previously unbeaten Pirates, who had been the only unbeaten team in the majors. It was the Cubs' fourth consecutive triumph since Dale only loss to Pittsburgh on opening day in Chicago.

Jerry Morales slashed Reuschel to a 1-0 lead in the second inning when he homered off Bob Moose. The Cubs chased Moose with three runs in a fourth-inning spurt that included four singles plus a double by Steve Swisher.

Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt greeted reliever Jerry Cram with a leadoff home run in the ninth inning, capping a late rally that ruined the major league pitching debut of New York's Randy Tate. Tate breezed into the eighth with a three-hitter and a 3-0 lead. But he walked Larry Bowa with two out, Willie Montanez doubled for one run and Greg Luzinski tied the score with his fourth home run of the young season.

San Diego pitcher Sonny Siebert, Dave Tomlin and Bill Greif combined to hold back the Giants while doubles from Bobby Tolan and John Grubb led the Padres scoring.

Tolan delivered a run-scoring double off Jim Barr in the first inning. The Padres made it 2-0 in the sixth on Grubb's double and Dave Winfield's single and scored again in the eighth on two singles and a sacrifice.

Oakland's Ken Holtzman pitched a six hitter with last-out help from Rollie Fingers and Ted Kubiak drove in the winner with a double and a single. Kubiak doubled home a run in the second inning and singled in the tiebreaker in the sixth off Paul Splittorff.

The A's picked up what proved to be the winning run in the ninth on Phil Garner's single, a stolen base by Allen Hopkins and Claudell Washington's single. That nullified a Kansas City run in the bottom of the ninth.

Nicklaus Closes In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' victory in the Masters during the weekend helped him close in on the lead among golf's season money winners, according to figures released by the Professional Golfers' Association Monday.

Nicklaus' $40,000 triumph gave him $149,243 for the year and left him just over $200 back of leader Johnny Miller, who has $149,476.

Miller earned $21,250 at the Masters for his second-place tie with Tom Weiskopf, one stroke back of Nicklaus. Weiskopf remains third on the earnings list with $112,488.

Bob Murphy is fourth with $79,739, followed by Lee Trevino, $75,585; Hale Irwin, $72,402; Al Geiberger, $68,545; Tom Kite, $64,816; Gene Littler, $63,944, and John Mahaffey, $58,277.

Kelly Predicts Long Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs' Red Kelly predicted that Philadelphia Flyers will find them a tougher opponent in tonight's second game of the National Hockey League quarter-final playoffs.

The Flyers took a 6-3 victory in the best-of-seven series opener Sunday night but the Leafs claim they were at a disadvantage because they had just finished a two-game first-round victory last Friday at Los Angeles while Philadelphia had a week off due to the bye they won by taking the Patrick Division title.

Toronto coach Red Kelly pointed out that the first-round playoff had wrapped up a schedule of seven games in 10 days for the Leafs and the travelling back and forth to Los Angeles had also taken a lot out of his players.

But Monday's day off, except for a 30-minute practice, gave the Leafs a chance to catch their breath and now they feel ready, said Kelly.

"I think we've overcome our weariness," said Kelly, who then predicted the Leafs will force the Flyers through a long series.

"They know what's needed to beat the Flyers and I know the series will be a long one."

The other three quarter-finals also resume tonight with Vancouver Canucks facing the Canadiens at Montreal, New York Islanders meeting the Penguins in Pittsburgh and Buffalo Sabres playing host to Chicago Black Hawks.

Montreal, Pittsburgh and Buffalo each won the opening game Sunday to take command of their series.

After tonight's action, the visiting teams become the home teams for the next two games. The third game in all four series is set for Thursday but the schedule is not complete for the fourth games which will be played either Saturday or Sunday.

Tonight's Vancouver-Montreal game will be televised on the CBC national network while the CBC's southern Ontario network will televise the Toronto-Philadelphia contest.

Montreal defenseman Serge Savard has predicted that the Canadiens will sweep the Canucks out in four games.

The Canucks haven't beaten the Canadiens in the five years they've been in the NHL. In 38 games, Vancouver has earned three ties and nothing else.

Chicago coach Billy Reay is confident his Black Hawks will improve on their opening performance in Buffalo. "I'm not worried," he said. "If we can play as well as we did Sunday, we can win Tuesday night".

Chicago looks to goalie Gary Inness for another strong game in hopes of heading for Uniondale, N.Y. the Islanders' home, with a 2-0 series lead.

"All the reports say he's bad," Islanders defenceman Dennis Potvin said of Inness. "He's supposed to be bad on the high shots, bad on the low shots, easy to beat. But we play against him and we can't beat him."

Celtics Shoot Down Rockets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Havlicek, Boston Celtics' elder statesman, felt "rejuvenated" and his teammates must have felt the same in making a whipping boy of the upstart Houston Rockets.

The Rockets, fresh from eliminating New York Knicks in an opening-round upset, hoped they'd catch the Celtics stale after an eight-day layoff since the end of the National Basketball Association regular season.

The Celtics, led by Havlicek, quickly dispelled any such ideas and, after a sluggish start, rolled to a 123-106 victory over Houston in Monday's opening game of their best-of-seven Eastern Division semi-final playoff.

In Monday's other semi-final encounter, Golden State Warriors beat Seattle SuperSonics 125-96.

In the American Association's Western Division semi-finals, San Antonio beat Indiana 123-117 to cut Indiana's lead in that best-of-seven to 3-2 while Denver won its series 4-2 with a 115-113 decision over Utah.

Havlicek, appearing in playoffs for the 11th time in leading up his 12th year with the Celtics, scored 30 points, grabbed five rebounds and had nine assists. With 3.211 points in 126 playoff games, he trails only Jerry West, Elgin Baylor and Wilt Chamberlain among the all-time scoring leaders in NBA post-season play.

"We were rejuvenated," the "Guys like (Don) Nelson, (Paul) Silas and myself welcomed the layoff because of our age. I think others like Dave Cowens also came back fresher even though we practise hard."

Golden State's Rick Barry scored 39 points, had 19 assists and five steals to lead the Pacific Division champion Warriors past Seattle.

The Warriors' freshness showed in the second quarter when they made 76 per cent of their field goal attempts to outclass the tired Sonics, who came off a tough first-round series with Detroit Pistons.

All That Glitters Not Always Gold

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

On paper, Montreal Juniors have a better hockey club than Laval Nationals.

Unfortunately for the Juniors, Quebec Major Junior Hockey League games are not played on paper and Montreal finds itself on the brink of elimination in their semi-final series against the upstart Nationals.

"I only have four or five good players on my team," said Laval coach Jacques St. Jean earlier this week. "But I have 19 big hearts on the ice. We're a very poor team on paper and Montreal's a bigger, better team."

The Nationals, who qualified as a wild card team for the playoffs, won their third straight game against Montreal Monday night, taking a 4-1 verdict to move into a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven series which continues Wednesday at the Montreal Forum.

Meanwhile in Chicoutimi, Sherbrooke Beavers wrapped up their semi-final set against the Sagueenens in four straight with an 8-2 win.

Montreal, second-place finishers in the West Division, won the opening game of their series 3-1 at the Forum, but then lost 5-4 in overtime in Laval and 8-7 back at the Forum in the third game.

Monday night, a goal by Marc-Andre Duhamel at 13:17 pulled the Juniors into a 4-4 tie, but just more than two minutes later, Jean Trottier broke the deadlock with his first of two goals. His second goal came with 23 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Yvon Vautou, Michel Bossy, Denis Roy and Yves Preston were the other Laval marksmen in the game watched by 4,800 fans.

Michel Lachance, Richard Gousseau and Pierre Mondou were the other Montreal scorers.

Laval goaltender Robert Sauve was outstanding once again as he blocked 43 shots while Montreal's, Benoit Pereault turned aside 25.

At Chicoutimi, the Beavers, champions of the West Division, broke a tight game wide open with six consecutive goals in the third period.

Claude Larose scored three goals for the Beavers, two of them in the third-period outburst. Michel Brisebois with two, Sidney Veysey, Robert Simpson and Francois Robert were the other Sherbrooke marksmen.

Alain Core and Yves Loiseau replied for the Saguenents.

Nistico's Line Does Everything

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros sent rookie Lou Nistico to check San Diego star Andre Lacroix and the rookie came up with a three-point bonus in World Hockey Association playoff action Monday night.

Nistico and linemates Gavin Kirk and Tom Martin accounted for three goals in the Toros' 5-2 win over the Mariners while Lacroix managed only one assist.

"That line's job was to check Lacroix's line and they came up with three goals," said Toros coach Bob Leduc. "That's plus three. They didn't have any against them."

The victory cut San Diego's lead in the best-of-seven quarter-final series to 3-1. The fourth game will be played here Wednesday night.

Nistico scored two goals to run his playoff total to four and Kirk got the other score for the line which led Toronto to a 2-0 lead after the first period and 4-2 after the second.

"Everybody on their team seemed to be worried about (Vaclav) Nedomansky's line and they were not paying that much attention to us," said Nistico.

Nedomansky and wingers Frank Mahovlich and Serge Featherstone went scoreless.

One of the few people not impressed with the work of the Nistico line was San Diego's Norm Ferguson, who scored both the Mariners goals in the second period.

Ferguson said he thought the Toro line was helped by the fact Lacroix's line "played flat", and added: "Every dog has his day."

Kirk opened the scoring in the second period when Mariners' goalie Ernie Wakely after taking a pass from Nistico, the roots went in front 2-0 late in the first period when Nistico scored his first of the night.

Ferguson scored his second goal of the playoffs early in the second period and then added another less than three minutes later on a power play.

The Toros thought they had the lead again a few minutes later when Tom Simpson put the puck behind Wakely but referee Bob Kolari ruled he had gloved the puck into the goal.

Toronto retaliates the lead on Nistico's second goal on a deflection midway in the second period and Simpson added one at 18:38.

Early in the third period, Martin appeared to have another goal when the puck glanced off his skate and into the net but the referee disallowed that as well, ruling he had kicked it in.

Wayne Dillon closed out the scoring at 17:45, beating goalie Russ Gillow who had replaced Wakely at the start of the third period.

Harry Howell, the veteran defenceman and player-coach, had himself thrown out of the game with less than three minutes to play when he was the third man into a fight between Nedomansky and San Diego's Ray Addonov.

San Diego's Jamie Bateman also took a misconduct when he ignored officials' orders not to join the fight.

Playoff action tonight sees Quebec Nordiques looking to make it a four-game sweep over the Roadrunners at Phoenix while Alberta Fighting Saints, leading 3-1, play host to New England Whalers and Houston Aeros, also leading 3-1, in visit Cleveland Crusaders.

World Football Back for More

NEW YORK (AP) — The one-year-old World Football League, the most unsuccessful league in recent professional sports history, has called a news conference Wednesday to announce it will play a second season, perhaps with 16 teams.

But this time, say the league's promoters, things will be different. If they aren't, the league and its teams lose another $20 million, the second year would likely be the WFL's last.

To try and enhance its attempt to create a new image of respectability, the league will present Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick, Paul Warfield—all under perso- Jeby F. Bassett of Toronto, owner of Memphis Southmen—and Calvin Hill at its coming- out news conference.

And it will describe a recovery situation plan drawn up by new president Chris Hemmeter, Under Hemmeter's plan, each team in the league must place in escrow 1/20 per cent of what it expects its 1975 operating revenues to be. In addition, each team will be required to have four bank accounts, and must place a percentage of all its receipts into these accounts. From these accounts, over which the league will have control, will come player salaries, stadium rent and other expenses. This is designed to help avoid the problems the league had in its first season, when player payrolls were missed.

It could not be learned exactly how many teams the league will announce Wednesday, but a source said there probably would be 18. Cities considered likely to have a WFL team are Philadelphia, Memphis, Honolulu, Anaheim, Calif., Chicago, Birmingham, Ala., Jacksonville, Fla., Shreveport, La. and Portland, Ore. Charlotte, N.C., is a possibility, the sources said. League officials began three days of meetings Monday.
